Green Issues: Our Energy Resources

Unit 1.1

A Journey Under the Sea

Several years ago, my wife and I came upon an advertisement in a travel magazine for an international exchange programme promising “the chance of a lifetime”. Not one to let such an intriguing opportunity pass me by, but a bit hesitant about taking such a leap into the unknown, I did some research and discovered that the programme involved something called house-swapping.

After much discussion, my family and I decided to, as they say, go for it. Consequently, we were soon setting off for a holiday in the Peak District of England while our exchange partners were settling down for their vacation in our flat back home in Mt Vernon, Washington. The exchange was for a month and the time passed quickly. To end our time away on a high note, we decided to travel

10 to Paris via the engineering marvel known as the Channel Tunnel. Being on a fairly tight budget, we opted for a package deal which included round-trip tickets on the Eurostar passenger train, five nights in a three-star hotel in Paris, Metro passes and unlimited use of the Paris bus system. When the package still hadn't arrived after a week, I began to think that perhaps our trip hadn't been such a good idea after all. Maybe it was a sign that we

15 shouldn't go. The tickets and vouchers eventually arrived and I scolded myself for having had such silly thoughts. On the day of departure, with plenty of time to spare, my two teenage children, my wife and I stood waiting eagerly on the platform at Waterloo Station. At exactly 7.57 am, we boarded our train and began our journey through the picturesque county of Kent. About an hour into our

20 journey, an announcement, in both English and French, informed us that we were about to enter the Channel Tunnel. The Eurostar adverts had boasted proudly about the engineering feat that was the ‘Chunnel’, and the convenience it offered to those travelling between England and the Continent. They had spoken highly of the “lack of rough seas” and to me, a person who gets seasick very easily, this was

25 a major selling point. When all is said and done, however, I must admit that there were moments when I felt quite nervous about travelling 50 metres below the bottom of the English Channel. Inside the tunnel itself, there really wasn't much to grab my attention – no posters or other artwork – so I busied myself studying the occupants of our carriage. Some calmly read novels or

30 newspapers; others quietly looked through business reports and notes. I quickly realised, however, that most of my fellow passengers were like my family in that they looked excited and very happy to be enjoying such a novel travel experience. Our underwater journey ended as quickly as it had begun. All of a sudden, we left the darkness of the tunnel behind and nosed out into the light of the pleasant French morning. The tracks being well-built, we quickly accelerated to 300 kph, the

40 speed of a Boeing 747 at takeoff. We arrived in Paris' busy city centre a mere 180 minutes after leaving London. That journey, and indeed the whole time that we spent on the exchange programme, have given us all a yearning for new experiences, and many 45 wonderful memories that we will cherish forever.

Reading & Listening

1 Describe picture A: where it was taken; time of year; how people feel.

2 Look at the map. Which countries can you see? How are the landmarks in picture B related to the map?

3 Read the last sentence in each paragraph. What is the article about? Listen, read and check.

4 RNE Read the article again. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each statement correctly. Then translate lines 27-45 from the text into Russian.

Study Skills

Multiple Choice

Read the text quickly to get an idea of what it is about. Read each statement stem, then find the part of the text which the statement refers to. Go through the choices and choose the one that fits best. The information in the text might be rephrased in the completed statement.

1 The writer first learned about the house-swapping scheme

- A from his wife.
- B purely by chance.
- C through a travel agent.
- D by doing research.

2 The writer uses the phrase 'go for it' (paragraph 2) to express the idea of

- A taking a risk.
- B going abroad.
- C flying on a jet.
- D having a choice.

3 The writer chose the package deal because

- A they wanted to travel via the Channel Tunnel.
- B it included a stay in a top-class hotel.
- C it was cheap for what it offered.
- D it allowed them to use the Metro and bus system.

4 The writer was most attracted by the fact that the Eurostar train

- A travelled so far below sea level.
- B was unaffected by sea conditions.
- C offered a convenient way to travel.
- D used such a well-designed tunnel.

5 During his journey through the tunnel, the writer

- A studied a business report.
- B looked at the other passengers.
- C read a novel about travelling.
- D wished the journey would end quickly.

6 We learn from the writer that

- A the trip from London to Paris took 3 hours.
- B the train accelerates faster than a Boeing 747.
- C the train's top speed is 300 kph.
- D Paris' city centre is busier than London's.

7 As a result of his experiences, the writer

- A began to think more about the past.
- B saw the value of doing new things.
- C realised his journey was special.
- D saw that he needn't have worried so much.

5 Match the words/phrases in bold to their definitions.

- passengers in
- chance
- reprimanded
- sped up
- longing for
- achievement
- decided on
- eased forward
- different
- usefulness
- attractive
- doing something without having previous experience of it
- endless

6 Fill in: high, cherish, rough, travel, tight, grab, package, exchange, business, intriguing. Make sentences based on the text, using the phrases.

- | | |
|----------------------|----------------------|
| 1 programme | 6 seas |
| 2 on a(n) note | 7 experience |
| 3 budget | 8 my attention |
| 4 deal | 9 to memories |
| 5 reports | 10 opportunity |

Speaking

7 Work in pairs. Imagine you have been on an interesting journey. Tell your partner about your journey. Say:

- where you went and which means of transport you used
- how long you went for and the reason for your journey
- what you did during your stay there

In pairs, ask and answer questions based on the text.

Writing

8 Portfolio: Use your answers from Ex. 7 to write an email to a friend of yours about your travel experience (80-120 words).

Vocabulary & Grammar

1 Say which of the following verbs are used with the following means of transport.

VERBS
catch	get out of	ride	steer
miss	get on(to)	take	disembark from get in(to)	get off	drive	board

MEANS OF TRANSPORT
a car	a train	a plane
a motorbike	a boat	a bus
a bicycle	a ship	a taxi

e.g. catch a bus/a train ... etc.

2 Choose the correct word. Which means of transport is each sentence about?

- Takeoff was delayed/missed for over an hour because of bad weather.
- The compartment was, so populated/crowded I couldn't get a seat so I had to stand all the way.
- I took a new direct route that was fast/speedy, so I reached my destination in no time.
- The traffic/congestion on the motorway wasn't heavy, so it took us very little time to get there.
- The crossing was rough/bumpy and we both got seasick.
- We broke/fell down outside York and had to wait for over an hour before someone came to get us.

3 Choose the correct word. Then translate the sentences into Russian.

- Last year we had the to travel to China.
A occasion B opening C benefit D opportunity
- We reached the airport with plenty of time to
A free B let C spare D spend

A said B spoken C told D stated
- There is a variety of marine life at the of the sea.
A base B bed C depth D bottom
- Our journey was a unique experience.
A travel B tour C trip D journey

• Phrasal verbs

4 Fill in the appropriate particle. Check in Appendix I. Use the phrasal verbs in a story of your own.

- Due to the heavy snow, no planes were able to take
- Getting my money back when the flight was cancelled didn't make missing an important meeting.
- Even though we set late we still made it to the airport in time.
- The terrible flight has put me travelling by plane again.
- Whenever I go on a long trip my whole family sees me at the airport.

5 RNE Complete gaps 1-6 with the correct derivative of each word in capitals.

• Comparatives/Superlatives GR p. 159

6 Read the examples. Translate them into your language. Are there similar structures in your language? What are they?

He runs as fast as John.
 She isn't half as skilled as her sister.
 Motorbikes are faster than bicycles.
 This car is less expensive than that one.
 Petrol is more expensive than diesel.
 It's getting hotter and hotter.
The earlier we leave, the sooner we'll arrive.
 This is the fastest car I've ever driven.

7 In pairs, use the structures in Ex. 6 and the adjectives below to compare various means of transport: comfortable, safe, economical, polluting, fast, reliable, dangerous, expensive, convenient, tiring, cramped, pleasant, leisurely, inconvenient, slow, uncomfortable, relaxing etc.

e.g. A: Travelling by plane is faster and more comfortable than travelling by car.
 B: However, travelling by car isn't as expensive as travelling by train.

• Relative clauses GR p. 160

8 Fill in: where, whose, who, which, why.
 Which of these words do we use for: people? things/animals? places? reason? possession?

Tenerife is a Spanish island 1) is situated off the coast of North Africa. Having visited many islands 2) the nightlife is not very lively, I was thrilled when I saw so many restaurants, cafés and discos in Tenerife. It is a stunning island 3) beauty captivates all those 4) go there. That is the reason 5) many people visit the island year after year.

9 Join the sentences with relative adverbs or adjectives.

- The tourists were robbed. They are talking to the police.
- John is going on holiday to Ibiza. It is one of the Balearic Islands.
- This is the shop. You can buy cheap clothes there.
- Where's the milk? It was in the fridge.

Study Skills

Text completion

Read the text through, then read the list of missing phrases. Start fitting the phrases into the gaps. Match the topic of the missing phrases with the topic of the phrase before and after each gap. Look for clues such as reference words (he, there, etc) or linking words (which, but, where, etc) before or after each gap. Check that the phrase you choose fits grammatically and makes sense. Read the completed text to see if it makes sense.

Reading

- 3 RNE Read the magazine article about the London Marathon. Choose the correct parts of sentences (A-G) to complete gaps 1-6. There is one extra part of a sentence you do not need to use. Compare answers with your partner. Then translate the first two paragraphs of the text into Russian.

THE LONDON MARATHON

Michael Scott talks about his success story of going from being a sickly teenager to a London Marathon competitor.

Growing up with a heart defect was difficult. While other kids my age were going to football practice and on beach holidays with their families, I was in and out of hospital. My only involvement in a sporting competition was watching it on the television.

One of my favourite events to watch was the London Marathon. When I was just 14, a man from London, named Chris Brasher, organised the first London Marathon. It was 29 March 1981 and 7,747 people were involved in the race. Over the years, I watched the event 1 . Now, there are 46,500 participants each year from all corners of the world and of all levels of ability. Many people say the marathon is the ultimate physical challenge. Athletes have to train physically and mentally for each marathon and be prepared for many challenges.

I always found it surprising to see how many well-trained athletes did not complete the course each year. Out of the over 46,000 starters, on average, only 33,000 actually crossed the finishing line. Some dropped out because of injury or illness, but most just 'hit the wall', an infamous experience suffered when their bodies simply ran out of fuel. For many runners, by the time they reached the 30 to 35 km point in the race, they just couldn't go any further. Their muscles would cramp and their heart and lungs could not obtain enough oxygen.

Each year, I tried to imagine what it would be like to line up before all the crowds and run the 42.2 km route 2 . The race started in Greenwich Park, then competitors would race along the River Thames, towards Big Ben, and eventually ending in front of Buckingham Palace.

I decided to talk to my heart specialist and find out if there was any chance that I could train my body to handle running 42.2 kms. At first, he thought I was joking, 3 . I began walking for a few minutes at a time, increasing my intensity until I was able to walk for 10 minutes a session. At the same time, I started lifting weights to build muscle strength.

Over the course of a year, I progressed from just walking to running. Running became a daily thing for me and I was building more strength and confidence with every step. My doctor was thrilled with my progress and allowed me to continue forward.

Finally, at the age of 19, the time came to apply for the London Marathon. I knew that only a certain number of people would be allowed to enter the race and as much as I wanted to do this, I knew that my chances were slim. The London Marathon is the most challenging marathon in the world. I couldn't believe how far I had come and that finally my dream would come true.

My doctor and I worked together to set out a training schedule 4 . Physically, I was fit and my heart appeared to be in good condition. The biggest problem would be dehydration, as it would be with all of the competitors. On average most of the runners take four to five hours to complete the race and water is essential to all of the competitors. The year before, 710,000 bottles of water had been consumed during the race!

Soon enough it was race day. My family, as well as various friends, were all gathered to watch and support me. It was the most difficult and the most exciting and rewarding experience of my life. I finished the race in less than six hours, 5 .

Today, I am still running. I have not competed in the London Marathon again 6 . I enjoy taking part in the atmosphere and sharing my success story with the other athletes. I learned that as long as I try my best and have faith in myself I can do almost anything.

Unit 1.5

Lead-in

- 1 THINK! Think of as many words as possible related to entertainment. Compare them with your partner.
- 2 Describe the pictures. What forms of entertainment do you prefer?

Reading

- 3 RNE Match the headings (A-H) to texts 1-7. Use each heading only once. There is one extra heading you do not need to use.

Matching

Read the list of headings quickly, then read the texts once and try to understand the main point of each extract. Read the headings again and underline the key words. Then read the texts again to find words/phrases that match the headings. The information may be paraphrased. Each time you choose a heading, cross it off.

- A Theatre for all the family
- B An unhealthy habit
- C A developing talent
- D Healthy eating
- E Unusual, useful learning
- F Better in the theatre
- G Talent finally recognised
- H Enjoyable, but hard work

- 4 Explain the underlined words in the text. Then translate texts 5 and 7 into Russian.

1 Fresh from his campaign to improve the quality of meals offered to children in British schools, television celebrity and well-known chef Jamie Oliver is on the warpath again. In his new television series, Jamie's Ministry of Food, he will try to improve the quality of food offered to children in their homes. According to Jamie, very few parents know the basic principles of cooking, so their children are being raised on an unhealthy diet of junk food.

2 Last night was the night to be in downtown Hollywood. Everyone who is anyone was there, either on the red carpet itself, or as a spectator on the sidelines. Cameras flashed and fans applauded as the stars exited their luxurious cars and entered the theatre for the event that everyone had been waiting for. The highlight of the evening was when the gorgeous and gifted Ms Cameron held the prize she had waited so many years to get high above her head and tearfully dedicated it to her mother.

3 Why not do something a bit different with your children this Christmas holiday? The TipTop Children's Theatre's latest production for the holiday season is a series of puppet shows based on some of the most popular pantomime stories. Each week in December there will be a different, thrilling puppet pantomime for you and your children to enjoy. What's more, every child who attends will receive a puppet as a Christmas present. Be sure to book early or you could miss out!

4 Shocking though it may seem, research shows that most American children spend at least four hours a day sitting in front of the box. What that means is that over a year-long period, these children watch over 1,000 hours of TV. Many experts are worried about the effects of this on children's health. To make matters worse, experts have also discovered that 70% of childcare centres in the US have at least one TV on their premises.

5 A sudden hush descended as the magician walked onto the stage. The lights dimmed and not a sound could be heard as the people in the packed auditorium held their breath and waited for the entertainment to begin. For the next hour the magician performed tricks that had everyone gasping in amazed delight. Only in such a setting could this show be truly appreciated; for some strange reason it just wouldn't have been as impressive if it had been on television.

6 The Newford Leisure Centre, which is known for coming up with innovative concepts to attract new members, will be running workshops on circus skills for beginners this summer. The workshops are scheduled to begin later this month with an introduction to juggling. Kirsten Hynde, one of the UK's top jugglers, will be leading the course. She says that the course will not only be great fun but that it will do wonders for your general coordination skills.

7 Kate Daniels is not your typical teenager. Discovered by a record producer just over a month ago, this accomplished young lady has become a star practically overnight. Her mornings are filled with practising her scales and her afternoons are taken up with recording an album of her songs. Kate has stopped attending classes and now has all her lessons with a private teacher.

5 Fill in: overnight, popular, wonders, holiday, run, junk, childcare, to make, latest, packed, cost. Use the phrases in sentences of your own.

- Which film did he watch?
- Who starred in it?
- Who was it directed by?
- What was the film about?
- Why was the film unusual?
- Did he recommend the film?

Speaking

9 You have recently watched a film. Tell your partner about:

- the title/actors/director of the film
- your description of the plot
- your comments on the music/atmosphere etc
- your positive or negative opinion

Writing

10 Use your answers in Ex. 9 to write a short review of the film.

Listening for opinion/attitude

- 1 Look at the pictures. Match what the people say to each sport. Which words helped you decide?

I just love it. There's nothing like watching it live. I enjoy the atmosphere in the stadium. Everyone cheers and shouts. It's really great, especially when my team scores the winning goal.

I know lots of people really enjoy playing or watching it but I personally can't stand it. I can't feel the tension and I can't understand how people get excited watching two people hit a ball back and forth until one of them misses.

Most people learn how to do it as kids. I didn't, but as I was watching the others having fun I said to myself, "It's never too late." At first I felt like I was going to drown, but after some time I learnt to float and I became more confident in the water. Now I go twice a week.

- 2 The following phrases express opinion. Which of them are used in the texts in Ex. 1?

Expressing opinion/attitude

- I love/don't like ...
- I feel that ...

Writing: Letters/Emails

- Letters/Emails can be formal, semi-formal or informal depending on who you are writing to. There are quite a few types, such as: invitations, accepting or refusing invitations, asking for or giving information, applications, complaints, apologies, asking for/giving advice, giving news, expressing thanks/regrets/congratulations etc.
- Before we start writing a letter/email it is important to think about who we are writing to. This will help to decide how formal/informal the letter/email will be.
- Informal letters/emails are sent to people you know well (e.g. friends, relatives etc). An informal letter/email should consist of:
 - an informal greeting (e.g. Dear Mary/Aunt Sue/Dad/etc)
 - an introduction in which you write your opening remarks and the reason for writing (e.g. How is it going? I thought I'd drop you a line to let you know ...)
 - a main body in which you write the main subjects of the letter/email in detail, starting a new paragraph for each topic.
 - a conclusion in which you write your closing remarks (e.g. I'd better go.)
 - an informal ending (e.g. Love/Yours/Best regards + your first name)
- Semi-formal letters/emails are normally sent to someone you know but are not intimate with (e.g. your friend's parents, a distant relative etc). Semi-formal letters/emails contain:
 - formal greetings (e.g. Dear Mr and Mrs Smith)
 - informal endings (e.g. Best Wishes/Yours + full name)
 - a respectful tone, depending on the relationship you have with the person
 - pronouns should not be omitted and idioms should be used carefully
- Formal letters/emails are normally sent to people in an official position or people you don't know well (e.g. Director of Studies etc). A formal letter/email should consist of:
 - a formal greeting (e.g. Dear Sir/Madam – when you do not know the person's name; Dear Ms Jones – when you know the person's name)
 - an introduction in which you write your opening remarks and mention your reasons for writing (e.g. I am writing to apply for the position of ...)
 - a main body in which you write about the main subjects of the letter in detail, starting a new paragraph for each topic
 - a conclusion in which you write your closing remarks (e.g. I look forward to hearing from you as soon as possible ...)
 - a formal ending (e.g. Yours faithfully – when you do not know the person's name; Yours sincerely – when you know the person's name) followed by your full name

- Style in informal and formal letters/emails

SEMI-FORMAL OR INFORMAL STYLE

Greeting:

Dear Mary/Aunt Sue/Dad, etc

- friendly, relaxed, personal tone (e.g. Thanks so much for your last letter.)
- frequent use of colloquial expressions, idioms, phrasal verbs, short forms (e.g. It's been ages since we hooked up.)
- pronouns are often omitted (e.g. Thought I'd drop you a line.)
- chatty, use of literary devices (e.g. You're as stubborn as a mule sometimes.)

FORMAL STYLE

Greeting:

Dear Sir/Madam/Dear Mr Smith,

- serious, impersonal tone (e.g. It was pleasing to hear that you are in good health.)
- complex sentence structure – frequent use of passive voice – no phrasal verbs – no colloquial English – advanced vocabulary – no short forms (e.g. The item in question, which I received last week, was damaged in transit.)

General outline for letters/emails

- 1 Match the beginnings with the endings and say which are formal/informal. Then identify the type of letter (e.g. complaint, invitation etc).

Beginnings

- 1 I am writing to apply for the post advertised in yesterday's Independent. I have four years' experience as a graphic artist, as well as a degree in Fine Art, and believe I am the perfect candidate for the position.
- 2 I am writing to you about last Sunday's dinner. I would like to apologise for my inappropriate remarks.
- 3 Hi! I haven't heard from you for ages. What have you been up to recently?
- 4 I've got a worrying problem and I would really appreciate some advice.
- 5 I'm writing to you from my summer cottage on the lake. I'd love it if you could come and spend the weekend with us.
- 6 I appreciate the invitation to the opening of your art gallery. I am afraid I am unable to attend due to prior commitments.
- 7 I received your letter concerning the property which you have recently inherited. I believe the best course of action is to contact an estate agent.
- 8 I was delighted to receive your letter. I would be honoured to attend your dinner party on 28th May.

- Understanding the rubric

- 2 Read the rubric. Use the underlined key words to answer questions 1-7.

You have received an email from a friend who wants to go on a diet to lose some weight. She feels very unsure about how to get started. Write her an email giving her advice on what she can do to eat a healthy diet that will help her lose some weight.

Write your email (120-180 words).

- 1 What should you write?
- 2 Who is going to read it?
- 3 What style should you use?
- 4 What information should you include?
- 5 How will you address the person you are writing to?
- 6 How should you begin/end?
- 7 How should you sign off?

- Model analysis

- 3 Read the email. Mark statements 1-8 T (true) or F (false). Correct the false statements.

- 1 It has an informal greeting/sign off.
- 2 Some pronouns are omitted.
- 3 It contains examples of the passive voice.
- 4 It contains colloquial expressions.

Endings

- A I am enclosing a curriculum vitae together with two references. Please do not hesitate to contact me if you require any further information.
- B Please write soon and tell me your news.
- C We'd love to see you again. Please call and let us know if you can make it.
- D Please accept my sincere apologies for my unseemly behaviour.
- E I look forward to seeing you. Please let me know if the dinner party will be formal so that I can dress accordingly.
- F Tell me what you think I should do. Write back soon.
- G I trust you will accept this advice. I am also including the name and address of a real estate office which can help you.
- H I am sorry to miss the opportunity to meet the artists, but I hope I can view their work at the gallery soon.

- 5 It includes advanced vocabulary.
- 6 It contains short forms and phrasal verbs.
- 7 It has a friendly, personal tone.
- 8 It is an email asking for advice.

Dear Tracy,

Just got your email and I'd be glad to help. Here are a few things you can do.

First of all, you've got to cut junk food out of your diet. There's no way you can carry on eating burgers and fries and lose weight. Secondly, you've got to eat at least five portions of fruit and vegetables every day. And don't forget to cut down on red meat. White meat like chicken and turkey has fewer calories and is much healthier.

The other thing you need to think about is what you drink. Forget fizzy drinks and milkshakes – they're no good for you. Try fruit juice and water instead. Fruit juice is great because it has loads of vitamins and water is one of the best things you can drink. Make sure you have at least eight glasses every day and you'll soon see the results.

Hope my advice helps. Got to go now. Write back and tell me how it's going or better still why not drop by and tell me in person!

Best of Luck.
Love,
Jennifer

Outline for letters/emails of complaint

A letter/email of complaint is written when we want to express our dissatisfaction about a specific problem. It is normally written in formal language with an impersonal tone. The language used depends on whether we want to complain in a mild or strong way. However, we should never be rude or insulting.

- In the opening remarks, we state our complaint, including details of what happened and where/when the incident took place.

e.g. I am writing to complain about a cooker I bought from your store last week. (MILD)

I wish to express my extreme dissatisfaction with a cooker I bought from your store last week. (STRONG)

- In the main body paragraphs, we present the specific points we are complaining about, in separate paragraphs. We always justify our points by giving examples/reasons.

e.g. Even though I have only used the cooker a few times, the grill no longer works.

- In the closing remarks, we explain what we expect to happen – e.g. to be given a refund, replacement, apology etc.

e.g. I look forward to your reply concerning the matter. (MILD)

I insist that you refund my money at once. (STRONG)

2 Read the rubric and answer the questions.

You recently attended a concert but you were extremely disappointed because the ticket agency overcharged you. Also, although the programme advertised a 2-hour concert including a supporting act, it lasted only 40 minutes and there was no supporting act.

Write a letter to the organisers. In your letter:

- state when/where the concert took place
- explain the problem
- ask for a refund

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1 Who is going to read your letter? Do you know them? | 3 What style should you use? |
| 2 What should you include? | 4 Would you use a mild or a strong tone? Why? |

- 3 Read the letter below and number the paragraphs in the right order. What is the topic of each paragraph? Is it a mild or a strong complaint? Justify your answer.

Dear Sir/Madam,

Firstly, I feel I was overcharged for the tickets. I purchased two tickets from your ticket agency at the full price of £20 each a month before the concert. I was therefore shocked to discover that the same tickets were being sold for £10 each at the door on the day of the concert.

I am writing with regard to the Crazy Horses concert at Torford Town Hall which I attended on 13th March.

You will understand that I am very disappointed with this state of affairs and I feel that you should, at the very least, refund the sum of £40 I paid for the tickets. I look forward to receiving your prompt reply concerning this matter.

Furthermore, the published programme was misleading. It advertised a 2-hour concert including a supporting act. As it turned out, there was no supporting act and the band only played for forty minutes.

Yours faithfully,

Helen Hunt

Helen Hunt (Mrs)

- 4 Read the extracts. Which are beginnings/endings? What tone has the writer used in each – mild or strong?

1 I must insist on a full refund immediately or I shall be forced to take the matter further.

2 I am writing about the ZXF camera I recently purchased from your company. I am afraid the enclosed product does not work.

3 I would appreciate it if the credit card could be replaced as soon as possible.

4 I wish to inform you that I was deeply offended by the rudeness of one of your shop assistants.

- 5 We use clauses of concession to justify our complaints. Read the example, then join the sentences using the words in brackets.

- 1 I called your store several times. I have not had a reply. (although)
Although I called your store several times, I have not had a reply.
- 2 I only bought the kettle last week. It has stopped working. (even though)
- 3 Your engineer called for the third time in the past two weeks. I am still without a working machine. (in spite of)
- 4 The advert said batteries were included. When I opened the box, they were not inside. (but)
- 5 I paid for a 256MB memory card. The one in the box was only a 128MB one. (despite)

- 6 Read the letter and fill in each of the gaps with one of the phrases below. How does the writer sound?

- I want to tell/I am writing to
- about/with regard to
- forgive us/accept my sincere apologies
- any inconvenience/the trouble
- a full refund/your money
- I'd just like to say/May I take this opportunity to
- buying tickets from us again/remaining a loyal customer

Dear Mrs Hunt,

1) you 2) your complaint about your recent experience at the Crazy Horses concert.

Please 3) for 4) we have caused you. Of course, 5) has already been dispatched to you. 6) thank you for your custom and express my hope that this unfortunate situation has not deterred you from 7)

Yours sincerely,

Tina Smith

- 7 You recently bought a DVD player online. Its disc tray keeps getting stuck. Send an email to the company. In your email (120-150 words) you should:

- state when you bought it
- explain what the problem is
- ask for a replacement

1 a) Look at the pictures. What can you see? Where would you expect to find these means of transport? Have you ever travelled in any of them? What was it like? Tell your partner.

b) Write down three things you would like to know about each means of transport. Read through to find if these things are mentioned.

2 Read the texts. For each gap, fill in the appropriate missing word. Compare answers with your partner.

3 Read the texts again. Answer the questions.

- 1 What does the word 'gondola' often make people imagine?
- 2 Why did gondolas first become popular with Venetians?
- 3 How did the idea for donkey taxis come about?
- 4 Which Far Eastern form of transport are pedicabs similar to?
- 5 What was the troika originally used for?
- 6 How does the movement of the middle horse in a troika differ from that of the outer horses?

4 Match the words in bold in the texts to their meanings.

- simple
- powerful
- side by side
- articles to be sold
- noticed
- ease of movement
- moving slowly across water
- arrival
- enormous
- coping with
- rich in detail
- tinkling metallic sound
- a charge for a service

TRANSPORT

GONDOLAS

In a city like Venice, it stands to reason that the principal mode of transport would be some sort of boat. Say the word 'gondola', and romantic moon-lit evenings spent lazily floating along any one of Venice's countless canals 1) to mind. However, gondolas are 2) more than that.

Before the advent of motorised boats, gondolas, because of their manoeuvrability and speed, 3) used to transport both people and goods within the city and to the nearest islands. Originally used as a private means of transport for the wealthy, gondolas quickly became a sort of 'taxi' for people of all classes to get 4) one part of the city to 5)

BURRO TAXIS

There is a very interesting means of transport available in Spain. In places like Malaga or Mijas, tourists can see the sights 1) the back of a donkey, or burro, as they are called. Back in the 1960s, a group of tourists spotted some workers riding their burros back from their fields. After 2) their pictures taken with the burros, the tourists asked 3) they could go for a ride. The workers agreed that they could, for a small fee, and the tradition of the burro taxi 4) born. In the town of Mijas there are about sixty of these four-legged taxis and, 5) if you don't know exactly 6) you want to go, the burro's owner will take you for a pleasant half-hour ride along the main streets for a very reasonable price.

THE TROIKA

The troika – a Russian carriage or sleigh drawn 1) a trained team of three horses running abreast – is, for many, a symbol of mighty Russia herself.

It developed 2) a means of efficiently crossing vast distances and negotiating long and difficult roads at great speed. Up until 1860, the troika was the primary means of transport in Russia.

A journey in a troika is a wild, exciting and memorable experience. The horses that pull the troika are arranged so 3) the centre horse moves straight forward at a trot while the two outside horses move at a smooth gallop with slightly outward-bent heads. The jingling sounds of bells on these elaborately-decorated, colourful sleighs can be heard 4) miles around. The troika has come to mean so 5) more to the Russian people than a mere means of transport. It is an image of Russian freedom and the Russian soul and spirit.

PEDICABS

Visitors to Britain may be surprised to come 1) a new form of transport. Virtually silent and non-polluting, pedicabs in cities 2) as London and Edinburgh can be hired to 3) you to the restaurant or theatre of your choice, or simply to see the sights.

But what is a pedicab? It is actually a sophisticated form of a rickshaw, a form of transport that is common in the Far East. The pedicab is basically a lightweight tricycle that can carry 4) to three passengers and is powered 5) the driver – a fit young cyclist!

Costing about £3 for a half-mile trip, pedicabs are not cheap, but they have certainly proved popular 6) tourists, and their numbers are increasing.

Project!

ICT In pairs or small groups, find out about two more unusual modes of transport in the world. Research: when, how and why they originated, who uses them, why they are popular. Present your findings to the class.

5  Listen as you read the texts again. Tell your partner three things you remember about each means of transport.

- 1 What do you know about Jules Verne? What kind of books did he write? Read the biography and check.

Jules Verne

(1828 – 1905) was a French author who is famous for his science-fiction novels. He wrote exciting adventure stories about space, air and underwater travel. His works include From the Earth to the Moon (1865), 20,000 Leagues under the Sea (1870) and Around the World in Eighty Days (1872). His most famous novel, Journey to the Centre of the Earth (1864), is about a professor and his nephew, Harry, who find directions for getting to the centre of the Earth. Their journey takes them on many exciting adventures with everything from volcanoes and water caverns to sea monsters and cavemen.

- 2 Look at the picture and read the first sentence of each paragraph. What do you think happens in the extract? Read through and check.

- 3 RNE Read the text again and choose the correct parts of sentences (A-G) to complete gaps 1-6. There is one extra part of a sentence you do not need to use.

- 4 Match the highlighted words with the meanings below.

• tired • immediately • big, huge • float
• fright • friends • again

- 5 a) Use a dictionary to explain the words in bold.

b) Explain the underlined phrases in your own words. Are there similar phrases in your language?

Journey to the Centre of the Earth

- 6 Fill in the gaps with words from the list.

• gigantic • strange • deadly • light • jaws
• lost • wide-stretched • fiercely

|-------------------|---------|---------------|
| 1 stared | 5 | mouth |
| 2 hideous | 6 | noise |
| 3 brilliant | 7 | consciousness |
| 4 | 8 | danger |

It is difficult for me to tell what the real time was, but I suppose it must have been ten at night. I lay on the raft, almost unconscious, in a sort of half dream. I saw strange visions of huge elephant-like creatures side by side with great sea-monsters 1 .

The raft suddenly turned around on the current and entered another tunnel. A mist seemed to drift from the roof of the tunnel, through which the moonlight shone, casting its brilliant light on our thin, exhausted figures. The light grew brighter as we moved forward, while the roof sloped upward, until at last we floated once more into a vast, water-filled cavern 2 .

At the side of this underground lake, a small cave with a sand-covered floor offered us a place to stop and rest our weary bodies. My uncle and the guide moved as if they were in a dream. I was afraid to wake them, because I knew how dangerous a sudden surprise can be to someone in this state, 3 .

As I did so, something moving in the distance caught my attention. It seemed to be floating on the surface of the water and it was coming toward me. I knew at once that it was something monstrous. It was the size of a whale, with hideous jaws and two gigantic eyes 4 . I tried to stand, to run in any direction, but my knees were shaking too much, and I nearly lost consciousness.

And still the mighty monster advanced, making a strange noise like nothing I had ever heard. His massive jaws and wide-stretched mouth looked large enough to swallow a boatful of men. I discovered that his mouth was like a shark's, 5 . In order to catch us in his mouth, he had to turn onto his back which made his legs kick up helplessly in the air. I actually laughed, despite the deadly danger. But then, with a wild cry, I ran further into the cave, leaving my companions to their fate.

The cave was deep and dimly lit. After about a hundred steps, I stopped and looked around. The sandy floor of the cave was covered with the bones of reptiles and fish – bones 6 ! I felt sick and my body shook with horror. As the old saying goes, I had 'fallen out of the frying pan into the fire'. Some beast larger and even more ferocious than the shark-crocodile lived in this cave.

- A which had been freshly chewed
- B which stared fiercely at me as it approached
- C but it was of little or no use
- D whose high roof was hidden in a bright cloud of mist
- E but his body was that of a giant crocodile
- F which were combinations of gigantic fish and animals
- G so I sat down beside them to watch

7 a)  Listen as you read the text again. Imagine what the monster in the cave at the end of the extract might look like. Use the language below and your own ideas to describe the monster to your partner.

- Size (gigantic, monstrous, huge etc)
- Body (head of an eagle, body of a snake etc)
- Other features (glaring eyes, hideous jaws, sharp claws etc)

e.g. The gigantic monster had the head of a lizard and the body of a horse.

b) Use the phrases from Ex. 6 and your own ideas to write a description of the monster.

8 Translate the last two paragraphs of the text into Russian.

Unit 1.13

Green Issues

Our ENERGY Resources

There are two categories of energy resources: renewable and non-renewable. Non-renewable energy sources are almost 1) to replace once they have been used up. Renewable energy resources, on the other hand, never run out.

POSSIBLE

Non-renewable energy comes from fossil fuels such as coal, oil and natural gas. They were formed over millions of years from the remains of living things, and are found deep 2) Fossil fuels release energy when they are burnt, but they also release large amounts of carbon dioxide, which pollutes the atmosphere and increases 3) warming.

GROUND

GLOBE

Renewable energy resources include wind, water and solar power. The Earth has an 4) supply of these forms of power and using them causes little or no pollution. The power of the wind is converted into electricity using wind turbines. Flowing water, whether from dams or ocean waves, can be very 5) , while energy from the sun can provide warmth for our homes.

END

POWER

Cutting down on the amount of fossil fuels we use would reduce pollution and conserve the Earth's resources before they disappear 6) We can all help – for example, by walking instead of driving, and turning off the lights when we leave a room.

COMPLETE

- 1 Look at the pictures. Which energy resources do you think will eventually run out and which ones will not run out? Read through and check.

- 2 RNE Read the text and complete gaps 1-6 with the correct derivative of each word in capitals. Compare answers with a partner. Listen and check.

- 3 Match the words in bold to their meanings.

- cut down on
- from the sun
- machines that turn to produce power
- types
- leftovers
- protect (from loss)
- substitute

Speaking

- 4 In pairs, discuss the benefits of using water, wind and solar power as energy sources.

Listening

- 5 Listen to two people talking about how to save energy. List the points under the headings: home - school.

Project!

ICT In groups, collect information, then write a short article about how to save energy at home. You can use ideas from Ex. 5. You can visit this website:

Moscow Marathon

The procession winds its way through Moscow. Leading the way are smiling, waving women dressed in uniforms 1) Next comes a full military orchestra, in step and playing loudly. After them are the runners, several thousand of them, representing the four corners of the globe. I am among them, and I simply cannot believe that I am a participant in this awe-inspiring event.

We stop at Red Square in front of the cathedral of St Basil, one of the most beautiful buildings on Earth. The bells on the Spassky Tower of the Kremlin strike 11 times, and the Deputy Mayor of Moscow shouts out the signal 2)

I am running the Moscow Marathon! I repeat these words silently to myself like a mantra. As I quickly look around me, I see that most of my fellow runners are Russian. They are not wearing fancy sun-glasses or name-brand shorts, 3) What is more, they look incredibly determined to not only complete the course, but to win it. I realise I have my work cut out for me.

The Moscow Marathon course is surely among the most scenic on the planet. It runs through the heart of Moscow, along the Moscow River, 4) Along the route are palaces, cathedrals, churches with shining gold cupolas, well-kept parks, sparkling fountains and stately monuments. The wide avenues and boulevards are spotlessly clean 5) From almost anywhere along the course, the seven huge neo-Gothic skyscrapers built by Stalin can be seen.

Before I know it, the finish line comes into view. The last quarter mile! I am nowhere near the front of the pack, but I can hear the boisterous applause ahead 6) I feel no sense of defeat. I came to this historic city to compete, to complete the Moscow Marathon. In a few minutes I will have done what I had set out to do. And with the little breath that I have left, all I can say is that it is the greatest feeling in the world.

Moscow hosts unique Winter Sports events

In February 2008, 25,000 spectators attended a Snowboard World Cup event at Moscow State University. The youngest competitor, 15-year-old Roope Tonteri from Finland, 1) the finals and finished second. The event was made possible because a special ramp, 46 metres high, was built.

In January 2009, Russia again showed its support 2) winter sports. In the Vorobyevy Hills, in central Moscow, a giant purpose-built ski ramp was constructed for the International Ski Federation (FIS) World Cup Race. It was so large that it entered the Guinness Book of Records.

The FIS had been encouraged by the 3) of the 2008 snowboarding event to hold an Alpine event in Moscow. Ironically, at the time of the event, it was the warmest winter 4) in Moscow, and snow had to be brought in from Siberia. The snow was transported to Moscow in refrigerated train carriages.

More than 20,000 people watched the 2009 event in Moscow. Sixteen top international competitors from 10 countries 5) part in the parallel slalom race, including two Russian athletes. After the competition the athletes visited Sochi. They were shown the 6) of the 2014 Olympic Winter Games and went skiing with the Russian Prime Minister.

These events in Moscow clearly demonstrated to the world Russia's readiness to 7) winter sports events in the future.

Speaking

Task 1 (3 – 3.5 minutes)

Give a talk on sport.

Remember to discuss:

- what kind of sports are popular with people, why
- how important sport is to your age group, why
- whether it is easy to do sports in your area, why
- what sports you enjoy doing, why

You will have to talk for 1.5 – 2 minutes. The examiner will listen until you have finished. Then he/she will ask you some questions.

Writing - Part 1

You have 20 minutes to do this task.

You have received a letter from your English-speaking pen friend Jack, who writes:

... The big thing in the UK at the moment is extreme sports. Football and cricket are still popular, but teenagers want to try bungee jumping and snowboarding. Could you tell me what you and your friends think about extreme sports? Are there any places where you can do this kind of sport in your area? What extreme sport is the most popular in Russia?

Did I tell you that it's my birthday next week and that I'm going to have a party ...

Write a letter to Jack.

In your letter

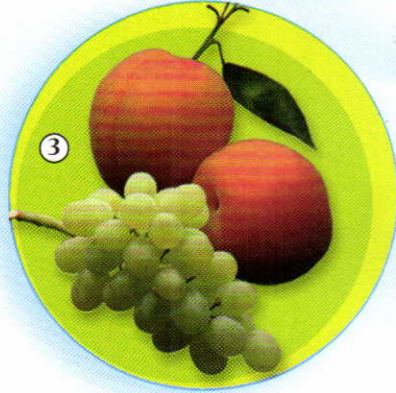

- answer his questions
- ask 3 questions about his birthday party

Write 100-140 words.

Remember the rules of letter writing.

Lead-in

- 1 a) The title of the text comes from a well-known fairy tale. Can you complete it?
- b)  These groups of words appear in the text. Say what you think the text is about. Listen, read and check.

- lively teenager • her behaviour started to change
- hardly ate anything • burst into tears • skinny and pale • enraged by the slightest thing
- distorted body image • lack of self-esteem
- urgent medical attention • weight back to normal • colour returned to her cheeks

Reading

- 2 RNE Read the article about a health problem. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each sentence correctly. Compare answers with a partner. Then translate lines 43-56 from the text into Russian.

In the beginning, I put it down to a simple case of exam nerves. My daughter Sarah had just turned sixteen and was studying hard for her GCSEs*. I knew she'd do well, as she was top of the class in all her subjects at school and had always been a high achiever. But as the time for the exams drew nearer, her behaviour started to change – drastically.

Sarah became sullen and withdrawn. She wasn't the lively teenager I knew. But the most worrying thing of all was that she was hardly eating anything. She refused to eat with the rest of the family and was having only light snacks in her room. At the time I didn't want to make a big deal of it, as I thought I'd just make her more anxious about her exams. I was convinced that once she'd taken the exams, she would soon settle down and everything would get back to normal.

But it didn't. In fact, it got worse. By the middle of the summer, Sarah had become very skinny and pale. She also had wild mood swings, bursting into tears or becoming enraged by the slightest thing. I should say at this point that my initial reactions to this situation weren't very helpful. We had huge fights about her being too thin and I tried to persuade her to eat more, but she just turned her nose up at everything I offered her. When nothing I said or did seemed to make any difference, I really felt at a complete loss about what else I could do or who I could turn to. I was desperate. After a lot of thought I realised that I would have to try other tactics. Screaming and tearing my hair out were definitely not improving the situation.

I started by looking up eating disorders on various websites, to get as much information as I could, and what I found out almost scared me to death. Anorexia nervosa is a condition that typically affects teenage girls. There are a variety of reasons as to why it can develop, but it is usually said to be because of a distorted body image and lack of self-esteem. Some young women think they are too fat, even when they are not, and feel that they are unattractive or worthless. The media have been accused of playing a role in the rise of eating disorders in recent years, because of the way they portray women. Using underweight models in adverts in glossy magazines and on television may be a factor in encouraging young women to equate thinness with beauty, glamour and success.

I was shocked to discover that this disease can seriously damage the heart and make bones brittle and easy to break. However, the most frightening aspect of the condition is that in 10% of cases it leads to the death of the sufferer. The information was terrifying, but it helped me to come to terms with the fact that someone with a severe eating disorder needs love and support and urgent medical attention.

It took a lot of calm and gentle persuasion to get my tearful daughter to agree to go with me to a doctor who specialises in eating disorders. That was two years ago and the road to recovery has been long and hard. Sarah spent two months in hospital to get her weight back to normal and since then she has been seeing a psychiatrist to help her deal with the underlying causes of the problem.

It was tough for me, too. I felt very guilty about her illness – that somehow it was my fault, and I was a bad mother who had caused her daughter so much anxiety she had started to starve herself. But we've managed to get through it together. Now Sarah is looking forward to starting university, the colour has returned to her cheeks and she is back to being the vibrant young woman she was before the whole dreadful nightmare started.

- 5 Eat your food slowly to enjoy it properly.
- 6 The best way to get rid of fat is to exercise as much as you can.

Live long and prosper

Food and nutrition expert Peter Bennet reports on his trip to a pretty fishing village on one of the islands of Okinawa, Japan, to find out why the people there live so long.

When I first met Makato Okushima, I would have said she was seventy-five, perhaps eighty years old. In fact, she is one hundred years old, 1 . She is just one of more than 400 people there who are at least one hundred years old; Okinawa has the highest and healthiest concentration of centenarians in the world.

I had come to find out the secret of these healthy islanders' longevity and a stroll down to the waterfront with Makato provided me with my first clue. After passing elderly fisherman unloading the day's catch, Makato joined a queue at a market stall to buy fish for the evening meal. It seems the people of Okinawa eat plenty of fish, 2 .

After we arrived at Makato's house, I watched with fascination as Makato prepared the food with her daughter, 3 . As well as the fish, there were portions of sweet potato, spring onion and other fresh, locally grown vegetables. There was also plenty of brown rice and tofu – a soya product high in protein and vitamins. On other days there might be a meat dish too, but the fat would be continuously poured off the meat as it cooked.

After the meal we drank green tea, which is said to have many health benefits and helps burn calories, as well. There were no sugary drinks and only a little locally produced rice wine, 4 .

I asked Makato what she thought the secret to her good health was. 'Well, as you see, we have a healthy, low-fat diet and we eat slowly to savour our food,' she told me, 'but it's also important to stay active. That way you don't get fat.' I suddenly realised I hadn't seen a single overweight person 5 .

On my last day, Makato took me to the outskirts of the village. There, facing the sea, was an old stone marker. I asked what the Japanese characters engraved on it meant. My translator told me: 'At 70 you are still a child; at 80 a young man or woman. And if at 90 someone from heaven invites you over, tell him to go away and come back when you are 100.'

Before flying home, I met Dr Davis Billings, 6 . He told me that life threatening complaints such as cancer, diabetes and heart disease are rare in Okinawa. It seems that Okinawans not only live longer, they live better.

- A since my arrival in Okinawa
- B who has studied Okinawa's centenarians for more than a decade
- C which the Okinawans firmly believe helps to prevent illnesses
- D which is a healthy food and very low in calories
- E which is not at all unusual in Okinawa
- F that the family only ate small portions
- G who also looked younger than her 76 years

5 Fill in: sugary, low, heart, locally, prevent, health, life, stay. Make sentences based on the text using the phrases.

11 Work in pairs. Use the table above and the plan below to act out dialogues for the following situations:

- Your friend wants to lose some weight.
- Your friend can't afford to join a gym.
- Your friend wants to cut down on junk food.

Unit 2.5

Lead-in

- 1 Look at the spidergram. Think of one more job for each category.

- 2 Which of the following qualities does each job require? Discuss it in pairs.

- responsible
- reliable • imaginative
- artistic • calm • patient
- polite • caring
- helpful • determined
- talented • brave
- well-organised
- cooperative • energetic
- skilful • sociable
- tactful • friendly • honest

e.g. A: I think that doctors need to be caring because they work with sick people.
 B: I agree. They also need to be able to remain calm in stressful situations.

The World of Work

Reading

- 3 RNE Read the extracts. Match the headings (A-H) to extracts 1-7. Use each heading only once. There is one extra heading you do not need to use.

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| A Mainly teamwork | E Fitting the job requirements |
| B Changing work conditions | F Developing a skill |
| C Help on the phone | G Calling for help |
| D A talent in demand | H Troubling news |

- 4 Match the words in bold in the extracts to these meanings.

- across the country • transmit • government-organised
- applicant • colleagues • timetable • in danger • intense
- characteristics • announcement • choice • remarkable
- worried

- 5 Fill in: personal, news, close, mass, practical, qualified, job, career, free-time, general. Use them in sentences of your own.

- | | |
|----------------------|--------------------|
| 1 cooperation | 6 networks |
| 2 media | 7 activities |
| 3 basis | 8 ladder |
| 4 professional | 9 security |
| 5 advice | 10 public |

1 In the UK, people can dial 999 when they need assistance from one of Britain's state-run emergency services – namely, the police, the fire service, the ambulance service, the coastguard, mountain rescue and cave rescue. Most countries have a similar phone call system with three numbers that are easy to remember and simple to dial, so that the service you need can get to you as soon as possible.

2 The job interview is a way for employers to get to know the candidates on a more personal basis. They already know about the candidate's qualifications and qualities, interests and free-time activities. They have already decided that he or she is suitable for the job. What they need to know now is whether or not he or she is the best candidate for the job.

3 The title of the job may be 'news editor', but don't expect to be ordering around all your fellow workers. There are several levels to the job. The lowest rung on the career ladder is delivering mail and making coffee; the highest rung involves important decisions that affect people's lives. Most of the time, the job involves close cooperation from everyone to get the news bulletin on the air in the quickest time.

4 It makes a real difference to the lives of the general public and saves the valuable time of doctors nationwide. NHS Direct is a phone line that allows people with health problems to call and speak to a qualified professional. This person will then give practical advice over the phone. This means that minor complaints can be dealt with quickly and calmly without the necessity of making an appointment at the doctor's surgery.

5 State-of-the-art technology has transformed the ways we get news. There are news networks that broadcast 24 hours a day and even the entertainment channels will take time out of their busy schedule to broadcast breaking news. These days the mass media are everywhere – we just can't get away. Some people say that this is a positive development, but research has shown that listening to a lot of bad news can make people more stressed and anxious.

6 The nine-to-five Monday-to-Friday job is under threat as working habits are being adjusted to meet the demands of 21st-century lifestyles. Employees can work flexitime, which means that they decide the hours they work. People often work part-time and may have two or more jobs. Working from home is becoming an increasingly popular option as commuting to work becomes more of a problem. On the other hand, job security is a thing of the past.

7 It is not the kind of job where you start at the bottom and work your way up – you either have the ability or you don't. They call him 'the Nose' and 'the Nose' has an impressive skill. Due to his extraordinary sense of smell, all the perfume companies are in fierce competition for his services. With just one sniff of a new perfume, he can tell exactly what it needs to be the most popular scent of the season.

Listening & Speaking

- 6 THINK!  Listen as you read the extracts again. Imagine you have one of the jobs mentioned in extracts 3, 4 or 7. Tell your partner about your job. Talk about: what you have to do at work, what hours you work and how you feel about it.

Writing

- 7 Think! What do you think it would be like to work in one of the emergency services mentioned in extract 1? Spend three minutes writing about it. Read your piece of writing to your partner. Then translate texts 1 and 7 into Russian.

Unit 2.6

despite The food tasted awful delicious.

8 RNE Read the text. For gaps 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each gap correctly.

Food allergies

Have you ever suffered because of a strawberry, panicked over a peanut or rued the day you ate salmon risotto? Maybe you have a food allergy. If so, you are among the estimated 4% of adults 1) do. Common foods that cause allergies in adults are milk, eggs, nuts, fish and shellfish.

I had no idea I was allergic to prawns until one day last summer, when I was on holiday in Spain. On my first night, I went to a charming little restaurant where I ordered the local specialty – seafood paella. The dish was delicious and, never having tried prawns 2) , I was pleasantly surprised at how much I liked them. Well, it wasn't until a 3) hours later that I began to feel unwell. My nose started to run, my throat began to hurt and a tingling sensation developed on my tongue and lips. At first I thought I was coming 4) with a cold, but once my stomach began to contract in terrible cramps, I realised that something 5) more serious was afoot. By the time the doctor arrived, my tongue and lips had swollen to 6) a degree that I was having difficulty breathing. The doctor took one look at me and called an ambulance. I was rushed to hospital, where I remained for the next two days. It was a terrifying experience. Now I am extremely careful to 7) anything with shellfish in it. I read all food labels religiously and, when dining out at restaurants, inform the waiting staff of my allergy. I also carry a special medicine with me at all times, in case of an emergency.

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • I fully agree with you. • You've got a point. • I think you're • Yes. I • Absolutely! 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • I don't really agree with you. • Well, I don't know about that. • You're there. • No. I • No way!

4 Where would you like to go? Discuss it in pairs. Give reasons.

Speaking Task 1

5 RNE Give a talk on eating out.

Remember to discuss:

- why people like to eat out, e.g.: for entertainment or to celebrate something.
- what the advantages of eating out are, e.g.: not having to cook for others, getting to try different foods.
- what the disadvantages are, e.g.: can be expensive, the service or food quality may be poor.
- how often you go out to eat.

Useful language

- One of the (main) reasons that ...
- On the whole, I'd say ...
- I think most people ...
- Firstly/Secondly/Furthermore, I'd like to point out ...
- One advantage/disadvantage ...
- As far as I'm concerned ...

Listen to a model answer. What does the speaker say are the advantages of eating out?

- Suggesting – reaching a decision (Pairwork)

6 a) RNE You and a fellow classmate have been asked to organise the food for the end-of-year school party. You can choose from:

- cold stand-up buffet
- fast food
- 3-course dinner
- barbecue.

Discuss the options with your classmate and choose one you both agree on. Use the language box to help you, and remember to discuss all the options.

Making suggestions	Agreeing	Refusing
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • How about ... ? • Why not the ... ? • They could ... • Perhaps/Maybe they could ... • I (don't) think they should ... 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • That would be fine/ great. • Yes. How about ... instead? • It's a nice choice, but ... • Oh, I think it's far too unhealthy, etc.

Useful language

Cold stand-up buffet

cheap, appetizing appearance, variety of choice, select one's own food, good opportunity to circulate and meet people, awkward to hold food cheap, quickly prepared, limited choice, unhealthy, uninteresting, everyday experience

Fast food

3-course dinner

nourishing, attractive, tasty, can be expensive, too formal for a school party

Barbecue

fun, tasty, informal, smelly, depends on the weather, needs to be cooked at that moment

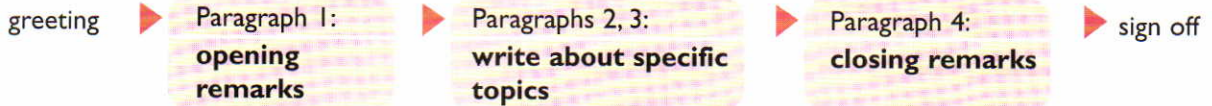

b) Listen to two people doing the task. What type of food do they decide on? What reasons do they give?

Writing: Letters/Emails

Outline for letters/emails including expressions of thanks/regrets/apologies/congratulations/sympathy

The topics for letters/emails may include thanks, expressions of sympathy, apologies/regrets or congratulations. They can be informal, semi-formal or formal depending on who you are writing to e.g. write an email apologising to your friend in an informal style (short forms, colloquial expressions, phrasal verbs etc), but write a letter thanking your penfriend's parents or a distant relative for a gift they sent you in semi-formal style (polite expressions, more respectful tone etc). More than one of these topics (thanks, sympathy etc) may be included or the topic(s) may form only part of the letter/email. Remember:

- to include an appropriate greeting (informal: Dear/Hi + first name, semi-formal: Dear Mr/Mrs + surname, formal: Dear Sir/Madam).
- your opening remarks may include questions about recent events, how the person is etc, a thank you for the person's last letter, comments about their news, an apology for a delay in writing/replying, reasons for writing etc.
- in the main body paragraphs, include the specific information asked for in the rubric. Make sure that you cover all parts of the rubric.
- your closing remarks may include greetings to the person's family, good wishes for an upcoming event, a request to the person to reply soon, a reason for ending the letter etc.
- sign off appropriately (informal: Love/Best wishes + first name; semi-formal: Regards/Best wishes; formal: Yours faithfully, Sincerely) thanking: (inf.) Thanks a lot/so much for ... that was so nice/kind!; (semi-form.) It was so/really nice/kind of you to ..., Thank you very much for ... I really enjoyed/liked ...; (form.) I would like to thank you for ...

Useful Language

sympathising: (inf.) (I'm) so sorry to hear about/that ..., I can't believe ... - you poor thing! What a shame/pain that ..., I really hope ..., It's awful/terrible that ...; (semi-form.) I was really/very sorry to hear that ..., I really hope ..., That must be/must have been awful/painful etc, I can imagine how awful/hard it must be/have been ...; (form.) I am writing to express my sympathy regarding ...

apologising/expressing regret: (inf.) I'm really/so sorry that/for ..., Sorry about/that ..., can you forgive me?, I feel really bad about ... - sorry!, I didn't mean to upset you when I ..., I can't tell you how sorry I am/bad I feel about/that ..., I can't/won't be able to ... - sorry!; (semi-form.) I'd like to apologise for ..., I'm very sorry about/that ..., Please forgive me for ..., I am sorry but unfortunately...; (form.) I am writing to apologise for..., Please accept my (sincere) apologies for ..., I am writing to inform you that unfortunately it will not be possible for me to ...

congratulating: (inf.) Well done for/Congratulations on (passing your exams etc) ... you did really well!, You ... (got the job etc)! Well done!; (semi-form.) Congratulations on ..., you must be really pleased/proud; (form.) I'd like to congratulate you on ..., I would like to offer my congratulations on ...

1 a) Read the parts of the letters/emails (a-d) and match them with the descriptions (1-4).

- 1 an apology for not attending an event
- 2 congratulating someone on an achievement
- 3 thanking someone for their help
- 4 expressing sympathy to someone who has not been well

a I was very sorry to hear that you have been ill in hospital. I really hope that you are feeling much better now.

b Please accept my apologies for not being present at the annual dinner last week. Unfortunately, I was unable to attend due to illness.

c Well done for getting the summer job in the restaurant! That's great! Now you can save up for the holiday you wanted.

d Thank you so much for helping to organise the food for Mum and Dad's twenty-fifth wedding anniversary celebration. We really couldn't have done it without you both.

b) Identify the style (informal, semi-formal, formal) of each. Which could be from a letter/email to: a good friend from school/college? friends of your parents who you don't really know very well? the secretary of the golf club committee? an aunt who you don't see often?

c) Rewrite each using alternative phrases from the theory box.

2 Read the rubric, underline the key words and answer the questions.

You have received a letter from Suzy Thompson, a lady you have just stayed with for two weeks while doing a language course in England, who writes:

... Did you enjoy your stay with us? What did you think of English food? You left a diary in a drawer in your room after you left – would you like me to send it to you?

As for our other news, unfortunately my husband broke his wrist last week ...

Write a letter to Mrs Thompson. In your letter:

- answer her questions
- ask 3 questions about Mr Thompson's broken wrist

Write 100-140 words. Remember the rules of letter writing.

- 1 Who are you writing to? What style will the letter be in?
- 2 Which of the following might you expect to find in the letter?
 - accepting a kind offer with thanks
 - regret that you can't help with something
 - an expression of sympathy
 - thanks for someone's hospitality & food

3 a) Compare the two possible replies, A and B. Which reply includes: informal language? semi-formal language? all points asked for in the rubric? well-organised paragraphs? appropriate opening/closing remarks? Which one is the appropriate reply?

MODEL A

Dear Mrs Thompson,

It was really nice to receive your letter. I'm so sorry that it has taken me such a long time to reply, but I've been very busy.

I had a wonderful time in England. It was so kind of you to have me to stay with you. Also, your home-cooked English meals were absolutely delicious, especially the roast beef and Yorkshire pudding that you cooked on my last day. As for my diary, thank you very much for offering to send it to me. That would be wonderful!

I'm so sorry to hear that Mr Thompson broke his wrist. That must have been extremely painful. How exactly did it happen? Did they put it in plaster? Is he still able to go to work?

I hope to hear from you soon. Please tell Mr Thompson that I hope he makes a speedy recovery.

Best wishes,
Jane

MODEL B

Hi, Suzy!

Great to hear from you! I'm going out with my friends tonight – I can't wait!

Thanks for letting me stay with you. I had a great time! Also, I loved the English food, especially your roast beef and Yorkshire pudding. Thanks for offering to send my diary to me, too. That would be great! Sorry John broke his wrist. Ouch! The poor thing! What happened?

Write soon.

Lots of love,
Jane

b) Find the sentences in model A which mean the same as the underlined sentences in model B.

4 RNE Read the rubric and underline the key words. Then discuss the questions in pairs and write your letter.

You have received a letter from your great aunt, Aunt Margaret, who writes:

... Did you like the gift that Uncle John and I sent you for your birthday? Your mother told me that you were planning a family meal out at a nice restaurant – did you all enjoy yourselves? Did you go out and celebrate with your friends as well?

Now for some good news. Our granddaughter Sally has just got into medical school.

Write a letter to Aunt Margaret. In your letter:

- answer her questions
- ask 3 questions about her granddaughter

Write 100-140 words. Remember the rules of letter writing.

- 1 Who are you writing to? What style will you write in?
- 2 Which of the following will you include in your letter? What else must you include?
 - your congratulations
 - an expression of sympathy
 - thanks for something
- 3 How could you open/close your letter/email?
- 4 What greeting/ending will you use?

Writing: Letters/Emails of application/recommendation

Outline for letters/emails of application

A letter/email applying for a job/course/etc is normally formal in style.

- In the opening remarks we mention the type of job/course, and where and when we saw it advertised.
- In the main body paragraphs we write our age, present job/studies, qualifications (e.g. I have a National Certificate in English), aspirations (e.g. I want to go to university to study Mathematics) and skills and personal qualities suitable for the job/course (e.g. I am extremely patient with ...).
- In the closing remarks we write when we are available for an interview, where/when we can be contacted, references we can provide etc.

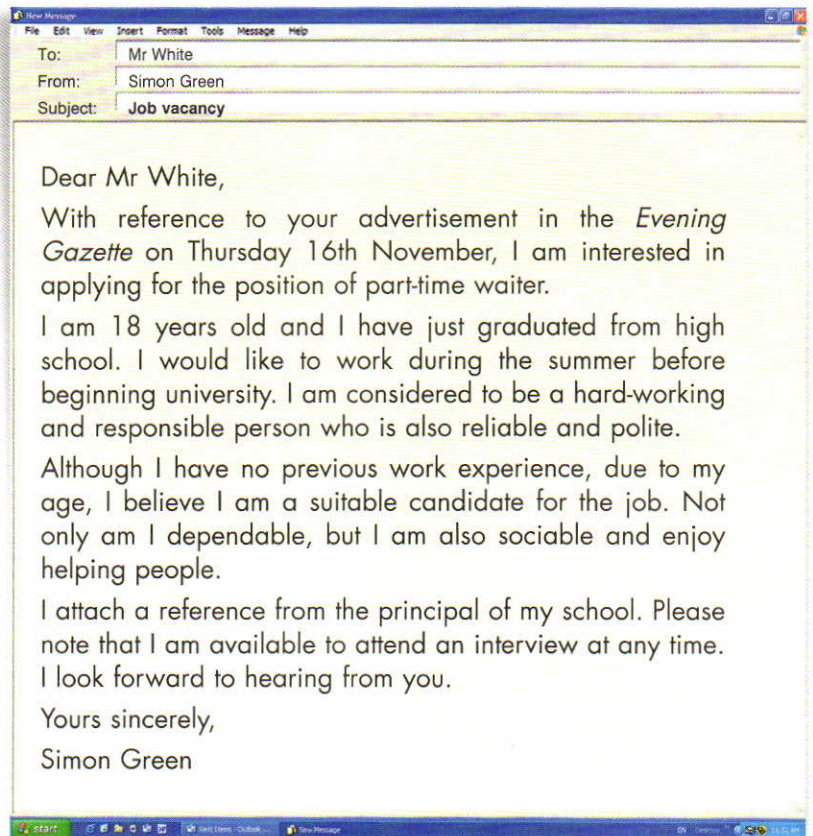

1 Read the rubric. Then read the email. What is each paragraph about?

You have seen the following job advertisement in the Evening Gazette newspaper. Write an email applying for the job.

WANTED

Part-time waiter for weekend work in a popular seafront restaurant, Sea Breeze.

Apply to Mr White by email to Seabreeze@msn.co.uk explaining why you would be suitable for the job.

2 Read the email again and find formal expressions to match the informal ones.

Informal style

- About your advert ...
- I want to apply for ...
- People think I'm ...
- I have not worked before ...
- I get on well with people ...
- There's a note from the head of my school ...
- I'm free to talk to you ...
- Drop me a line sometime ...

Formal style

- With reference to your advertisement ...

Outline for letters/emails of recommendation

A letter/email can ask you to recommend a person for a post, a place for an event to be held etc. These types of letters/emails include descriptive techniques. If you are asked to describe a person, make sure you include only the qualities that are relevant to the topic. Describe the person's qualities, giving examples or justifications, e.g. She is very knowledgeable. She can answer the students' questions with ease. When you mention negative qualities, use mild language such as can be, seems to, is rather, has a tendency to, e.g. He can be impatient at times.

3 Read the rubric and underline the key words. Read the email and answer the questions.

You belong to the ecology club in your school and you have been asked to recommend someone for this year's Ecology Club Award. Write a letter to John Bendors, the president of the Ecology Club, recommending one of the club's members. Explain why you believe this person should receive the award and what makes him/her an outstanding member of the club.

Dear Mr Bendors,
I would like to recommend Harry Pharm to receive the Ecology Club Award.
Harry Pharm is a creative member of the Ecology Club. He has come up with a lot of useful ideas for club projects this year. For example, he encouraged us to make birdhouses and nesting boxes to place in the school grounds. He also read several books on composting and taught us how to build a compost pile using grass clippings, fruit and vegetable scraps.
Secondly, Harry is very reliable and helpful. He comes to every club meeting, is always punctual and follows through on projects he is working on. He consistently volunteers to help others whenever he is needed.
Finally, Harry is a well-liked member of the club. His positive attitude makes him very popular with the other members of the club.
In conclusion, Harry Pharm is a creative, reliable and well-liked member of the Ecology Club, who works very hard to protect the environment. I believe he deserves the award.
Best regards,
Zoe Brooks

4 Match the descriptive details to the examples/justifications.

- 1 Mary is well-organised.
 - 2 Brian is a successful author.
 - 3 George is an experienced pilot.
 - 4 My youth leader is very open-minded.
 - 5 Doctor Harrison is very professional.
 - 6 Peter is an adventurous person.
 - 7 Mr Smith has an enormous amount of patience.
 - 8 Mrs Johnson is a creative problem solver.
 - 9 Phil is very dependable.
 - 10 Mrs Rogers is extremely disciplined.
- a He is very talented and develops his characters quite persuasively.
 - b She understands and recognises the nature of a problem and can find unique solutions.
 - c He does what is needed in a consistent and sensible manner.

 - h She exercises every day and sticks to a very healthy diet.
 - i He has the ability to stay calm and not show any annoyance even when others around him are not doing what they should or are being unfair.
 - j She makes a schedule of her work and activities and carries them out efficiently.

5 Read the rubric. Underline the key words. In pairs, think of what qualities a good teacher should have, giving reasons. Then write your letter.

The school representative has asked your class to nominate a teacher for this year's Teacher of the Year award. Write your letter explaining why you believe this person should be nominated and what makes him/her a good teacher (120-180 words).

- 1 What qualities does Mr Pharm have?
- 2 What examples has Zoe used to support each quality?

In some letter/email writing tasks, the rubric may take the form of a letter or email from someone asking for information or advice, or it may take the form of a notice or advertisement. In these cases notes are attached to the text to indicate what information you should include in your letter/email. When dealing with such a task, remember to decide on the appropriate style (semi-formal, informal or formal) and include all the information required, using your own words. You must give the information in full sentences, using your own words where possible.

1 Underline the key words in the following rubric. Then answer the questions.

You have received this email from your English friend, Mary. She is planning a working holiday. Read her email and the notes you have made. Then write an email to Mary, using all your notes.

- 1 What do you have to write?
- 2 Who do you have to write to?
- 3 What do you have to include in your writing?
- 4 What style should you use?
- 5 How many words should you write?

2 Read the model. Has the writer included all the information required? How has he reworded the information?

Dear Mary,

I'm really glad you're coming for the summer. The best time to come is in June because then there'll be plenty of seasonal jobs.

It'd be a good idea for you to try and get a job in a restaurant as a waitress. You'd meet lots of people that way. You could pick up lots of the language and your English would come in handy for the tourists, too.

By the way, don't worry about finding a place to stay. My sister says you can stay with her. It's not a problem at all and it will save you lots of money.

Thanks for inviting me to come and stay with you, too. I'd love to, but I can only make it for a week at the beginning of September, if that's OK.

Well, that's all for now. Can't wait to see you!

Love,
Jim

- Requesting information

Direct questions can be used in informal letters/emails and they can start with a wh-question word (when, why etc); e.g. What time will you reach York?

Indirect questions can be used mostly in semi-formal or formal letter/emails. They are introduced with:

I would be grateful if you could ... , I would like to know whether/if ... , I would appreciate it if ... , Could you suggest ... ? , Do you think you ... ? , Do you have any idea ... ?
e.g. Do you have any idea when you will be in York?

3 Rewrite the direct questions as indirect.

- 1 Do I need to pay in advance?
- 2 Could you tell me what exactly the course is about?
- 3 Do you cater for diabetics?
- 4 Can you send me more information?
- 5 When is the best time to come?

Write your email (120-150 words).

4 Read the following advertisement and the answer. Has the writer covered all the points? What style has she used? Give examples.

including N. Africa?
travel arrangements?

What sort of home required?

Notes: - description of house: style / size / location
- 15th June – 15th July
- family of 5 (3 children aged 10, 8, 6)

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am writing with regard to your advertisement in The Guardian on 10th February. I would be grateful if you could send us further information about your home exchange scheme. We would also appreciate it if you could clarify a few questions we have.

We are interested in visiting North Africa, particularly Tunisia, but can only do so from 15th June to 15th July. Do you think you may be able to find an exchange in this area at such short notice?

We have three small children, so the house would need to include some facilities, such as a swimming pool, to keep them occupied.

I would like to enquire exactly what type of house you require. We have a spacious cottage with a large garden that is ideal for children. I would be more than pleased to send photographs and a more detailed description of our home if this would be of assistance.

I would also like to know if the flights must be booked through your organisation, or separately through a travel agent. Thank you for your kind attention. I would appreciate an answer at your earliest convenience.

Yours faithfully,
Jill Thomson

5 a) Read the rubric, the email and the notes, then write your email (120-150 words).

You have received an email from your English friend, Elaine. She is planning to visit your country. Read the email and the notes you have made. Then write an email to Elaine, using all your notes.

b) Swap papers and evaluate your partner's piece of writing. Think about:

British and Russian Food

A Breakfast of Champions

We know that eating a good breakfast helps us to learn better and work more 1) , and it gives us the energy to keep on playing when others go home exhausted. We know all this and yet most of us run out of the house every morning after only a hurried cup of coffee or a rushed glass of milk. Perhaps it's time to make the 2) breakfast a more regular feature of our daily routine.

Take the English breakfast, for example. Eat one of these and you probably won't need anything else until the end of the day. Fried eggs, crispy bacon and sizzling sausages straight from the frying pan take pride of place on the English breakfast table. Add a slice of toast 3) topped with fresh butter, jam or marmalade and you have a meal worth waking up for.

Cold climates call for something warm at the 4) of the day and Russia is no exception. The early-morning aroma of home-cooked blini can drag even the deepest sleeper out from under the duvet. The huge 5) of toppings means that this is one breakfast dish that will never become boring. If that did happen, you could try kasha instead. This is a type of porridge usually made from buckwheat (like the best blini!) and eaten with whatever you like – meat, fish or fruit.

And what do these feasts have in common? Whether it's from a samovar or a teapot, the perfect partner to these traditional breakfasts is the humble cup of tea – a drink shared by nations and enjoyed across 6) continents.

Forget the cheeseburger and fries! The best fast food has been available for decades and you don't have to 1) to the centre of town to find a restaurant – it's on the streets in your local neighbourhood.

If you're out and about in Moscow, you must try some delicious pirozhki. These are like pies, but smaller and with soft golden-brown dough that's filled 2) whatever you like – fruit, cheese, meat or fish.

Versions of this popular dish are 3) all across Eastern Europe and loved by visitors from 4) over the world.

Visiting London? Why not try the famous fish and chips? With crispy batter on the outside and delicious white fish inside, it's the perfect treat at the end of the day. It's probably best to eat the full meal either at home or in the shop, but you'll see many people wandering 5) town eating a portion of chips.

There are many local 6) to fast food, most of them healthier and cheaper. So forget the burger bar for a while and try the wealth of great food that is just around the 7) from the place where you live.

- 1 Look at the picture on the right. What do you think the man has discovered? Read the biography below to find out.

Herbert George Wells

(1866–1946) was a famous English writer. He was born in Kent, England. He loved to read. When he was a child he broke his leg and read lots of books while he recovered. H. G. Wells wrote many science fiction books, including The Time Machine (1895) and The Invisible Man (1897). His novel The War of the Worlds (1898) is about aliens invading Earth and trying to take over the world. The main character, Ogilvy, finds an alien spaceship when it lands in a park near his home.

- 2 Read the extract and put the events in the order that they happen. Check your answers with your partner.

- He gets into the hole to see the object better.
- The outer layer of the object starts to come off.
- Ogilvy runs away from the object.
- Ogilvy observes the object.
- The end of the cylinder starts to move.
- Ogilvy wants to open the cylinder.

- 3 RNE  Listen as you read the text again. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each statement correctly. Then translate lines 1-14 from the text into Russian.

- 1 On first seeing the object, Ogilvy thinks it
 - A has an unusual appearance for a meteorite.
 - B has the normal features of a meteor.
 - C is wider and heavier than he expected.
 - D is silent and hollow.
- 2 The park where Ogilvy sees the object is
 - A cold and windy.
 - B crowded with people.
 - C very sunny and hot.
 - D empty and calm.

THE WAR OF THE WORLDS

- 3 The phrase “brought his heart into his mouth” (line 32) means that Ogilvy suddenly feels
 - A scared.
 - B disappointed.
 - C excited.
 - D surprised.
- 4 Ogilvy inspects the object more carefully after
 - A it starts raining.
 - B he thinks it is safe.
 - C he sees ash falling off it.
 - D the object has cooled down.
- 5 Ogilvy doubts his own explanation for the pieces of ash falling off the object when
 - A he finds that the object is still too hot to touch.
 - B he notices where it is falling from.
 - C he looks closer at the object.
 - D he goes down into the hole the object has made.

The Thing itself lay almost completely buried in sand, among the scattered parts of a fir tree it had smashed to pieces on its way down. The uncovered part had the appearance of a huge cylinder, its outline softened by a thick coating. It had a diameter of about thirty yards. He approached the object, surprised at the size and even more at the shape, since most meteorites are rounded almost completely. It was, however, still so hot from its flight through the air that he couldn't touch it. A stirring noise within its cylinder he guessed was due to the uneven cooling of its surface; for at that time he had not thought that it might be hollow.

He remained standing at the edge of the pit that the Thing had made for itself, staring at its strange appearance, surprised mainly at its unusual shape and colour, and wondering even then why it had arrived on Earth. The early morning was wonderfully still, and the sun, just clearing the pine trees towards Weybridge, was already warm. He did not remember hearing any birds that morning, there was certainly no breeze stirring, and the only sounds were the faint movements from within the soot covered cylinder. He was all alone on the common.

Then suddenly he noticed that some of the ashy coating that covered the meteorite was falling off the rounded edge of the end. It was dropping off in flakes and raining down upon the sand. A large piece suddenly came off and fell with a sharp noise that brought his heart into his mouth. He realised that he was sweating and his knees were knocking.

For a minute he hardly realised what this meant, and, although the heat was excessive, he climbed down into the pit to see the Thing more clearly. He thought then that the cooling of the body might be the reason for this, but what disturbed that idea was the fact that the ash was falling only from the end of the cylinder.

And then he noticed that, very slowly, the circular top of the cylinder was turning on its body. It was such a gradual movement that he discovered it only through noticing that a black mark that had been near him five minutes ago was now at the other side of the circumference. Even then he hardly understood what this meant, until he heard a grating sound and saw the black mark jerk forward an inch or so. Then the thing came upon him in a flash. The cylinder was artificial – hollow – with an end that screwed out!

Something within the cylinder was unscrewing the top!

“Good heavens!” said Ogilvy. “There’s a man in it – men in it! Half roasted to death! Trying to escape!”

At once, with a quick idea, in his mind he quickly linked the Thing with the flash upon Mars.

The thought of the trapped creature was so dreadful to him that he forgot the heat and went forward to the cylinder to help turn it. But luckily the dull radiation stopped him before he could burn his hands on the still-glowing metal. At that he stood unsure for a moment, then turned, scrambled out of the pit, and set off running wildly towards Woking.

- 6 The word “this” (line 48) refers to
A the movement of a mark on the object.
B the object landing on Earth.
C a noise he hears from inside the object.
D a sudden flash from the object.
- 7 Ogilvy is distressed because
A he can't inspect the object.
B he can't free the people he thinks are inside.
C he's afraid of what's inside the object.
D he burnt his hands on the object.

1 Look at the pictures. How many of these foods/drinks can you identify? Which ones have a sharp, acid taste?

2 Read the title of the article. What do you know about the topic?

3  Do the quiz. Read and listen to check your answers.

1 Which of these pH numbers indicates an acid?
A 12 B 8 C 4

2 The thermometer in your fridge says 5°C. You should
A turn it up.
B turn it down.
C leave it as it is.

3 To prevent bacteria from growing, food should be kept
A warm and moist.
B cold and dry.
C warm and dry.

4 Bacteria are destroyed by
A low temperatures.
B high temperatures.
C high acidity.

5 What is the ideal temperature for a home freezer?
A 0°C B -18°C C -72°C

4 Match the words in bold in the text to these definitions.

- not active
- rot
- water
- groups
- pace
- a process between different substances
- proteins
- tools
- conserving

In pairs, ask and answer questions based on the text.

5 What have you learnt about the topic? Why does food go bad? What else would you like to learn? Work in groups. Collect information, then present it to the class.

Why does food go bad?

FOOD & ACIDITY

The pH scale, which ranges from 1 to 14, measures whether something is an acid or an alkali. A solution with a pH value under 7 is an acid whereas a solution with a pH value of more than 7 is an alkali. Anything with a pH value of 7 is considered neutral. For example, citrus fruits, which have a pH value of about 2, are acidic, while pure water is neutral. The acidity of food is important because it affects the taste and the rate at which microorganisms grow in the food.

FOOD & MICROORGANISMS

Moulds, yeasts and bacteria are three types of microorganisms that cause food to spoil. Moulds are microorganisms made of spores that move through the air and land on food. We can avoid eating mouldy food because mould grows in colonies, so we can see it. Yeasts are single-celled organisms that can be found on the skin of fruit, which make fruit go bad. Bacteria are single-celled microorganisms which multiply by splitting in two. They are the most dangerous microorganisms because they are not visible to the naked eye. E.coli and salmonella are two deadly bacteria that can hide in food. They need warmth, moisture and time to grow on food, so we can prevent bacterial food poisoning by keeping dishes, surfaces and utensils clean, cool and dry.

OXIDATION

Exposure to oxygen in the air also affects food. For example, an apple will quickly turn brown once it has been cut or peeled. This is because of a reaction between the natural proteins called enzymes in the fruit and the oxygen in the air. We can reduce this effect and stop food such as fruit and vegetables from turning brown by adding a natural acid (e.g. lemon juice), putting them in boiling water for ten seconds to destroy the enzymes or by preserving them in a sugary solution such as syrup.

TEMPERATURE

We can help food to stay fresh longer by either heating or cooling it. UHT products are termed 'long-life' because they are ultra-heat treated. This means they are heated to a temperature of about 149°C for 6-9 seconds and then quickly cooled. This destroys the bacteria. Keeping food in the fridge at 0°C - 3°C will slow the growth of bacteria and keep food fresh for longer. Freezing food at -18°C or lower keeps bacteria dormant. We should always make sure that we heat frozen foods to a temperature of 72°C or more to cook the food properly and kill any bacteria present. This way, we can avoid getting food poisoning.

Reading - Task 2

Read the text and choose the correct parts of the sentences (A-G) to complete gaps 1-6. There is one extra part of a sentence you do not need to use. Write your answers in the table.

Everybody knows that you can catch a cold or the flu. But recently it has been discovered that happiness is also catching. A new study was carried out at Harvard Medical School which shows that happiness spreads just like a disease. What this means is that your happiness can have an affect on the people 1)

Think for a minute about what happens when you have a bad cold. You can give your cold to all the people around you 2) These people, your friends, your family, and the people you go to school with, catch your cold and then they pass it along to others, who then pass it along to people that they associate with.

Happiness works in a way 3) Let's say you are in a good mood 4) You tell your friends about it. They care about you and how you feel, 5) Then they go home and spread the happiness to their family members.

One of these family members, the mother, for example, goes to the supermarket and because she is happy she smiles at the check-out girl. The check-out girl, seeing this big smile, starts to think her job isn't so bad after all and then she treats her next customer 6) This chain of happiness goes on and on. Isn't it a wonderful thought that you can make so many people happy just by smiling at one other person?

- A in a way which is polite and friendly
- B if you get too close to them
- C so they feel happy too
- D that get colds from the people they live with
- E who you know and even those you don't

- F because you passed an important exam

A Day to Remember

Julie and Cindy are best friends. They 1) each other since they were five years old. They met on the very first day of school. On that very special day, Cindy was very frightened. She didn't want to leave her mother and go into the classroom with her new teacher.

Her teacher said to her, 2) kindly, "Come on in, Cindy. We are going to have a great time together."

Cindy 3) into the room and sat down. Then she started to cry.

Julie saw her and asked, "4) you happy to be at school?"

Cindy looked at her and said, "I am happy but I 5) because I don't know anyone."

Julie laughed and said to her that she and two other girls 6) some pictures. She asked her to come and join them.

Cindy dried her tears, looked at Julie and said, "I 7) with you because I know we are going to be best friends forever." And Cindy was right!

RSPCA: Adopting A Pet

If you are looking for a new 1) friend, the RSPCA (Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals) can help you find exactly what you want. There are hundreds of animal shelters across England and Wales you can visit in order to select a new pet for your family.

While you may have to pay something for your new pet, it will not be 2) and the price includes vaccinations and you will get reduced rates for pet insurance.

Every RSPCA 3) is fully-trained and they make it their business to ensure that all the animals they look after are happy and healthy.

Before any animal is given a new home they are examined to see what kind of family would be most 4) for them. Every animal has a different 'personality' and RSPCA staff know that families and pets have to be perfectly matched.

There are so many 5) animals in the UK that it only makes sense to come to us rather than go to a pet shop or animal breeder. Speaking

Task 2 (3-4 minutes)

You and your friend are going to organise a special event for a popular classmate who is moving to another town. You can choose from:

- a surprise leaving party
- dinner at a local restaurant
- an afternoon at a funfair
- an evening at a comedy club

Discuss the options with your friend and choose the one you would both like to be responsible for.

Remember to:

- discuss all the options
- be polite
- take an active part in the conversation
 - explain the situation
 - come up with your ideas
 - give good reasons
 - find out your friend's attitudes and take them into account
 - invite your friend to come up with suggestions
- come to an agreement

Writing - Part 2

You have 40 minutes to do this task.

Comment on the following statement.

Although both have their attractions, living in a village is much better than living in a large city.

What is your opinion? Where would you prefer to live?

Write 200-250 words.

Use the following plan:

- make an introduction and state your opinion
- give reasons to support your opinion
- give arguments for the other point of view and explain why you disagree with it
- draw a conclusion

Lead-in

- 1  Listen to the music. What images come to mind? What can you see/feel? What is happening?

Reading

- 2  Describe the pictures. How might they be related to the text? Listen, read and check.

- 3 RNE Read the text again. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each statement correctly. Compare answers with your partner. Then translate the first two paragraphs of the text into Russian.

- 1 The writer and his wife moved to the countryside because
- A their life was out of control.
 - B their city lifestyle was too boring.
 - C they wanted a more relaxed lifestyle.
 - D they wanted to start a new hobby.
- 2 The main problem with Susan's ceramics was
- A they were poorly made.
 - B there wasn't enough room for them.
 - C they were dull and uninteresting.
 - D nobody wanted to receive them as gifts.
- 3 The writer seems to feel that the Downton Cuckoo Fair is
- A an important part of history.
 - B the only interesting thing to do in the countryside.
 - C useful for people who live in the city.
 - D an unusual country activity.

We moved to the countryside to enjoy life at a slower pace, but from the moment Susan took up pottery my quiet life seemed to drift out of control. Suddenly, the house was full of empty vases and unused dishes, each one requiring my seal of approval before being put in place on newly-built shelves. Although I appreciated the fact that my wife had discovered a hidden talent, it was becoming increasingly obvious that we had to find some use for her creations before we ran out of space completely. Susan's brightly coloured ceramic plates and dishes made ideal gifts, but birthdays and special occasions didn't come around often enough to save us, so I was delighted when she suggested renting a stall at a local craft fair.

We live a few miles from the village of Downton, near Salisbury in Wiltshire. It's a lovely, quiet village on the River Avon that's full of strange customs and

- 4 The writer was surprised when they reached Downton because
- A it was busy early in the morning.
 - B it was unusually sunny.
 - C it was hundreds of years old.
 - D it was strangely quiet.
- 5 The reason it took so long for the writer and his wife to sell anything was that
- A there weren't many people at the fair.
 - B people liked the handicrafts better.
 - C people were too interested in other things.
 - D nobody liked Susan's ceramics.
- 6 The writer uses the phrase 'we were soon struggling to cope' (paragraph 4) to show that
- A the American tourists were making a lot of noise.
 - B they were busy as lots of people wanted the ceramics.
 - C they didn't understand why people bought the ceramics.
 - D they didn't have much time left to sell the ceramics.
- 7 At the end of the fair the writer
- A was extremely tired.
 - B thought it had lasted too long.
 - C thought it had been too noisy.
 - D looked forward to returning.

A Fair to go Cuckoo About old traditions, such as the Cuckoo Fair at the beginning of spring. Since the 16th century, people have been coming from miles around to marvel at this medieval festival. These days, around 20,000 people enjoy live entertainment from brass bands, street performers and Morris dancers. For those of us who were brought up in the city it seems like a lot of quaint countryside fun, but the fair also has about 250 stalls selling handmade crafts and local produce, and that's why Susan and I set off for Downton in the early hours of the morning.

Even at 6 am, Downton was a hive of activity. As the sun crept across the village, our fellow stall holders were laying out their wares on stalls that lined Downton's main street just as they'd done hundreds of years ago. However, this was an entirely new experience for Susan and she was strangely silent as she arranged and rearranged her display. For Susan, this was far more than an opportunity to make some money from surplus handicrafts. She was like an artist preparing for her first public exhibition and her critics would have to show their approval by parting with some cash if the day was going to end well.

As a crowd slowly formed, the homemade honey on the stall next to ours seemed to be selling well. The old couple who'd produced this tempting treat offered Susan a supportive smile, but by mid-morning we were still waiting to make our first sale.

A few potential customers hesitantly asked about the prices, but most were too distracted by the hustle and bustle to make a purchase. I confess that my own attention had started to wander when I suddenly heard the wild, enthusiastic shrieks of a delighted American tourist. I turned to find a group of elderly ladies gazing at Susan's display as though they had just discovered buried treasure. They were generous in their praise and eager to hand over their money for as many bargains as they could carry. The attention drew in yet more customers and we were soon struggling to cope.

By the early afternoon, we had nothing left to sell and we were finally free to explore the rest of the Cuckoo Fair. The children dancing around the Maypole looked adorable as they waved around each other in their bright costumes. Then we followed a street procession to the crowning of the Cuckoo Princess. Although I can't say either of us fully understood the significance of this ancient ceremony, we both applauded. We wanted to prolong the fun, but it was time to go. As I drove home with my own cuckoo princess asleep in the passenger seat, I wondered whether this would be a regular feature of our quiet country life. For all the satisfaction the day had brought, I certainly hoped so.

The New York Renaissance Faire

Renaissance Faires, in which people (1) out life as it was in 16th-century England, are popular in many parts of the USA. One of the largest is in New York and it has (2) a major annual event attracting 10,000 visitors a day. It takes place every weekend during August and September.

If you visit the Faire, you will find yourself in a large village of buildings just like those of Shakespeare's time, (3) actors walking the lanes in Elizabethan costume. Many visitors also dress up in costumes which can be (4) for the day. Shops sell a variety of goods, many of them made using the materials and techniques (5) by 16th-century craftsmen. Elizabethan-style taverns and inns serve traditional English food and drink.

Critics complain that the Faire is (6) of an amusement park than an accurate picture of 16th-century life, but visitors agree that it is a highly enjoyable day (7) with a difference.

Botanist Nick Leaver talks about a scientific expedition to one of the world's most remote and biodiverse nature reserves.

Botany may not be regarded by many as the most exciting of careers, but I can honestly say that I have never found it anything but enthralling. I have had the great fortune to travel virtually the entire world for my job looking for plant species [1]. Last year, my research took me to Madagascar, one of the most beautiful and fascinating countries I have ever had the good fortune to visit.

Madagascar is an island about the size of France off the south-east coast of Africa. It is a biologist's dream [2]. What is more, an estimated 80% of these are found nowhere else on Earth. The reason that Madagascar has such a treasure trove of unique species is that its animal and plant life have been evolving in isolation for millions of years. It is estimated that Madagascar broke away from the Indian subcontinent somewhere between 80 and 100 million years ago making it the world's oldest island.

With such a tremendous collection of species under its care, the Madagascan government has set aside about fifty areas of special interest as national parks. One of the most beautiful is the Tsingy Bemaraha National Park [3]. Tsingy consists of deciduous forests and mangrove swamps sitting on towering, jagged limestone rocks. Below ground, there is an enormous network of caves, rivers and streams. There are bird, reptile, lemur and frog species in the park [4]. The aye-aye, the world's largest nocturnal primate, lives there too. It has a very odd appearance – luminous, beady eyes and a very long middle finger on both its hands.

It was in this truly incredible wildlife habitat that I gathered the majority of my plant samples. Getting to many of the plants in Tsingy can be a struggle because of the terrain. You have to be prepared to climb and scramble over this wonderful rocky landscape. The limestone pinnacles soar above 150 feet in some places. The plants cling precariously to the sharp peaks and towering cliffs. Those on the tops of the rocks have had to adapt to extreme conditions – burning heat and long periods of drought – so they do not have leaves, but instead are covered in thorns [5]. On the other hand, those on the canyon floor have water, but live in shadow. The lack of light means they have to stretch up towards the sky to grasp whatever sunlight they can and so they have unusually long stems and branches.

To date, we, botanists, have counted roughly 650 plant species in Tsingy. Most of these have not been investigated, but research in laboratories, like the one I work in, will hopefully discover if any are of medicinal value. I have high hopes. Madagascar is home to the Rosy Periwinkle, [6]. I suspect there are many more Madagascan plants with potential disease-curing properties.

1 Shangri-La is an imaginary location described in the novel Lost Horizon by British author James Hilton. It is a tranquil haven in the Tibetan mountains, a place which casts a spell on all who live there. Today, the word Shangri-La is synonymous with a place of complete and utter bliss, delight and peace – an earthly utopia. Robert Kuok, founder of Asia's leading luxury hotel group, the Shangri-La group of hotels and resorts, drew inspiration for his company's name from Lost Horizon.

2 In the world's largest cities, the cheapest, fastest and most efficient way to move around is often by underground. This is certainly true in Tokyo, a city of some 13 million people and home to the busiest underground system in the world. Some subway cars are filled to 160% of capacity during rush hour.

3 The magnificent Paradise Forests of South-east Asia – comprising rainforests, swamp forests, coastal and mangrove forests – are home to an extraordinary diversity of species and hundreds of indigenous cultures. Tragically, these forests are being logged at a rate unequalled anywhere else on Earth. The Sumatran tiger and the world's largest flower, the one metre wide rafflesia, are threatened. Similarly, more than 1,000 languages spoken by the people who call these forests home could vanish.

4 The Acropolis of Athens is the most famous acropolis in the world. A flat-topped rock in the middle of the city, rising 150 metres above sea level, the Acropolis has been a place of importance for thousands of years. It has several famous buildings on top of its summit, the most notable being the Parthenon, a temple erected in the 6th century BC to honour the Greek goddess Athena. The Acropolis is a magnificent site, a true testament to the glory that was Ancient Greece.

5 York is a beautiful medieval city and for the last thirteen years Brian Larkin has been taking visitors on a unique walking tour around it. His tour is different because, he says, he wants to give people an understanding of how ordinary people really lived in the past. As he takes them down some of York's darkest side streets and alleyways, Brian gives visitors a running commentary on what life was like without the benefits of electricity or modern plumbing.

6 Spectacular mountain ranges, breathtaking scenery and abundant wildlife make Nepal one of the most popular travel destinations for those who love the outdoors. Home to the highest mountain in the world, Mount Everest, Nepal's topography soars from 70 metres to 8,848 metres above sea level. Wildlife like tigers, rhinos, monkeys, bears and leopards roam Nepal's forests, grasslands and deserts. 10% of the world's bird species can be found flying in the skies of this beautiful country.

7 The Hermitage Museum in St Petersburg, Russia, is the largest art gallery in the world, with over three million works ranging from Michelangelo to Matisse. The collections are displayed in a vast complex of six buildings, including the Winter Palace, the official residence of the Russian Tsars. The Hermitage collection began as the private collection of the Empress Catherine the Great and was substantially expanded by succeeding Tsars, as well as the Soviet State, into the superb collection it is today.

Writing: Letters/emails inviting/accepting – refusing invitations

Letters/Emails inviting/accepting – refusing invitations usually consist of four paragraphs. They can be formal or informal, depending on the situation and who we are writing to. They also often contain some kind of additional information such as a description of the event/trip/etc (e.g. a party, a weekend away, a request for help, directions to a place/meeting point/etc). Accepting/refusing an invitation may form only part of a task. In this case, deal with each part of the task in separate paragraphs. The paragraph plans for each type of letter/email differ, as shown below.

PLANS

Inviting

- Para. 1 opening remarks, reason for writing (to invite)
- Paras 2 & 3 a description of/details about the event/trip etc (day/place/time, food, music, decorations, meeting arrangements etc)
- Para. 4 closing remarks (express hope that he/she can come, ask person to let you know if he/she can come etc)

Accepting

- Para. 1 opening remarks, thank for invitation
- Paras 2 & 3 accept invitation, make any other comments about the event/trip/etc (offer your help, ask questions etc)
- Para. 4 closing remarks (thank again, express excitement etc)

Refusing

- Para. 1 opening remarks, thank for invitation
- Paras 2 & 3 refuse invitation, giving reasons, make any other comments (suggest meeting soon, give latest news etc)
- Para. 4 closing remarks (thank again, apologise etc)

Inviting

- | | |
|--|---|
| • What are you doing ...?/ Are you busy/free on ...? | • Can you make it?/ Would you like to come? |
| • I'm having/planning ... | • I'd love it if you could come./I'd really like you to come. |
| • Do you think you can come? | |

Accepting

- Thanks (so much) for inviting me to/the invitation to ...
- I'd (really) love to come to ...
- It would be lovely to come to ... I wouldn't miss it for the world!

Refusing

- The/Your ... sounds lovely/exciting/etc, but ...
- Unfortunately, I can't make it/I won't be able to come.
- I'm so sorry, but ...

1 Read the extracts. Which are beginnings and which are endings? Which type of letter is each from?

- 1 How are you? Thanks so much for the invitation to your dinner party on the 16th, but I'm afraid I can't make it.
- 2 Hi! What are you doing next Friday evening? I'm planning a DVD evening and it would be great if you could come!
- 3 Anyway, I must go now. I really hope you can come on the weekend away. Let me know as soon as you can.
- 4 Well, thanks again for inviting me on the trip. See you next Sunday. I can't wait!

2 Read the email. What type of email is it? Which paragraph (1-4):

- asks the person to let the writer know if she can come?
- asks for the person's help?
- gives details about the food and music?
- gives the day/place & invites the person?

Dear Jane

1 Hi! How are you? I'm planning a surprise party for my sister Annie's sixteenth birthday next Saturday at our house. I'd really love it if you could come!

2 I'm really excited about the party. I'm thinking of having Mexican food, which is Annie's favourite, and I've decided to try making her a birthday cake, too. My brother has offered to organise the music – I think he'll be quite a good DJ!

3 I've already asked Annie's best friend to take her out in the afternoon. When she brings her back home at about half past seven, all the guests will be there waiting to surprise her! It would be great if you could come round to our house a bit earlier to help me put up the decorations.

4 I really hope you can make it! Let me know as soon as you can. If you like, you can stay at our house overnight.

Love,
Emily

3 Read the reply and put the paragraphs in the correct order (1-4). Does it accept or refuse the invitation? What information is included in each paragraph?

Dear Emily,

Well, thanks again for the invitation. I can't wait to see Annie's face when she sees everyone!

It was great to hear from you!

I'm fine, thanks, but quite busy. Your sister's surprise party sounds really exciting. Thanks for inviting me!

I can definitely come early to help you with the decorations. How about five o'clock? I've got some lovely candles that would look great at the party, so I'll bring those. Also, I'd love to stay overnight at your house. It will be fun!

Of course I'd love to come. I wouldn't miss it for the world! It's a great idea to have Mexican food - that's my favourite, too. Would your brother like me to bring any of my CDs? I've got some fantastic ones!

Love,
Jane

4 Which phrases are used to invite, accept, thank, in the emails in Exs. 2 & 3? Suggest alternatives.

5 RNE Read the rubric, underline the key words and answer the questions.

You have received a letter from your English-speaking pen friend Henry, who writes:

... Have you got any plans for the summer yet? How about coming to visit me the first week in August? We could go camping with my parents in a beautiful national park near our home or just stay in the city and see the sights. What do you think?

As for my latest news, I went to a brilliant music festival last week ...

Write a letter to Henry. In your letter:

- answer his questions
- ask 3 questions about the music festival he went to

Write 100-140 words. Remember the rules of letter writing.

- 1 Who are you and who are you writing to?
- 2 Which of the following information must you include?
 - what your plans for the summer are
 - what kind of music you like
 - whether you can visit your friend in August
 - whether you would like to go camping or stay in the city
 - 3 questions about a festival your friend visited

6 Read the letter and fill in the gaps (1-8) with the phrases in the list. Compare answers with your partner. What information is included in each paragraph?

- Thanks again
- I'd really love to
- I really don't mind
- It's great that
- I'm really looking forward to
- I can't wait
- Thanks for your letter
- Write and tell me

Dear Henry,

Hi! 1) and for the invitation to come and stay with you.

2) for the summer holidays! I'm planning to go out with my friends a lot and relax in the garden with some good books. 3) come and visit you the first week in August! It would be great to go camping, but it would also be fun to see the sights in your city. 4) which we do!

5) you enjoyed the music festival. Who did you go with? Were there any famous bands there? What different kinds of music were there? 6) all about it!

Well, that's all for now. 7) for inviting me to come and stay. 8) it!

Best wishes,
Alex

7 RNE Read the rubrics, answer the questions, then do the tasks.

A You have received a letter from your English-speaking pen friend Jenny, who writes:

*... I'm thinking of organising a trip for all my friends to the new wildlife safari park 'Wild Things' for my birthday on Saturday 6th March. Do you know anything about what it's like and what you can do there? Do you think it would be a suitable place to go for my birthday? Whatever I decide to do, do you think you can come?
It's the town carnival next week ...*

Write a letter to Jenny. In your letter:

- answer her questions
- ask 3 questions about the town carnival

Write 100-140 words. Remember the rules of letter writing.

B You are going to spend the weekend at your grandma's cottage in the countryside. Write an email to your friend inviting him/her to join you. Write 100-140 words.

- 1 What do you have to write?
- 2 What style will you write in?
- 3 What will you include in each paragraph?

Unit

Writing: Narrative/Descriptive letters/ emails

A letter/email can use descriptive and/or narrative techniques. For example, we may need to write to a hotel manager asking him to check if a piece of luggage which was left at the hotel has been found. This means that we have to write in a formal style and provide a complete description of the item we are looking for, applying descriptive techniques. Or we may want to write to a friend of ours describing a nasty experience we had. This means that we have to write in an informal style, applying narrative techniques (what happened, when, where, how it happened, what happened afterwards etc).

Outline for narrative – descriptive letters/emails

- 1 Read the following letter and put the paragraphs into the right order. Then say what each paragraph is about. Find elements of narrative/descriptive techniques.

Dear Lucy,

In the evenings, we went out to eat in local restaurants, trying all sorts of delicious local dishes. I think I have put on some weight!

Thank you for your letter and the lovely photographs of your new house. It looks beautiful. I'm writing to tell you what a great time we had during our holiday in the Virgin Islands. It was such a pretty place, I'm sure you'd have loved it.

I've brought back a little souvenir for you which I'll bring with me when we come and visit you next month. I'm really looking forward to seeing you then.

Our hotel was fantastic. We decided to book a hotel close to the beach and we were lucky, because our room had a huge balcony with a gorgeous view of the sea. We spent all day on the beach sunbathing and enjoying the good weather.

Best wishes,

Mary

- 2 Read the extracts. Which contains narrative/descriptive techniques?

a ... and my parents gave me an expensive black leather travel bag for my trip. It's really smart, with sturdy metal zips and lots of useful pockets and compartments, so I can ...

b ... We waited in the queue for over an hour, and then when we got to the gate I couldn't find our tickets. After I'd emptied out my handbag to check it wasn't there, John remembered I'd given the tickets to him before we left the house. He'd had them in his back pocket all the time! Anyway, they let us in and ...

- Letter/Email including narrative/descriptive techniques

- 3 Read the rubrics (1-4) and answer these questions for each task.

- 1 Who are you?
- 2 Who is going to read your letter?
- 3 What style should it be in?
- 4 What information should you include?
- 5 What techniques can you use: descriptive, narrative or both? Give examples.

- 1 Last summer you worked at a local tourist attraction. You enjoyed the experience and want to tell your English pen friend about it. Write an email to your pen friend, describing the work you did at the tourist attraction and explaining why you enjoyed it (120-180 words).
- 2 You have just returned from a summer sports camp where unfortunately you left behind a favourite item of clothing. Write a letter to the camp director, explaining what the item is, what it looks like and where you think you might have left it. Ask her if she can send the item to you if she finds it (120-180 words).
- 3 You have received a letter from your English-speaking pen friend Max, who writes:

... I'm thinking of going on a student exchange programme that my school is organising this summer and I know you've done something similar. What was your host family like? What activities did you do? What did you enjoy most about the whole experience?

I'm helping to organise our class end-of-term school trip at the moment ...

Write a letter to Max. In your letter:

- answer his questions
 - ask 3 questions about the one-day school trip
- Write 100-140 words. Remember the rules of letter writing.

- 4 You have received a letter from your English-speaking pen friend Julie, who writes:

... What's your new flat like? Do you like the neighbourhood? Have you met any of your new neighbours yet?

I went on a camping trip last weekend and it was awful ...

Write a letter to Julie. In your letter:

- answer her questions
 - ask 3 questions about the camping trip
- Write 100-140 words. Remember the rules of letter writing.

- Proofreading a letter/email

Dear Julie, Hi! How are you? I'm writing to tell you all about my new home.

I really love my new flat! It's quite small but it's really cosy with a lovely warm fireplace. Also, it's on the seventh floor, so it has a really fantastic view of the city, especially at night when all the lights are twinkling! I'm meeting some of the neighbors and they seem really friendly. I've even made friends with the girl which lives next door. She's really friendly and exactly my age!

Why was your camping trip awful? Who did you go with? Was the weather bad? I've just won a writing competition at school.

Well, I must go now. I look forward to your reply.

Love,
Samantha

- 5 Read the model again and proofread it carefully to find the mistakes listed below. Rewrite the letter correctly, then compare answers with your partner.

- 1 one missing piece of information
- 2 two spelling mistakes
- 3 two grammar mistakes
- 4 an opening or closing remark in the wrong style
- 5 a sentence which doesn't match the paragraph topic
- 6 a word used too many times

- 6 Now choose two of the other rubrics and write your answers in the appropriate style(s). When you finish your piece of writing, proofread your letter/email by checking it against the following questions.

CHECKLIST FOR WRITING LETTERS/EMAILS

Organisation

- Have you included all the necessary information?
- Does your letter/email flow?
- Are your paragraphs clear and in a logical order?
- Are your opening/closing remarks appropriate for the intended reader?
- Are there any unnecessary sentences you need to take out?

Language

- Is your style consistent throughout your letter/email?

Writing: Film and Book Reviews

- A review is a brief description of a book, film, play, album, etc. A review gives the main points of the plot including the reviewer's comments/recommendation.
- When writing a review, consider the tenses you should use for each paragraph. When describing the plot, the present tense should be used. Paragraphs should include more than one sentence. When a new topic is introduced, begin a new paragraph. Your recommendation or judgement should be included in the conclusion. Always give good reasons to support your comments/opinions.
- The style of a review can be formal or informal depending on the intended reader. Reviews can be part of a letter or email.

PIRATES OF THE CARIBBEAN

Hi, Amanda!

1 It was great to hear from you! Actually, I've seen a really good film recently – Pirates of the Caribbean: At World's End. It's a brilliant action-packed adventure film!

2 In the film, Will, Elizabeth and Barbossa are on a quest to rescue Captain Jack Sparrow (played by Johnny Depp) and release the sea goddess Calypso to destroy the ship The Flying Dutchman. The plot is thrilling with lots of twists and turns and the special effects are excellent. I think the actors, including Keira Knightley, Orlando Bloom and of course Depp, give fantastic performances, too. I would definitely recommend this film for your DVD evening as I think it's a film that most young people would enjoy.

3 How long is the exchange student staying with you for? Do you get on well with her? Has she been going to school with you?

4 Anyway, I hope you enjoy your DVD evening and the rest of the exchange student's stay. Write back soon!

Love,
Diana

Unit 3.12

Across Cultures

1 Look at the pictures of buildings, which are all World Heritage Sites. Which country is each in? What do you know about these buildings? Why are they considered important? Read through to find out. Match the texts (A-D) to the pictures (1-4).

2 Fill in the gaps in the texts with the appropriate word. Check answers with your partner.

3  Listen as you read the texts again, then answer the questions.

- 1 Which city lost its prominence as a result of foreign occupation?
- 2 Where can you find a monument built by a devoted husband?
- 3 Why is it surprising that Bath has many fine Georgian buildings?
- 4 Where would you go to see examples of the best wall paintings?
- 5 Besides its history and architecture, what is Agra noted for?
- 6 Why did Bath become a popular place to visit in the 18th century?

4 Match the words in bold in the texts to these meanings.

- stylish • set up • previous
- widespread • tomb • proportion
- famous • wealth • suburbs
- outer surfaces

5 Say two things about each place/building in the pictures.

6 THINK! Which place would you like to visit? Why? Who else in the class shares the same opinion as you?

A Agra, India

Agra is a medieval city 1) the banks of the river Yamuna and is famous for having once 2) the capital of the Mughal empire. It has three World Heritage Sites from the Mughal era. The most important of these is the Taj Mahal, which is 3) only a World Heritage Site but is 4) one of the New Seven Wonders of the World. The Taj Mahal is a masterpiece of symmetry and when viewed 5) a distance appears to float in the air. It was originally built as a mausoleum for the favourite wife of one of the Mughal emperors. The other major sites of interest 6) the red sandstone Agra Fort, and the Fatehpur Sikri, a city built on the outskirts of Agra in the form of a Mughal military camp. Agra also has a long tradition 7) a centre of learning and literature.

C Vladimir, Russia

Vladimir, although traditionally accepted as having been established as a city in the early 12th century, has been inhabited 1) approximately 25,000 years. It was one of the medieval capitals of Russia and three of its buildings are World Heritage Sites. 2) the middle of the 12th to the early 13th century, Vladimir enjoyed immense growth and prosperity, 3) lasted until the Mongol invasion of Russia. After the Mongols, Vladimir 4) fully regained its former importance and went 5) decline. Today, the city is a significant tourist centre with many remarkable examples 6) pre-Mongol Russian architecture. The World Heritage buildings in the city 7) the magnificent five-domed Assumption Cathedral, the Cathedral of St Demetrius and the splendid Golden Gate.

B Yaroslavl, Russia

Established at the beginning of the 11th century, the historical centre of this city is a World Heritage Site. In the 17th century it 1) Russia's second largest city, and during the Polish occupation of Moscow it acted 2) the country's capital. Yaroslavl has many Orthodox shrines and monasteries located along the banks 3) the Volga River. The oldest building in Yaroslavl is the Transfiguration of the Saviour Monastery, parts of which date 4) to the 12th century. Yaroslavl is renowned for 5) 17th-century churches built of red brick with bright tiled exteriors, and for having some of the 6) impressive frescoes of the Golden Ring churches. Yaroslavl can also lay claim to having the oldest theatre in Russia. The Volkov Theatre was the first professional public theatre in the country and is still 7) use to this day.

D Bath, England

The city of Bath, a World Heritage Site, was originally founded 1) the Romans, who built baths and a temple around the natural hot springs that occur in this part of the Avon valley. But it was in the 18th century 2) Bath became one of the most fashionable places in England, as the aristocracy and the wealthy gathered there to enjoy the health benefits of the hot springs and the many theatres and 3) places of entertainment. The best preserved Roman site in the city is the Roman Baths complex, 4) features the Sacred Spring, the Roman Temple and the Roman Bath House. Despite the extensive damage the city sustained from bombing in World War II, 5) also has many fine examples of Georgian architecture in the Palladian revival style. 6) of the finest examples is The Circus, which is believed to have 7) inspired by the Colosseum in Rome.

- 1 Look at the picture. What kind of place do you think this is? Read the biography below to find out.

James Hilton

(1900–1954), was an English novelist who was born in England but spent his later life working in America. He wrote several best-selling novels including Goodbye Mr Chips (1934) and Lost Horizon (1933). Some of his novels have been made into famous films.

Hugh Conway, the hero of Lost Horizon, gets stranded with three other people when their plane crash lands. They are led to a beautiful monastery, Shangri-La, where they find peace and happiness.

- 2 Read the first paragraph. Where are the characters? How do you think they feel about being there? Read and check.

- 3 RNE Read the text again. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each statement correctly.

- 1 The atmosphere at the monastery made Conway
- A not notice how his friends were acting.
 - B feel bored and tired.
 - C stop caring about how he got there.
 - D feel uneasy about being there.
- 2 Conway didn't notice many details about the inside of the monastery, because
- A he was thinking more about having a bath.
 - B he was distracted by the view outside.
 - C the host quickly took them somewhere else.
 - D the Chinese man wanted them to stay outside.
- 3 In Barnard's opinion, the monastery
- A was the perfect place to relax.
 - B was better than he expected.
 - C had good and bad points.
 - D had everything he could want.

LOST HORIZON

- 4 Mallinson was
- A happy to stay at the monastery for a few days.
 - B rude to the Chinese host.
 - C worried that he would have to stay at the monastery.
 - D eager to organise how they would leave.
- 5 Conway was content that evening because
- A he and Chang were no longer arguing.
 - B he didn't have to think about anything.
 - C the bath facilities were very civilised.
 - D he was pleased with what he had found at the monastery.
- 6 What surprised Conway about the monastery was that it
- A had bath tubs and central heating.
 - B was traditionally furnished.
 - C had elements of two cultures.
 - D was comfortable and the people were friendly.

Conway never exactly remembered how he and the others arrived at the monastery, or how they were greeted and led into the grounds. The thin air was dream-like and matched the light blue of the sky. With every breath and every glance, he took in a deep relaxing feeling that made him unaware of Mallinson's uneasiness, Barnard's witty comments, and Miss Brinklow, who looked like a lady well prepared for the worst. He just about remembered being surprised at finding the inside of the monastery spacious, well warmed, and quite clean.

There was no time to do more than notice these qualities, for the Chinese had left his hooded chair and was already leading the way through different rooms. He was quite pleasant now. "I must apologise," he said, "for leaving you to yourselves on the way, but the truth is, journeys of that kind don't suit me, and I have to take care of myself. I hope you were not too tired?"

"We managed," replied Conway with a tight smile.

"Excellent. And now, if you will come with me, I will show you to your rooms. No doubt you would like baths. Our accommodation is simple, but comfortable, I hope."

At this point Barnard, who was still affected by shortness of breath, chuckled. "Well," he gasped, "I can't say I like your climate yet – the air seems to stick on my chest a bit – but you've certainly got a fine view out of your front windows. Do we all have to line up for the bathroom, or is this an American hotel?"

"I think you will find everything quite satisfactory, Mr Barnard."

Miss Brinklow nodded. "I should hope so, indeed."

"And afterwards," continued the Chinese, "I should be greatly honoured if you will all join me at dinner."

Conway replied politely. Only Mallinson had given no sign of his attitude in the face of these kind offers. Like Barnard, he had been suffering from breathing problems, but now, with an effort, he found breath to exclaim: "And afterwards, also, if you don't mind, we'll make our plans for getting away. The sooner the better, so far as I'm concerned."

"So you see," Chang was saying, "we are less barbarian than you expected."

Conway, later that evening, was not willing to argue. He was enjoying that pleasant feeling of his body being relaxed but his mind being awake, which seemed to him, of all feelings, the most truly civilised. So far, Shangri-La had been all that he could have wished, certainly more than he could ever have expected. It was not so strange for a Tibetan monastery to have a system of central heating, but that it should combine the baths and cleaning facilities from the Western part of the world with tradition from the Eastern world struck him as amazing and rare. The bath, for instance, in which he had recently bathed, had been of a light green pottery from America. Yet the native servant had washed him in a Chinese way of cleaning his ears and nostrils and under his lower eyelids. He had wondered at the time if – and how – his three companions were receiving similar treatment.

Conway had lived for nearly ten years in China, not wholly in the bigger cities; and he counted it, all things considered, the happiest part of his life. He liked the Chinese, and felt at home with Chinese ways. He really liked Chinese cooking, with its subtle undertones of taste; and his first meal at Shangri-La had been familiar.

- 7 As a result of Conway's time in China, he
- A knew the monastery was not from the Eastern world.
 - B preferred to be in the monastery rather than in a big city.
 - C did not find the food at the monastery strange.
 - D did not really feel at home at the monastery.

Kate's Summer Holiday

I love going on holiday and every year my family and I stay on Gran Canaria. We stay in a lively resort with many restaurants, bars and night clubs. It is a very exciting place, with plenty to do for the whole family during the day and night. It's really a lot like being back at home in England.

We set off from Gatwick Airport in London. I love flying. Mum and dad are always tired when we get to the island, but I head straight to the beach and try out all the water sports. I also love the water park, which is a 10-minute drive from our hotel. I also spend a lot of time in the many souvenir shops, buying gifts for friends back home.

In the evening, we usually take our hired car into town. We have dinner at a restaurant that specialises in American food favourites, then we drive back to the beach and search for the nearest place to watch a karaoke competition.

Reading

Match the headings (A-H) to extracts 1-7. Use each heading only once. There is one extra heading you do not need to use. Write your answers in the table.

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| A Animals help | E An educational option |
| B Plenty of school places | F A truly modern education |
| C Schooling could be difficult | G Loyal animals |
| D A tradition of sharing food | H Sharing a special meal |

① Dining out is one of life's great pleasures. What could be nicer than going to a fancy restaurant with family and friends? Nowadays, there are restaurants to suit every taste, from Indian to Chinese to Thai. The huge variety ensures that friends can easily find somewhere they all want to go for dinner with an exciting difference.

② To many people, living on a farm, far away from the hustle and bustle of the city, would be a dream come true. And in many ways it is. In rural areas, there is plenty of fresh air to breathe and one is never too far from the wonders of nature. On the other hand, schools and work places could be many miles away from where you live.

③ It has recently been proven that pet owners are happier and less anxious than those people who do not have pets. The study has also shown that people with dogs, cats or other animals in their homes may even live longer. It seems that having an animal around has far more advantages than anyone had ever expected.

④ The popularity of home-schooling is increasing in parts of the US and Canada. Years ago, children who lived in isolated rural areas had no choice but to study at home, taught by their parents or a tutor. Times have changed, however, and now there are also children living in cities who do not go to school, but receive their schooling from their parents or online.

⑥ The lion, commonly called the King of the Jungle, is a beautiful animal. The male, with his huge mane of fur around his face, is indeed majestic. The female, although she has no mane, is also wonderful in her own way. Lions tend to mate for life, and they raise their young together.

⑦ City life is not for everyone. Of course, if you live in a big modern city there are lots of opportunities to get a job or find a school for your children. On the other hand, there is a lot of crime in cities and, in addition, pollution from cars and factories is steadily getting worse.

To Stella Madison, the date 25 May 2007 would stand 1) in her mind forever. People remember certain dates for a variety of reasons. Maybe it is because they were promoted, or they got married, or even because they won a lot of money. None of these things, however, was the 2) why Stella remembered her red-letter day.

On 25 May 2007, Stella graduated from university. Of course, it is not 3) for people to complete university. For Stella, though, it was something truly special because nobody thought she would 4) do it. As a young student in primary school, Stella often misbehaved in class and she rarely got good marks on her exams, but she did much better in secondary school.

Not too long after that Stella got married. She had two children and the years just seemed to 5) by. Before Stella knew it, she was almost fifty and had three wonderful grandchildren. Her house was empty, though, and Stella was often sad and alone. Boredom seemed to be her constant companion.

One morning Stella woke up and realised she could not face another day with nothing to do but 6) the dishes and mop the floors. She contacted the local college and asked about taking classes. The guidance counsellor helped Stella fill in all the application 7) and she was accepted at a well-known university in the city. After three years and a lot of very hard work, Stella had done it. On 25 May 2007, she received her degree.

Listening - Part 3

You will hear a man talking about his childhood. For statements 1-7, choose A, B or C to complete each statement correctly. You will hear the recording twice.

- 1 The narrator says that as a child he
A lived on a farm in the country.
B enjoyed playing in fields.
C wanted to be a farmer.
- 2 The farm the narrator describes
A was a very large one.
B was close to houses.
C had a lot of cows on it.
- 3 The narrator was fascinated by the spring because
A he couldn't understand how the animals got there.
B there were so many different things to do there.
C he liked sheltering under the trees around it.
- 4 The dams that the children made
A were always destroyed by Mr Jones.
B followed a professional design.
C had to allow some water to pass.
- 5 The tree the narrator used to climb was unusual because
A it was a peculiar shape.
B he could hide in it.
C it didn't have a name.
- 6 The children avoided going to Third Field and Fourth Field mainly because
A it took too long to get to them.
B they were dirtier than the others.
C the cows in the fields frightened them.
- 7 The narrator thinks that children today
A miss out on a lot of simple pleasures.
B have better lives than he did as a child.
C are lucky that they can now play golf.

Speaking

Task 1 (3–3.5 minutes)

Give a talk on public transport.

Remember to discuss:

- whether public transport is important to everyday life, and why.
- how reliable public transport is in serving your community, give examples.
- whether public transport is a better way to travel than using your own vehicle, give reasons.
- how using public transport is related to environmental issues.

You will have to talk for 1.5–2 minutes. The examiner will listen until you have finished. Then he/she will ask you some questions.

Writing - Part 1

You have 20 minutes to do this task.

You have received a letter from your English-speaking pen friend Sarah, who writes:

... Next week at our college, local companies are coming to talk to us about employment opportunities. Do you receive any career advice?

Have you decided what job you would like to do in the future? I am considering becoming a Maths teacher. What subject would you choose to teach?

My grandfather is staying with us at the moment ...

Write a letter to Sarah.

In your letter

- answer her questions
- ask 3 questions about her grandfather's visit

Write 100–140 words.

Remember the rules of letter writing.

3 RNE Read the article about a storm chaser again. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each statement correctly.

Into the eye of the Storm

There's a change in the sky, the clouds are gathering and there's a rumble and howl in the distance. It first appears on the horizon – a funnel of violent air that rips through everything in its path. It's a tornado, one of nature's most destructive forces. It can pick up cars, rip trees out of the ground and demolish houses. Most of us would panic at this point, hide in the house, lock the door and crawl under the kitchen table. But Warren Faidley grabs his camera, jumps in his car and heads right for the storm. Warren Faidley is a storm chaser and makes his living by getting as close to tornadoes as possible to capture them in photographs or on video.

Warren's photographs of the wild beauty and terrifying effects of extreme weather conditions have been used on posters and promotional material by celebrities like Sheryl Crow and Paul McCartney. Some sell for up to $20,000. Also, the video footage he takes has been shown on television around the world and he's even worked as a consultant in Hollywood on the feature film that best depicts his way of life, Twister.

Faidley's first chase nearly killed him and taught him something that has stayed with him to this day. "When I was twelve I was swept away by a flash flood in Tucson, Arizona. I was conducting my first 'chase' along the banks of a swiftly flowing river. Suddenly, the bank gave way and I fell into the floodwaters. I was carried under water and held my breath. Then my foot found a rock, allowing me to stick my head above the water. That single event had a profound effect on my life – I knew I had to live life to the fullest."

He soon moved on to more profitable pursuits. "About a year after my near-death experience, I decided to ride my bike into the centre of a large dust devil, a much smaller type of tornado. After that, I formed a gang of local kids and we'd chase after these mini-tornadoes. It was experiences such as these that gave me the confidence that eventually led to my first job, collecting deadly scorpions. The heavy rain storms drove them out of their hiding places and I dodged the lightning bolts, collected the scorpions and sold them to an old man who put them into plastic paperweights to sell by the side of the road. Eventually, some of the parents found out about my near drowning, scorpion trade and dust devil adventures. The majority of the local kids were banned from hanging out with me."

He goes on to say: "Chasing is extremely dangerous – especially when I started and there was no on-board radar to show us where and when the tornado would hit, and no pre-existing chase instructions. One recent scary event occurred when I was fleeing a terrible storm in Texas. The winds became so intense the chase truck could hardly move; rocks were being lifted and smashed into the windshield*. I was literally being sucked into the tornado!" Of course, he survived to tell the tale.

Some motion picture companies have made inquiries into making a film based on his adventures, but Faidley says: "I'm not committed to anything yet. I've devoted my life to chasing, sold my soul to those pursuits and turned them into a million-dollar career. I'm going to be very careful about giving it away."

Faidley's photography has been greatly admired. He explains, "As an artist, I'm always looking for that perfect shot. Someone once said: 'Artists seek perfection in their work to make up for imperfections in their lives.' That fits me. I've given up on any kind of serious personal life or family and dedicated my life to my work. Chasing involves so many things I enjoy in life: adventure, danger, travel, science, friendships and, of course, the excitement."

- A which they found could travel across entire oceans
- B as the songs had generated money to fund his research
- C which he described as "exuberant, awesome, uninterrupted rivers of sound"
- D and many whale species were dangerously close to extinction
- E which turned out to be very lucky
- F which was under threat from mankind
- G in order to examine them for pollutants

3 Match the words in bold in the text to these meanings.

- unforgettable • prove • skill • only one • ban
- trouble • huge • base • insects like butterflies
- whale fat

Biologist and leading conservationist Roger Payne is the man who discovered that whales sing and that their songs can be heard across entire oceans.

In 1967, a young post-doctoral biologist named Roger Payne travelled to Bermuda to see the humpback whales that he had been told regularly passed by the island. An expert in how bats and moths use sound to locate their prey, Payne had recently resolved to use his expertise in animal acoustics to help this species, 1. The decision, Payne says, had come about because of his increasing concern about man's destruction of the natural world.

Whilst in Bermuda, Payne met a man named Frank Watlington. It was a chance encounter 2. Watlington was using underwater microphones in his job for the US Navy and told Payne that every now and then his microphones would pick up strange sounds. Watlington told Payne that his guess was that the sounds were coming from whales.

From this chance meeting, Payne, together with fellow researcher Scott McVay, went on to confirm not only that the sounds on Watlington's microphones were from humpback whales, but that the sounds were in fact songs, 3.

Listening

4  Listen as you read the text again. Then choose the correct word to complete the summary below.

Roger Payne is a biologist who has taken a particular interest in the 1) humpback/white whale. He first encountered the animals on a visit to 2) Bermuda/Britain in 1967. It was during this visit that he met Frank Watlington, who told him that he had picked up strange sounds on the underwater 3) microphones/loudspeakers he used in his job for the United States 4) Army/Navy. Payne suspected that these sounds might be made by the whales, and he started a research programme into the phenomenon with his 5) friend/colleague, Scott McVay. They discovered that Payne's suspicions were correct, and that the sounds were in fact 6) songs/words that could be heard over 7) tremendous/short distances. Having made the discovery, Payne released a recording of the sounds which became very popular with 8) scientists/the public and helped bring about the foundation of the 'Save the Whales' movement.

Save the whales

At the time of Payne and McVay's discovery, commercial whaling was still in full force. Tens of thousands of whales were being hunted and killed every year by nations across the world 4 .

Payne decided to release a recording of the long and haunting humpback whale songs, 5 . This unique recording was an instant hit with the public. The joyful sounds of whales singing to each other as they played in the ocean placed the plight of these enormous but gentle creatures firmly at the forefront of the public's mind. It helped lay the foundation for the launch of the 'Save the Whales' movement, which was instrumental in bringing about an end to commercial whaling. In 1986, the International Whaling Commission (IWC) passed a moratorium on whaling. The humpback whale stocks have partially recovered since then, but they are still an endangered species.

Today, Payne is still turning to this magnificent creature to show mankind his folly. He has recently collected many tiny skin and blubber samples from sperm whales 6 . Preliminary studies have shown terrifying levels of man-made poisons are present in the samples. Payne hopes that when the results are made public it will turn the whale into a symbol of how mankind is poisoning the oceans. For a second time, Payne looks set to make the whale an icon of the plight of our times.

5 Complete the phrases with the words in the list. Choose five phrases and make sentences using them.

- starting a fire illegally

2 The next time you go to your local supermarket take a minute to look and see if there is something different about it. The local council, supported by a government grant, has installed ten recycling machines in supermarkets in the area. The machines only work with returnable bottles, and when one is deposited in the machine the depositor receives ten pence for their effort. It is hoped that where concern for the environment has not persuaded people to recycle, money might.

3 22-year-old Rowan Peters was sentenced to six months in prison yesterday at Carlisle Crown Court. Found guilty of an act of arson that resulted in the destruction of over 1,000 hectares of valuable woodland, Peters continued to proclaim his innocence. To most people gathered outside the court, Peters' sentence was far too light and really counted as no more than a slap on the wrist for such an irresponsible and dangerous act.

4 Clydesdale Mews in the west of the city is sparkling this morning after a massive weekend clean-up by locals. Sick and tired of the rubbish littering their streets and parks, the people of the area, many of whom have lived there their whole lives, decided to get together to do something about it once and for all. Old and young alike turned out to participate in the clean-up. When asked about it, Mr Kline, an elderly resident, said, "Now, that's the stuff. We have always loved the area, and after this weekend we have even more reason to do so. Everywhere is as neat as a pin, just like in the old days!"

5 Scientists have announced that a type of West African monkey, Miss Waldron's red colobus, has probably become extinct. This large monkey is the first primate to vanish since the 19th century. Despite a series of searches conducted by anthropologists over a six-year period, no evidence of even one remaining monkey was found. Wildlife experts were unsurprised, as the last confirmed sighting of a Miss Waldron's red colobus was over 20 years ago and it was listed as endangered back in 1988.

6 Hurricane winds ripped through areas of Florida yesterday, causing millions of dollars' worth of damage. Homeowners in the state complained to the media that the local meteorological office and weather stations had given them little time to prepare for the hurricane. An expert on climate change, Stan Wren, issued a harsh warning that yesterday's hurricane was not simply a force of Mother Nature, but the product of man's continuing disrespect for the environment. He went on to say that we should be prepared to expect more surprises in the future.

7 Concerned conservationists rushed to the mouth of St Stephen's River late this afternoon after receiving reports that a young whale had beached itself. The desperate situation suddenly took a turn for the better when the water level began to rise and the whale managed, with the help of onlookers, to free itself and escape to deeper water. Once its sense of direction had returned, it turned and headed back out to sea. It seems that sometimes sonar signals from boats can confuse the young whales, and they become separated from their pod, or family group.

6 Complete the phrases with the words in the list. Choose five phrases and make sentences using them.

• worth • situation • neat • woodland • government • once
• series • proclaim • sonar • slap

- | | |
|----------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 1 valuable | 6 his innocence |
| 2 a on the wrist | 7 signals |
| 3 grant | 8 and for all |
| 4 as as a pin | 9 millions of dollars' |
| 5 a of searches | 10 desperate |

7 Read the texts again. Which ones describe people helping the environment? Which do you think is the best idea? Give reasons. Then translate texts 1 and 7 into Russian.

Speaking

- 8 Imagine you are a student from St Mark's School. Describe your experience and your feelings about it to your partner.

Writing

- 9 Write an email to your English-speaking pen friend about the day. You should say what you did, why you did it and how you feel about it.

SEA Turtles

From the moment they first enter the sea, male sea turtles never return to land and females only leave the sea to (1) their eggs. When mature, the females return every two to four years to the area (2) they were born. This may involve a journey of many thousands of kilometres. The turtle crawls on the beach and digs a hole in the sand with her back flippers for her eggs. After about 2 months, the eggs (3) The baby turtles dig their way to the surface, then at night, they emerge (4) the nest and head for the sea. They dive into a wave and swim for a day or two without stopping, in order to get away from the dangers of land and (5) waters. And there certainly are dangers. Apart from people, various animals love to eat baby sea turtles. Ninety percent are (6) by seabirds, crabs and large fish. To make matters worse, street lighting near beaches can confuse them to the (7) that they actually head away from the sea.

Unit 4.8

Speaking Skills

Student A:

Task 1 (3–3.5 minutes)

Give a talk about the best way to stay healthy.

Remember to discuss:

- the benefits of exercise
- the effects of good diet/nutrition on health
- the importance of regular health checks
- what you do to keep in good health

Making Suggestions (I)

- Why not ... ?
- You could try ...
- You might want to ...
- Perhaps you should ...
- A good idea might be to ...

You will have to talk for 1.5–2 minutes. Student B will listen until you have finished. Then he/she will ask you some questions.

Questions for Student B

- Are leisure activities and free time important for good health?
- Are people healthier today than they were in the past?
- Are young people concerned about health issues? In what way?
- Do young people need to be educated more about how to stay healthy?
- Do you think your lifestyle is healthy? Why/why not?
- What could you do to be healthier?

Listen to a model answer. What does the speaker say about the benefits of good nutrition and exercise?

Task 2 (3–4 minutes)

You and your friend have been asked to organise a special event for Health Week at your school. You can choose from:

- a cooking healthy food workshop
- a talk advising on how to beat stress
- a sport and keep fit day
- a walk in the countryside

Discuss the options with your friend and choose the one you both prefer the most. You begin the conversation. Student B will play the part of your friend.

Listen to a model answer. What do the speakers agree on? What reasons do they give?

Remember to:

- discuss all the options
- be polite
- take an active part in the conversation
- come up with ideas
- give good reasons
- find out about your friend's opinions and take them into account
- invite your friend to come up with suggestions
- come to an agreement

Agreeing

- Yes, that would be great, because ...
- That's a good point, as ...
- I would have to agree ...
- I think you're absolutely right ...

Student B:

Task 1 (3 – 3.5 minutes)

Give a talk on how we can protect the environment.

Remember to discuss:

- how pollution can be reduced
- the importance of protecting the countryside
- what people can do personally to help – saving energy, recycling, not wasting water, using public transport more, etc
- what the government should do – pass laws, run awareness campaigns etc

Making Suggestions (2)

- One idea might be to ...
- We could ...
- Then we might ...
- Also, we could try ...

You will have to talk for 1.5 – 2 minutes. Student A will listen until you have finished. Then he/she will ask you some questions.

Questions for Student A

- Do you think you could do more to help protect the environment?
- Are young people today concerned about environmental issues? Why/Why not?
- What would be the best way to increase people's awareness of environmental issues?
- Do you think the world's environmental problems will be solved in the future?
- What environmental issue affects your life the most?
- Who is to blame for the world's environmental problems?

 Listen to a model answer. What does the speaker say about what the government should do and how people can help.

Task 2 (3 – 4 minutes)

You and your friend have been asked to organise a special event during the Environment Week being held at your school. You can choose from:

- a clean up the park/beach day
- a workshop on how to make homes more environmentally friendly
- a morning planting trees in the local park
- an afternoon collecting money for a local environmental group

Discuss the options with your friend and choose the one you both prefer the most. You begin the conversation. Student A will play the part of your friend.

 Listen to a model answer. What do the speakers decide on? What reasons do they give?

Remember to:

- discuss all the options
- be polite
- take an active part in the conversation
- come up with ideas
- give good reasons
- find out about your friend's opinions and take them into account

- invite your friend to come up with suggestions
- come to an agreement

Disagreeing

- I'm afraid I don't agree, because ...
- Actually, I don't think so.
- It's a good idea, but ...
- You have a point, although ...

Unit 4.9

Writing: Argumentative

- An argumentative essay is a piece of formal or semi-formal writing. It can be:
 - a for-and-against essay in which we discuss the advantages and disadvantages of a specific topic
 - an opinion essay in which we present our opinion on a particular topic
 - an essay providing solutions to problems in which we discuss a problem and its causes as well as the expected results or consequences of our suggestions

Argumentative writing can be used in letters to someone in authority (e.g. a local politician, the editor of a newspaper etc).

- Before starting to write your essay you should first make a plan.
- In an argumentative essay, quotations are a particularly useful way to start or end your piece of writing. Use a dictionary of quotations to help you and include the name and, if necessary, the occupation of the person you are quoting.
- You should use a different paragraph for each point you make. Begin each paragraph with a topic sentence which summarises the main idea of the paragraph. Give examples to support your point of view in the rest of the paragraph.
- When you write your essay use: formal/semi-formal vocabulary: e.g. It is advisable, and mild language e.g. In my opinion, and formal linkers e.g. therefore, although, however etc. Don't use: everyday colloquial language or short forms e.g. why don't you ... ?, strong, personal language e.g. I am sure and strong feelings e.g. It is impossible to disagree with me.

Useful Expressions and Linking Words/Phrases

- to list and add points: In the first place, To start/begin with, Secondly, Thirdly, Finally, In addition (to this), Furthermore, Moreover, Besides etc
- to introduce or list advantages: The main/first/most important advantage of ... , One/Another/An additional advantage of ... , One point of view in favour of ... , It is often suggested/ believed/argued that ... , Some/Many people suggest/feel/argue that ... , Some/ Many people are in favour of/are convinced that ... etc

- to introduce examples/reasons/results: for example/ instance, such as, like, in particular, therefore, for this reason, because, as, since, as a result etc.
- to show contrast: On the other hand, However, still, but, Nonetheless, Nevertheless, Although, Even though, Despite/In spite of (the fact that), ... etc
- to introduce a conclusion: In conclusion, To conclude/sum up, All in all, Finally, Lastly, All things considered, Taking everything into account/ consideration, ... etc

1 Match the quotations to the essay topics.

QUOTATIONS

- 1 "The toughest thing about success is that you've got to keep on being a success."
Irving Berlin (US composer)
- 2 "Boxing is just show business with blood."
Frank Bruno (British boxer)
- 3 "Art is much less important than life; but what a poor life without it!"
Robert Motherwell (US artist)
- 4 "It's not how old you are, it's how hard you work on it."
Jonah Barrington (Irish squash player)
- 5 "The process of living is the process of reacting to stress."
Dr Stanley Sarnoff (US physiologist)
- 6 "In our factory we make cosmetics. In the store we sell hope."

THE PROS AND CONS OF PACKAGE HOLIDAYS

TOPICS

- a Describe the role of art in life.
- b What are the problems that come with ageing and what can be done about them?
- c "Beauty is only skin deep." Do you agree?
- d What are the advantages and disadvantages of becoming famous?
- e Stress and anxiety can lead to early death. Why is this and what can we do about it?
- f What is the point of learning? Discuss.
- g How do the mass media affect people's lives? Discuss.
- h Violent sports should be banned. Discuss.

- Model Analysis

2 a) Read the rubric and answer the questions.

You have had a class discussion about different types of holidays. Now your teacher has asked you to write an essay giving your views on the following statement.

There are both pros and cons to choosing a package holiday.
Write your essay.

- 1 What are you going to write about?
- 2 Who is going to read your piece of writing?
- 3 What advantages/disadvantages of package holidays can you think of?
- 4 What style of writing should you use?

b) Read the two models and decide which one is the best. Justify your decision.

c) Underline the topic sentences in the main body paragraphs in Model 1. Replace them with other appropriate ones.

MODEL 1

Without doubt, package holidays are the most popular type of holiday. However, tourists must carefully weigh up the good and bad points before choosing one.

A package holiday certainly has its advantages. Firstly, it makes booking a holiday easy. The travel agent arranges the flights, accommodation, meals and sometimes the activities, which are all booked and paid for in advance. Secondly, there is a wide range of holidays to popular destinations on offer. Everything from a safari in Kenya to a walking holiday in the Lake District is available. Furthermore, package holidays are cheap. Travel agents are able to offer package deals which are much cheaper than any holiday an individual could arrange for themselves.

However, there are also some disadvantages. To start with, tourists often stay in the resort complex to take advantage of the facilities and avoid additional expense. This means that they do not visit local attractions or learn about the people and culture of the country. In addition, choices are limited on a package holiday. For example, if the entertainment or food provided is not to the traveller's taste, they must put up with it or pay extra for an alternative.

To sum up, package holidays have both pros and cons. On the one hand, they are cheap and convenient, but on the other hand they can be restrictive.

MODEL 2

Package holidays are the best type of holidays. There are so many advantages to booking a package holiday and very few disadvantages.

First of all, it couldn't be easier. The travel agent makes all the arrangements and the flights, hotel and meals are included and paid for ahead of time. Also, there is a wide choice of destinations. Finally, package holidays are cheap. Travel agents are able to get huge discounts for bulk bookings that individuals cannot. Therefore, they can offer package deals that cost less than the sum of the individual parts. They pass these discounts on to you and me, and so we can go on a cruise around the Med or a safari in Kenya or skiing holiday in the Alps for a reasonable price.

All in all, it is easy to see why package holidays are so popular. They are the cheapest and easiest option.

3 Look at the words in bold in the models above. Which: list points? conclude? link similar ideas? add points? make contrasting points? Replace them with other appropriate words or phrases.

Unit 4.10

Writing: Argumentative

- Expressing Arguments For and Against a Topic

When you express arguments for and against a topic you should present both views in equal detail. Do not give your own opinion. End with a well-balanced consideration of the points discussed.

PLAN

Introduction

Para 1 Introduce the topic

Main Body

Para 2 Give the arguments in favour of the statement, with justifications/examples

Para 3 Give the arguments against the statement, with justifications/examples

Conclusion

Final para Give a well-balanced summary of the topic

- 1 Read the rubric and the model. What is the function of each paragraph?

You have had a class discussion about shopping. Now your teacher has asked you to write an essay on the following question: What are the advantages and disadvantages of online shopping? Write your essay.

The Advantages and Disadvantages of Online Shopping

1 These days lots of people shop online. Everything from designer clothes to groceries can be bought on the Internet and delivered to our doors. Is this as good as it sounds?

2 Online shopping has some obvious advantages. To start with, you can shop from the comfort of your own home. This makes life easier, as we can avoid the crowds and traffic and there are no heavy bags to carry. Secondly, it is quick and easy to shop online. You can visit a number of different websites in no time at all and order at the click of a button.

3 However, there are also some disadvantages. Firstly, online shopping can put you at risk of credit card fraud. You must ensure that you only use reputable sites and be very careful with your credit card details, or someone else may be able to use your credit card. Secondly, pictures on a computer screen may not live up to your expectations. As you cannot touch or examine things before you buy them, you may be disappointed when your purchase arrives.

4 All in all, there are both advantages and disadvantages to shopping online. It is easy and convenient, but it is also risky and we should consider all the pros and cons before we consider doing it.

- 2 List the arguments for and against. How does the writer justify his/her points? Complete the table.

FOR

Main Body (Para 2)

Arguments

1 can shop from home

Justifications/Examples

1 avoid crowded shops and traffic

- 3 Replace the topic sentences in the main body paragraphs with other appropriate ones.

- 4 a) Match the arguments to the justifications. Which are for? Which are against?

Fame: a blessing or a curse?

Arguments	Justifications
1 <input type="checkbox"/> have lots of money	a they are welcome wherever they go
2 <input type="checkbox"/> never sure whether people really like them	b celebrities followed everywhere by photographers
3 <input type="checkbox"/> people adore them	c can have comfortable life
4 <input type="checkbox"/> complete lack of privacy	d can lead to sense of isolation

b) Use the ideas in Ex. 4a and appropriate linking words to complete the main body paragraphs below.

There are many advantages to being famous. ...

 However, there are certain drawbacks to being famous.

• Techniques for Introductions and Conclusions

In order to grab the reader's attention and make them want to continue reading, the first paragraph should:

- start with an objective statement: e.g. It has been shown that violence on television affects children from a young age.
- make reference to a strange scene or situation: e.g. The sight of hundreds of flying fish ...
- address the reader directly: e.g. Have you ever considered what life would be like without water?
- start with a quotation or rhetorical question (question which requires no answer): e.g. Is all this worth the lack of privacy?
- start with a problem that needs a solution: e.g. More and more species are becoming extinct ...

The last paragraph should:

- give the reader something to consider: e.g. Things would be different if ...
- summarise the article: e.g. To conclude, ...
- end with a quotation or a rhetorical question: e.g. "All's fair in love and war." "To be or not to be?"
- end with an objective statement: e.g. Many people believe that the future of our planet is the most serious issue of life today.

5 Match the introductions to the conclusions. Which techniques are used in each?

Introductions

- 1 Increased drug use among young people today is a problem that must be tackled by society if it is to be prevented from causing more damage than it already has.
- 2 There can be no doubt that television is the sole cause of the breakdown of modern society and that it has absolutely no beneficial effect upon a child's development.
- 3 What can be done to protect our cities from environmental pollution? Over the past decade, our cities and towns have become more polluted than ever and this is a trend that looks set to continue.
- 4 Have you ever considered emigrating to another country with a warmer climate where it hardly ever rains? This tempting prospect has been on many people's minds this winter as we face endless, cold, damp days stuck indoors.

Conclusions

- a To conclude, it seems that the only way to improve the quality of our surroundings is to work together to protect the environment. Unless this is done, many cities and towns will have become uninhabitable within the next fifty years.
- b If something is not done soon, an alarming increase in the number of young drug users is inevitable, which will undoubtedly have a harmful effect upon society as a whole.
- c The negative role that television plays in the development of a child can be summed up with a quotation from the Hungarian author, George Mikes, who said: "Television is of great educational value. It teaches you while still young how to (a) kill, (b) rob, (c) shoot, (d) poison, and (e) how to grow up into a gangster by the time you leave school."
- d On balance, it must be said that although moving abroad sounds like an end to all our problems, often it is not. In many cases, it can be far more difficult than living in Britain, mainly due to the fact that it involves taking on a whole new culture and way of life.

6 a) What techniques has the writer used to begin/end the essay in Ex. 1?

b) Replace the beginning/ending with another technique. Compare answers with a partner.

7 Read the rubric. Then write your essay.

Rice terraces of the Philippine Cordilleras

The rice terraces of the Philippine Cordilleras are man-made terraces, 2,000 to 6,000 years old, carved into the Cordillera mountain range of Luzon island in the Philippines. A UNESCO World Heritage Site, the terraces are so extraordinary that many people regard them as the 'eighth wonder of the world'. Rising majestically from deep valleys to altitudes of 1,500m, these spectacular structures 1) painstakingly carved out of the harsh mountain terrain by ancient tribes of people using nothing more 2) primitive hand tools. They are an absolutely astounding testament to man's engineering genius and span some 10,500 sq km. 3) placed end to end, archaeologists estimate they would encircle half the globe.

Tragically, a series of factors including environmental degradation, erosion, and neglect 4) the indigenous culture are threatening the survival of the terraces. Many of the once green and fertile terraces now sit as eroded grasslands 5) to lack of care, as rice farming has fallen out of favour with the younger generation. The situation is so serious that UNESCO has placed the terraces 6) its 'endangered sites' list.

Fortunately, the gravity of the situation is realised. In 1993, the Ifugao Rice Terraces Commission was created to save the terraces from total devastation.

Currently, terrace rehabilitation and preservation programs, as 7)

Herman Melville

(1819–1891) was an American writer who wrote novels, short stories and poetry. In 1839, he went sailing for a year and a half around South America and afterwards joined the Navy. His first two books, Typee (1846) and Omoo (1847), were about his travel adventures. His most famous book, Moby Dick (1851), is about a white whale that destroys a ship and bites off a man's leg. The man, Captain Ahab, is now setting sail with his crew to find the whale and get revenge.

"What do you see?" cried Ahab, looking up to the sky. "Nothing, nothing, sir!" was the reply. "The sails! Raise the sails on both sides!" After the sails were set, Ahab was lifted up to the main mast. When he was almost at the top, he peered between the sails and cried, "There she blows! – there she blows! A hump like a snowy-hill! It is Moby Dick!"

When they heard the cry, which seemed to come from the three lookouts, the men on the deck rushed to see the famous whale that they had been searching for. Ahab was now at the top and higher than the other lookouts. Tashtego was standing just beneath him on the top of the lower mast, 1 . From this height the whale could now be seen some mile or so ahead, with every wave revealing his high hump 2 . To the men on board it seemed like the same silent spout they had seen so long ago in the moonlit Atlantic and Indian Oceans.

"And did none of you see it before?" cried Ahab, asking the men all around him.

"I saw him almost that same instant, sir, 3 .

"Not the same instant; not the same – no, the whale is mine, Fate kept the whale for me. There she blows! – there she blows! – there she blows! There again! – there again!" he cried, in long, drawn-out tones, in the same rhythm of the whale's water jets. "He's going to make a sound! Take down the top sails! Stand by the boats. Mr. Starbuck, remember, stay on board, and keep the ship safe. Are the boats there ready? Bring me down, Mr. Starbuck; lower, lower – quick, quicker!" 4 .

"He is heading straight into the wind, sir," cried Stubb, "right away from us; he cannot have seen the ship yet."

"Be silent, man! Stand by the ropes! Boats, boats!"

Soon all the boats but Starbuck's were ready 5 . With swiftness they sailed into the wind, with Ahab taking charge. A pale glimmer lit up Fedallah's tired eyes and he bit his lip.

Like noiseless shells, the little boats sped through the sea 6 . It was like a meadow, it was so smooth. At length the hunter came so near to his prey that his entire hump was visible. Ahab saw the big wrinkles of the head and the glistening white shadow from the broad forehead. The blue waters flowed behind him and bright bubbles came up by his side but were popped by the feet of birds on the sea. A tall but broken pole of a spear was stuck in the white whale's back.

4 In pairs, write a list of things that must be done to improve the condition of the environment and reduce global warming. Share your ideas with the class.

Global Warming

Global warming is a hot topic that shows little sign of cooling down. The Earth's climate is changing, but precisely how – or even if – we can stop the process is uncertain. Over the last century, average global temperatures have increased by approximately one degree, while in Alaska, North-Western Canada and Eastern Russia it is believed average temperatures have increased by as much as three to four degrees. In the Northern Hemisphere, the spring thaw occurs nine days earlier and the winter freeze happens about ten days later than it did 150 years ago, and the last two decades have been the warmest ever recorded since the mid-1800s.

Global warming has serious repercussions for life on the planet. One immediate result is that many animal species are fighting for survival. One example is the polar bear population that lives in the Hudson Bay area of Northern Manitoba. The reduction in ice, as well as a shorter winter season, means that the bears have a reduced hunting period. For some bears, their yearly food intake has decreased by as much as ten kilograms. Some of them are not able to survive the summer fast because they have not stored enough energy to sustain themselves. They need the ice to cover the sea during the winter months so they can hunt for seals, their main source of food. However, the sea ice is melting and breaking up because of global warming. Glaciers and icebergs are receding and disappearing at alarming rates. Studies suggest that the West Hudson Bay polar bear population has decreased by as much as 20 percent in just 10 years.

Warmer weather in the region also has a cataclysmic effect on female bears and their maternity dens. Many dens collapse in the spring, due to heavy rains, and trap the mothers and their cubs. In some instances, the increased temperatures melt the frozen ground where the dens are located, also causing them to collapse. Unless the mother and cubs are rescued, most of these animals die.

If we continue to do nothing to reduce the emission of greenhouse gases and continue to pollute our environment, ice conditions in the Hudson Bay area will not be able to sustain and support its population of polar bears, and we will have forced yet another species into extinction.

The Mariinsky Ballet

The Mariinsky Ballet is one of the world's leading ballet companies. It was established in St Petersburg in 1740 to provide amusement for the Imperial court, 1

In the 19th century the company really began to make its mark on the world under the direction of the choreographer, Marius Petipa. He created some of the company's greatest full-length ballets, 2 Many of these ballets, such as The Sleeping Beauty and The Nutcracker, are still popular today.

The 1917 revolution looked like the end of classical ballet in Russia 3 Also, some of the ballet's most famous stars left Russia to continue their careers abroad, 4 But it wasn't long before the Mariinsky company gained recognition in the Soviet era under the new name of The Kirov Ballet.

Agrippina Vaganova was one of the people 5 This renowned teacher trained many of the company's stars, including the two prima ballerina assolutas of the Soviet era, Maya Plisetskaya and Galina Ulanova. The ballet school of the Mariinsky company was named after Vaganova not long after her death in the 1950's.

Today, the Mariinsky/Kirov Ballet continues to delight ballet fans around the world with its spectacular productions. There are not many ballet companies with a history as long and illustrious as this one's. A visit to the Mariinsky is well worth it 6 You won't regret it.

A Supervolcano is a large scale volcanic 2) which is much greater than any that have taken place in historic times. The last time such a massive volcano occurred was more than 25,000 years ago.

This type of event would be 3) for the planet, as it would cause long-lasting weather changes which could trigger another Ice Age and lead to the extinction of many species.

One area that 4) suspect may be the scene of the next Supervolcano is Yellowstone National Park in the United States.

The Yellowstone volcano is most famous for its spectacular Old Faithful geyser, which shoots a large column of water into the air every ninety minutes. But what has interested scientists is that 5) there has been an increased amount of activity within the volcano.

Many 6) have been offered for the cause of this activity, including the possibility of another Supervolcano. But as these happen only every 600,000 to 800,000 years, most scientists think we are safe – for the time being.

The Designer

"But why do you want to be a fashion designer? You could go to any university in the country with the grades you've got and you want to go to fashion school?" Tanya bowed her head further over the piece of silk she was working on and continued to sew the small bright beads onto the fine cloth with quiet determination. She knew her father was exasperated with her decision but it wasn't going to affect her resolve in any way. He could question her over and over and insist on the ridiculousness of the idea but she was going to be a fashion designer no matter what. It was all she had ever wanted to do.

Tanya thought back to when she had first picked up a needle and thread. Her grandmother, like many women of her generation, had made most of her own clothes and when Tanya was very small she had loved to watch her cutting the cloth and stitching it together with meticulous skill. Bit by bit, under her grandmother's careful instruction, she had learned the craft herself. She had started with simple outfits for her dolls and had progressed to the point where even her grandmother said she was much better than her at making clothes.

Once she had mastered the basic skills Tanya had become adventurous and started designing her own creations. She had a wild sense of colour and liked to make clothes that stood out for the contrast in the colours, patterns and the different types of cloth that she used. There was no doubting her creativity. Her art teacher at school had nothing but praise for her talent and encouraged her to develop it further. But not everyone was quite as sympathetic to Tanya's dream of becoming a star in the world of fashion.

Her brother Dmitri, for one, did not make any attempt to hide his contempt for her obsession with fashion. As far as he was concerned, clothes were just something you threw on in the morning before going out into the outside world. As long as they were clean and didn't have holes in them that was all that mattered. He regarded anyone who paid attention to fashions and trends as simply a victim of peer pressure and advertising. Dmitri was very fond of telling her that anyone with any sense or intelligence would put their energy into doing something that mattered in the world, like becoming a scientist. He sounded just like her father.

But she wouldn't listen. Her mind was already made up. She had been offered a place at one of the most prestigious schools of Art and Design in the country and nothing would deter her from taking her place there. Contrary to what some people thought, she wasn't a fool and she knew the road to fulfilling her dreams would be a long, hard one. She had a plan mapped out and she was going to follow it through. Fortunately, she did have support within the family. Her grandmother never failed to boast about her talent to anyone who would listen, and her mother, although she didn't make a song and dance about it, was also proud of her.

Tanya looked up from her work and gazed into her father's troubled face. She smiled at him. "You know, dad, we've had this conversation countless times now," she said gently, "and the thing is, underneath it all you know I've made the right decision for my life. This is what I'm good at. So, let me ask you one thing. What would you rather I did with my life? Something that gives me a deep sense of satisfaction and fulfillment or something that would make me unhappy, perhaps for the rest of my life?" Her father's face brightened and he chuckled. "Well, one thing is for certain," he said, "no one could ever accuse you of lacking confidence in your own abilities, and that is definitely a good thing. You know I only want the best for you." She nodded. "I know you do and this is what's best for me." He patted her on the shoulder and walked back to his chair to read the paper.

character	easy-going, generous, quiet, reserved, fussy, independent, generous, patient, hard-working etc

Listening

- 3 Read the definition.

nanotechnology /nænəʊteknɒlədʒi/ U n = science of making and working with things that can only be seen using a powerful microscope

How do you think this science might affect people's lifestyles? Listen and take notes under the headings below. Tell the class.

- transportation • consumer products
- environment • food • medicine

- 4 RNE Read the article about nanotechnology. Choose the correct parts of the sentences (A-G) to complete gaps 1-6. There is one extra part of a sentence you do not need to use. Then translate the first two paragraphs of the text into Russian.

e.g. It seems to me that Peter is a ... He's dressed in ... He may have a family ... He seems to be ... He must live ... He may like ...

- 2 What about you? What is your lifestyle like? Is there anything you would like to change? Tell your partner.

e.g. I'm an only child and I live with my parents in the city centre. I go to secondary school. I like casual clothes and enjoy playing computer games. I guess I'm an easy-going person.

Nanotechnology - the next big thing?

Nanotechnology, the technology of materials of microscopic size, is seen as controversial by many. This article looks at some of the benefits – and potential dangers.

Imagine a world in which kitchens clean themselves, tiny brushes clean up pollutants in water, and minute robots move through the body seeking out and destroying cancerous tissue. If all this sounds like something from a 1960s science fiction movie, you should think again, 1 .

Scientists working in this new branch of technology see these ideas as only some of the possible applications of their research. There is even speculation that materials can be developed that will allow machines to repair themselves in much the same way that the human body does, 2 .

Although the idea of using microscopic robots to fight disease is still futuristic, nanotechnology is already being used by doctors. For example, magnetic nanoparticles have been given to patients suffering from certain cancers. These tiny metal balls concentrate in the body's unhealthy tissues, giving doctors a useful tool 3 .

Unfortunately, as with so many new ideas, it is not all good news. People are already expressing concerns 4 . It has even been suggested that the world could rapidly be reduced to grey dust as the result of some disaster involving this new technology.

Part of the problem is the fact that nanoparticles are minute. They are so small that they are readily taken up by the body. Normally, the skin acts as a natural barrier 5 . However, nanoparticles are able to cross biological membranes and penetrate tissues and organs. Studies have already shown that nanoparticles can cause DNA mutation and the destruction of cells.

Despite the fears, there are signs that nanomaterials can actively benefit the environment and help in the fight against global warming. They can also be used to improve the efficiency of traditional materials. For example, a nanoparticle is being added to engines in buses in Britain 6 .

However, if we are to avoid another environmental catastrophe, then, as with most advances in technology, the message must be: 'proceed with extreme caution.'

- A which prevents invasion by foreign bodies
- B which would be an incredible development
- C because it is a world that may not be far off
- D which will improve their fuel efficiency
- E which means an operation is necessary
- F which they can use to track the spread of the disease
- G that nanotechnology may be difficult to control

5 Complete the phrases with the words below. Use the completed phrases to make sentences based on the text.

- fuel • biological • extreme • potential • foreign
- cancerous • fight • traditional • global • natural
- environmental • science

- | | | |
|--------------------|--------------------|-------------------|
| 1 dangers | 5 efficiency | 9 ... catastrophe |
| 2 tissue | 6 bodies | 10 caution |
| 3 fiction | 7 warming | 11 barrier |
| 4 to disease | 8 materials | 12 membranes |

- 6 Match the words in bold to these meanings: quickly, go ahead, area, fix, worries, tiny, looking for, uses, help, change, debatable.

Listening & Speaking

- 7  Listen as you read the text again. Then tell your partner what the positive and negative effects of nanotechnology would be.

Writing

Money doesn't grow on trees

Happiness

Most people dream of 1) rich and famous, but is that what success is really about? It is a 2) that many people who have 3) fame and wealth are far less happy with their lives than most people would expect. They worry constantly about their money and reputation and they are rarely satisfied with what they have. Singers may lose their popularity, athletes may get 4) and no longer be able to perform well and wealthy businessmen may lose their money by making risky deals or bad decisions. The best way to be happy with your life is to reconsider what happiness really is. We must realise that human 5) and qualities are far more important than material things. A job, no matter how humble, which is done with interest and care is worth as much as instant fame. Being 6) to your family and having friends you can depend 7) also makes for a happy, successful life. These are the things that really count, and give you the right to consider yourself a success.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Unit
55

1 Parents of teenagers often feel that they have to crack some kind of complex code in order to understand what their children are texting their friends. In a very real sense, they do! Teens know text language is a very effective way of keeping their parents in the dark about their conversations. Some text abbreviations are now part of everyone's text vernacular – think LOL (laughing out loud) and CUL8R (see you later). But others, like PAW (parents are watching) and LMIRL (let's meet in real life), are a way to KPC (keep parents clueless)!

2 Traditional person-to-person trading, which used to take place at flea markets, car boot sales and collectible shows has been transformed through technology. Online auction sites like e-Bay, which appeared in the 1990s, have become a global phenomenon. From the beginning, they were designed to enable individuals to sell their own unwanted goods through online auctioning. Now a huge trading community has developed in which buyers and sellers are brought together on the World Wide Web.

3 You may have seen them on TV or heard about them from a friend – capsule hotels in Japan are the accommodation of choice for Japanese businessmen who have missed the last train back to the suburbs, or for travellers on a tight budget. They consist of tiny sleeping compartments about 2 metres long, 1 metre high and 1 metre wide that serve as one's 'room'. You may want to try one for a night just for the novelty, but don't even think about staying in one if you are claustrophobic.

4 Fast food has become one of the great conveniences of modern life, but one would be hard pushed to call it a civilised eating experience. A new patented paper carrier bag invented by Advent Global aims to change all that. Called BreakAway, the bag has a detachable sheet of paper on either side. These sheets become a small tablecloth when removed, providing a clean surface on which to lay out one's food.

5 At any airport you can see people sleeping on the seats in departure lounges and even on the floors. Weather conditions or mechanical problems can cause delays and then there are the stopovers. Many passengers cannot leave the airport and must simply wait it out. In Stockholm they have taken an old jumbo and turned it into a hostel. Parked on the edge of the airport, it provides basic accommodation in 25 rooms with shared facilities.

6 Don't think of a supermarket as just a simple store. It's a place that uses calculated strategies to lure you into purchasing items you had no intention of buying. The big chains spend millions of dollars each year researching just what will increase your impulse buying. This includes having the smell of freshly baked bread hit you when you enter the store in order to make you feel hungry, and spacing regularly-bought items across the entire store so that you need to pass by many tempting goodies in order to complete your shopping.

7 Technology is advancing far quicker than anyone could have imagined. Global communication has never been easier, thanks to social media such as email, Internet forums and blogs. Meetings now take place between people who are scattered all over the world via conference calls and video link-ups without a second thought. Even the news is being brought to us by people capturing the moment on their mobile phones and sending it by MMS.

- 4 The house was arranged in such a way that made it very comfortable to live in.
- 5 In a way I agree that we have far easier lives than our grandparents did.
- 6 In a modern democratic country, every person has the right to vote for their leader.
- 7 TV advertisements are designed to tempt consumers into buying products.
- 8 The dialect of the island was soft and rhythmic, making it very pleasant to listen to.

Speaking & Writing

- 5 Look at extract 1 again. Do you and your friends use text messaging? What do you like/dislike about it? What text abbreviations do you use? Work in pairs and write down as many as you can.
- 6 THINK! Spend three minutes writing about teenagers texting their friends. Read it to your partner.

Unit 5.7

Listening Skills

Listening Task 1

- 1 RNE  You'll hear a conversation between two friends. For statements 1-7, decide if each statement is True, False or Not stated. Circle the answer you choose. You'll hear the recording twice.

Beautiful St Petersburg

- James is tired of visiting museums.
A True B False C Not stated
- All the shops in Nevsky Prospekt are overpriced.
A True B False C Not stated
- James doesn't want to buy presents from the shops in Nevsky Prospekt.
A True B False C Not stated
- Katya recommends one of her favourite music clubs to James.
A True B False C Not stated
- James would like to buy some modern art.
A True B False C Not stated
- Katya thinks the day will be very tiring for them both.
A True B False C Not stated
- James is looking forward to telling his friends about his experiences.
A True B False C Not stated

Listening Task 2

- 2 RNE  You will hear six different speakers talking about their schooldays. Match the speakers (1-6) to sentences A-G. Use each sentence only once. There is one extra sentence you do not need to use.

- A I appreciate my teachers' efforts to make learning fun.
- B I feel education was a way to escape a difficult life.
- C I think teachers were too strict with the pupils.
- D I regret not paying more attention at school.
- E I realise I was given a chance available to few people.
- F I believe teachers should be better trained.
- G I understand why teachers were often strict with the pupils.

Speaker	1	2	3	4	5	6

Listening Task 3

- 3 RNE  You will hear an interview with a fashion designer. For statements 1-7, choose A, B or C to complete each statement correctly.

- 1 Patrick feels that wearing accessories
 - A helps people to be unique.
 - B might make you look overdressed.
 - C can improve the appearance of clothes.

Unit 5.8

Speaking Skills

Student A:

Task 1 (3 – 3.5 minutes)

Give a talk on the importance of fashion in teenagers' lives.

Remember to discuss:

- how you and your social group dress
- what/who influences your style choices
- how your style has changed as you have got older
- what you think your style says about you

Key language

- value for money
- large wardrobe
- make a good impression
- show/express personality
- uniform
- practicality and economy
- looking good

You will have to talk for 1.5 – 2 minutes. Student B will listen until you have finished. Then he/she will ask you some questions.

Questions for Student B:

- Do you think young people are concerned about fashion?
- Do you think designer labels are worth the price? Why/Why not?
- Do you think people are judged on what they wear?/Do you judge people on what they wear?
- Do you think girls or boys are targeted more by fashion companies? Why?
- Do you think fashion nowadays is original or does it just recycle old ideas?
- Do you think celebrities influence teen style?

Listen to a model answer. What does the speaker say about their personal style and what does he think about designer clothes?

Task 2 (3 – 4 minutes)

You and a friend have been asked to choose a special event for Carnival Week at your school. You can choose from:

- a costume making workshop
- a music concert
- a talk on international festivals
- a dance competition

Discuss the options with your friend and choose the one you both prefer the most. You begin the conversation. Student B will play the part of your friend.

Listen to a model answer. What do the speakers decide on in the end and what reasons do they give?

Student B:

Task 1 (3 – 3.5 minutes)

Give a talk on the ways in which technology makes our lives better.

Remember to discuss:

- what type of technology you use every day and what you use it for
- the importance of instant information access (the Internet)
- the benefits of instant communication from anywhere in the world (mobiles, Internet)
- how your life differs from that of your parents/grandparents when they were young

Key language

- Internet
- keep in touch
- entertainment
- satellite TV
- communication
- text messages
- online
- mobile phones

You will have to talk for 1.5 – 2 minutes. Student A will listen until you have finished. Then he/she will ask you some questions.

Questions for Student A:

- Do you think people are becoming more or less sociable because of the Internet?
- Do you think it is a good idea for very young children to have a mobile phone? Why/Why not?
- Do you think there are any negative health consequences of using technology?
- Do you think children need to learn mental arithmetic and spelling skills now that computers can perform these tasks?
- Do you think technology is making us more or less impatient? Why/Why not?

Listen to a model answer. What does the speaker use the Internet for?

Task 2 (3 – 4 minutes)

You and a friend have been asked to organise a special event for Science & Technology Week at your school. You can choose from:

- a visit to a science museum
- a tour of the local planetarium
- a talk on robotics by a researcher
- a discussion with scientists from the university

Discuss the options with your friend and choose the one you both prefer the most. You begin the conversation. Student A will play the part of your friend.

Remember to:

- discuss all the options
- be polite
- take an active part in the conversation
- come up with ideas
- give good reasons
- find out about your friend's opinions and take them into account
- invite your friend to come up with suggestions

Listen to a model answer. What do the speakers decide on in the end and what reasons do they give?

Expressing Opinions

Use the introduction and conclusion to express your own personal opinion. Use phrases such as in my opinion and I believe rather than the more emotional I think. Always include examples and reasons in order to support your opinion.

PLAN

Introduction

Para 1 Introduce the subject and state your opinion clearly

Main Body*

Para 2 First viewpoint with reasons/ examples

Para 3 Second viewpoint with reasons/ examples

Para 4 Opposing viewpoint and reason/ examples

Conclusion

Final para Restate your opinion, using different words

*The number of main body paragraphs depends on the number of viewpoints included.

- 1 a) Read the rubric and then the model. What is each paragraph about? Which paragraphs contain the writer's opinion?

You have had a class discussion on how travel affects people's outlook. Now your teacher has asked you to write an essay on whether you agree or disagree with the following statement: Travel broadens the mind.

Write your essay.

- b) List the writer's viewpoints. What reasons does he use to support them? Complete the table.

Viewpoints	Reasons

Thanks to package deals and budget airlines, more people have the opportunity to travel abroad these days. In my opinion, travelling abroad broadens the mind by giving us an understanding of the culture, language and cuisine of other countries.

In the first place, we can learn about the local culture, traditions and history when visiting another country. Going to museums, cultural events and festivals when on holiday can give us a unique insight into how the people live and the history of their country.

In addition, trying another cuisine can expand our knowledge about food and we can discover new and enjoyable tastes. We can also learn about new ways of cooking as well as unusual or speciality dishes.

On the other hand, some people do not take advantage of the opportunities that travel abroad offers. Instead of getting out and meeting the locals, they stay in their resort, mix only with other tourists and eat the same food they would have at home. They do not give themselves the chance to expand their knowledge about a new culture by listening to the native language and music, visiting traditional sights or trying local food.

In conclusion, it seems to me that travel can offer a wealth of new experiences. I believe we should make the most of any travel experience and use it to expand our knowledge of other people and other cultures.

2 Use the language in the table to write sentences, as in the example.

Useful expressions for giving opinions
• I believe/think/feel (that) ...	• My opinion is that ...
• I strongly believe ...	• As far as I am concerned, ...
• In my opinion/ view, ...	• I (completely) agree that/ with ...
• The way I see it, ...	• I (strongly) disagree that/ with ...
• It seems/appears to me (that) ...	• I am totally against ...
• To my mind, ...	• I couldn't agree more that/with ...
• I (do not) agree that/with ...	• I couldn't disagree more that/with ...
	• I am totally opposed to ...

- we/help/poor → their lives be easier
I strongly believe that we should help the poor. If we were to do this, then their lives would be easier.
- all students/study/abroad → improve language skills
- people/have vegetarian diet → be healthier
- children/learn/foreign language/in preschool → become fluent quicker
- we/all use/public transport → pollution be reduced

3 Read the topic sentences and suggest suitable supporting ones.

- Tourism has a number of disadvantages.
- Too much money is spent on space exploration when we still have people dying from hunger.
 - Giving opposing viewpoints

4 Use the useful language in the box to write full sentences.

On the other hand ..., Alternatively ..., It can be argued that ..., However ..., In contrast ..., Nevertheless ...

- better education/deter people/from crime
- people argue/education/necessary/get a well-paid job
- ban cars from city centre/not help reduce pollution levels
- some people argue/computers/make our lives easier

5 Read the rubrics. What do you have to write for each? What would you include in each paragraph? Choose one rubric and write your essay. End it with a quotation.

- Comment on the following statement:

Many people say that young people shouldn't watch so much television because it is a waste of time and promotes violence. However, others insist that this is wrong because television is in fact very educational.

What is your opinion? Does television harm young people or is it mostly beneficial? Write 200-250 words.
- Comment on the following statement:

Increasing pollution and traffic congestion means that life in towns and cities these days has become very unpleasant. Some people believe that cars should be banned in urban centres and people should use public transport. However, others believe this is impractical and unnecessary.

What is your opinion? Is it right to impose such conditions on urban residents? Write 200-250 words.

6 Before you give your essay to your teacher, check for the following:

CHECKLIST FOR ARGUMENTATIVE ESSAYS

Organisation

- Does your piece of writing follow a specific plan?
- Does your introduction state the topic clearly?
- Have you used a different paragraph for each point you make?
- Do the main body paragraphs start with a topic sentence?
- Are there supporting sentences to justify your points?
- Does the conclusion summarise the main points?

Language

- Have you used an appropriate style?
- Have you used advanced vocabulary?
- Have you used appropriate linkers to connect ideas?
- Are your points presented in sequence?
- Have you used a quotation?
- Are there any spelling, grammar or punctuation mistakes?

Providing Solutions to Problems

After stating the problem and why it arose, mention that there are also several possible solutions. Discuss each suggestion in turn and include any expected results or consequences. Use the concluding paragraph to decide which option will give the best results and explain why this is the case. You may also be asked to write a letter (e.g. to the editor of a newspaper) providing solutions to problems. In this case, use an appropriate greeting/ending and use formal style.

PLAN

Introduction

Para 1 State the problem, and/or the possible cause(s)

Main Body

Paras 2-4* Suggestions and results/consequences

Conclusion

Final para Summarise your opinion

*The number of main body paragraphs depends on the number of suggestions you want to make.

1 Read the rubric and then the model. List all suggestions and possible results/consequences.

You have had a class discussion about the negative effects of tourism on your town. Now your teacher has asked you to write an essay based on the following question:

Our town suffers from the negative effects of tourism. What are they and how can they be solved?

Write your essay.

Our town is very popular with tourists, especially in summer. Unfortunately, tourism has had some negative effects on our town. We have a number of problems, such as litter, traffic congestion and a lack of car parks.

One possible solution to the litter problem would be to install more litter bins along popular streets and in busy shopping areas. This would be a quick and cheap solution. Furthermore, we could also pay our road sweepers overtime to work extra hours during the tourist season. This would be more expensive but would also help solve the problem.

As for the problem of traffic congestion, one solution would be to set up a park-and-ride scheme. This way tourists and locals could leave their cars outside the town and use a specially provided bus service. This would be relatively simple to set up and would provide a long-term solution.

Another suggestion would be to build a multi-storey car park in the town centre to alleviate the problem of parking during busy periods. This would be costly but would help ease the parking problem.

To sum up, there are a number of possible solutions to our town's problems caused by tourism. However, I believe the best solutions would be to increase the number of litter bins in the busiest areas and to initiate a park-and-ride scheme to ease traffic congestion and parking problems.

Useful vocabulary

To make suggestions:

- A useful suggestion would be to ...
- Steps/Measures should be taken in order to solve/deal with ...
- Another way to ... is/would be to ...
- The situation could be improved if/ by .../It would help if you/we/etc ...
- It would be a good idea if/to ...

To present results and consequences:

- This would .../Then, ...
- By doing this, you/we/etc would ...
- If ..., the result would be ...
- The effect/consequence/result of ... would be .../In this way, ...

To begin a letter:

- After reading your article in Thursday's Daily News etc about ..., I would like to suggest some possible solutions to the problem.

2 a) Match the suggestions to their results.

Getting a Good Night's Sleep

Suggestions

- Go to bed at a regular time.
- Avoid caffeine or watching TV before bed.
- Take some exercise during the day.
- Make your room dark and quiet.

Results

- your body will be tired and ready to sleep
- your environment will be suitable for sleep
- your mind will not be overstimulated
- your body clock will take over

- b) Use appropriate linking words/phrases to write sentences, as in the example.

I - d A useful suggestion would be to go to bed at a regular time. This way, your body clock will take over.

- 3 Use the ideas below and appropriate linking words/phrases to write supporting sentences for the paragraphs that follow, as in the example.

- A
- walk/well-lit areas/with group of friends/at night
 - avoid/using/mobile phone in public

To begin with we should make sure that we do not make ourselves easy targets for muggers. For example, a useful suggestion would be to walk in well-lit areas with a group of friends at night.

- B
- they/look for/suitable vacancies on your behalf
 - look in newspapers/Internet/ask friends/for vacancies

Secondly, it would be a good idea to join an employment agency.

Discuss & Write

- 4 Go through the following rubrics and identify what each one asks for. Discuss the plan for each essay and then write any two of them. Write in the appropriate style.

1 Children and young teenagers should not be allowed a mobile phone.
Do you agree? Write an essay for your teacher (200-250 words).

2 Your teacher has asked you to write an essay based on the question: What can we do to protect animals from becoming extinct?
Write an essay on this subject (200-250 words).

3 Comment on the following statement:
Many people believe that the Internet has changed our lives for the better. Others, however, point out that it also has disadvantages.
What do you think? What are the pros and cons of the Internet?
Write 200-250 words.

4 Read the extract from the newspaper article below, then write a letter to the editor suggesting solutions to the problem described.

... It really seems as if environmental problems in our town are getting worse and worse. There is graffiti and litter everywhere, you can hardly breathe in the town centre because of all the pollution from cars and the river is becoming more and more polluted because of the factories emptying chemicals into it. The council must act, perhaps by introducing some new laws and finding ways to get the whole town involved in cleaning up the town. Last year's clean-up day in Norton Park, for example, was a great success, so ...

Write 200-250 words.

5 Comment on the following statement:
Most countries consider tourism essential. On the other hand, some people believe that it can have serious negative effects.
What is your opinion? Is tourism mostly good or bad for a country?
Write your essay (200-250 words).

- 5 Exchange essays with a partner. Your partner checks your writing against the checklist on p. 147. Make any necessary changes to your essays.

1 What characteristics make a person a hero? Choose from the list below. Justify your answers.

- bravery • intelligence • wealth
- humour • kindness • selfishness
- generosity • jealousy
- determination

2 In which sense do you think the people in the pictures are heroes? Discuss with your partner. Read through to find out.

3 RNE Read text A and complete gaps 1-6 with the correct derivative of each word in capitals.

4 RNE Read text B. For gaps 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each gap correctly.

5  Listen as you read the texts again and answer the questions on each of them.

Text A

- 1 Where does Professor Roshal work?
- 2 What made the professor decide to become a paediatrician?
- 3 What qualities does the professor think a doctor should possess?

Text B

- 1 What did Sir Attenborough create?
- 2 What hobby did he have as a child?
- 3 Why is he concerned for our grandchildren's future?

Heroes

A Modern Russian Hero

World-famous Professor Leonid Roshal, whose 1) continues to grow as the years pass, is truly a modern hero. His many prestigious titles and awards include Doctor of Medicine, Professor, Director of the Moscow Research Institute of Child Surgery and Traumatology and President of the 2) Charity Fund set up to help child victims of disasters and catastrophes.

Leonid Roshal recalls that from the time he was a small boy, he knew that he would grow up to become a doctor. After finishing 3) school, he entered a medical institute where he decided to join the paediatric faculty partly due to his love for children. Upon graduating, however, he realised that he wanted to continue his studies and went on to become a paediatric surgeon.

Professor Roshal believes it takes a special kind of person to be a doctor. He thinks that a doctor should act 4) at all times, but they must also be, above all, kind and caring. In spite of his very heavy workload as the director of the Moscow Research Institute, Professor Roshal still devotes incredible amounts of time to his patients both as a medical doctor and a surgeon.

Of all the honours that Professor Roshal has received 5) his career, he insists that the title of 'Children's Doctor of the World', bestowed on him in 1996, has pleased him the most. Running a close second, he says, is the 6) he was awarded for serving society, the Honorary Civil Order Golden Cross.

A Protector of our PLANET

Over the last 50 years, Sir David Attenborough has explored and explained virtually every aspect of life on planet Earth. His autobiography, Life on Air, follows a 1) in which he invented the 2) television wildlife programme and became one of the world's best known broadcasters and naturalists. Attenborough spent his childhood collecting fossils, stones and other natural specimens. His fascination with nature continued and 3) him to study geology and zoology at Cambridge. "The natural world is the greatest source of excitement, visual beauty and intellectual interest," he says.

Sir David was also the first presenter 4) prime time television to address humanity's impact on the planet. In the last few years, Attenborough has become increasingly outspoken in 5) of environmental causes. "It's a moral question about whether we have the right to exterminate species and leave a world that is poorer than the one we inherited." He asks, "Are we happy to imagine that our grandchildren may never be able to see an elephant 6) in a picture book?"

However, Sir David has a positive outlook on the future, "I think there will be radical changes," he explains, "but I don't think the natural 7) will be reduced to rats and cockroaches, nor do I think that the plant world will be reduced to some kind of desert."

9 ICT With your partner, find more information (from encyclopaedias or the Internet) about the life and achievements of another renowned scientist. Report your findings to the rest of the class. Using information from your research, write a short article about the scientist you have chosen.

Unit 5.12 Literature

- 1 Look at the picture. When do you think the novel is set? Read the biography to find out.

Isaac Asimov

(1920–1992) was born in Russia and was an author and a scientist. He wrote science-fiction, popular fiction as well as short stories and essays.

Many of his books are set in the future and feature robots. His novels The Caves of Steel (1954) and The Naked Sun (1957) combined science-fiction and detective stories. The Caves of Steel is about humans and robots living together in the future. Elijah Baley, or Lije, is a detective trying to solve a crime with his robot partner, R Daneel Olivaw. Baley's boss has called him into his office to talk to him.

The Caves of Steel

- 2 Read the extract and put the events in the order that they happen. Check your answers with your partner.

- The boss describes how life used to be.
- Baley's boss shows him a feature of his office.
- The boss warns Baley that he has bad news.
- Baley is impatient to know what the boss wants to tell him.
- The boss tells Baley of his broken glasses.
- They notice the rain outside.

- 3 RNE Read the text again and choose the correct parts of the sentences (A-G) to complete gaps 1-6. There is one extra part of a sentence you do not need to use.

- 4 Fill in: from the sky, from nature, to the outside world, a kind of pride, to himself, in mild surprise. Make sentences of your own using the phrases.

- | | |
|-----------------------|-------------------|
| 1 exposed | 4 dropping |
| 2 stared at him | 5 admit |
| 3 displayed | 6 separated |

- 5 Use a dictionary to explain the words in bold.

- 6 Explain the underlined phrases in your own words. Then translate the last two paragraphs of the text into Russian.

The boss smiled. "I had this arranged specially last year, Lije. I don't think I've showed it to you before. Come over here and take a look. In the old days, all rooms had things like this. They were called 'windows'. Did you know that?" Baley knew that very well, having viewed many historical novels. "I've heard of them," he said. "Come here," said the boss.

Baley squirmed a bit, [1]. There was something strange about the privacy of a room being exposed to the outside world. Sometimes the boss was over the top with his affection for the past. Like with his glasses, Baley thought. That was it! That was what made him look wrong! Baley said, "Pardon me, Boss, but you're wearing new glasses, aren't you?" The boss stared at him in mild surprise, took off his glasses, looked at them and then at Baley. Without his glasses, his round face seemed rounder [2]. He looked confused, too, as his eyes couldn't focus properly. He said, "Yes." He put his glasses back on his nose, then added with real anger, "I broke my old ones three days ago. What with one thing or another I wasn't able to replace them until this morning. Lije, those three days were awful." "On account of the glasses?" Baley asked.

"And other things, too. I will tell you about that." He turned to the window [3]. With mild shock, Baley realised it was raining. For a minute, he was lost in the sight of water dropping from the sky, while the boss displayed a kind of pride as though the phenomenon was something he'd arranged. "This is the third time this month I've watched it rain. Amazing, don't you think?"

Against his will, Baley had to admit to himself that he was impressed. In his forty-two years he had rarely seen rain, [4]. He said, "It always seems a waste for all that water to come down on the city. It should limit itself to the reservoirs." "Lije," said the boss, "you are too modern. That's your trouble. In the old days, people lived in the open. I don't mean on the farms only. I mean in the cities, too. Even in New York. When it rained, they didn't think of it as waste. They liked it. They lived close to nature. It's healthier, better. The troubles of modern life come from being separated from nature. Read up on the Coal Century, some time."

Baley had. He had heard many people moaning about the invention of the nuclear reactor. He moaned about it himself when things went wrong, [5]. Moaning like that was normal in human nature. Back in the Coal Century, people moaned about the invention of the steam engine. In one of Shakespeare's plays, a character moaned about the invention of gunpowder. A thousand years in the future, they'd be moaning about the invention of the human-robot brain.

He said, grimly, "Look, Julius." (It wasn't normal for him to be so friendly with the boss at work, however many times the boss called him 'Lije', [6]. "Look, Julius, you're talking about everything except what I came in here for, and it's worrying me. What is it?" The boss said, "I'll get to it, Lije. Let me do it my way. It's – it's trouble." "Sure. What isn't on this planet? More trouble with the Robots?" "In a way, yes, Lije."

7 a)  Listen as you read the text again. What do you think the boss wants to tell Baley? Write a few sentences about this and read them to your partner.

b)  Listen to the next section of the story. Were any of your ideas right?

8 a) Use some ideas from the text to explain how life used to be in the 'old days'.

e.g. Every room had windows.

- A or when he got tired
- B or any of the phenomena of nature, for that matter
- C but did as he was told
- D but realised his mistake
- E and his chin a little more pronounced
- F and so did Baley
- G but something special was called for here

b) THINK! In three minutes, write a few sentences about what the future world that Baley and Julius live in is like. Use some of the ideas from the text and your own ones. Read it to your partner.

Energy

Efficiency

ENERGY EATERS

Many of the electrical appliances we use in the home 1) huge amounts of energy. This is made worse by the 2) that most of them are not energy efficient. Water and heating boilers, for example, are the worst culprits. Another energy guzzler is our fridge-freezer, as it is working 24/7*. In fact, everything we use in our home, from the television to the washing machine, is using much more electricity than is necessary. So when you buy a new appliance, 3) the labelling to find out how energy efficient the product is – even your light bulbs! An energy efficient light bulb is much cheaper to use and 4) twelve times longer than a standard one. You can save up to 30% on your electricity 5) by using energy efficient appliances.

* twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week.

1 Have you ever seen the label in the picture before? Where might you see it? What kind of information is contained in the label? What do you know about 'energy eaters'?

2 Read the article. For gaps 1-12 choose A, B, C or D to complete each gap correctly.

3 Listen to the text. What did you learn about the topic from the text? What else would you like to know?

CHANGING OVER

In a bid to save up to 20% on energy use, the European Commission is bringing in some tough new regulations. Manufacturers will be 6) to make their products more energy efficient. One area that has been especially targeted is the massive energy waste from appliances that have a standby mode – like TVs and DVDs – and other electrical goods that use electricity even when they're not in 7) Also, there will be more information 8) on exactly how energy efficient or not electrical appliances are. The measures could save up to €100 billion by 2020. So, what do consumers need to know?

UNPLUG IT

Have you ever 9) your mobile phone charger plugged in even after you've recharged your phone? If you touch it, it will be warm. This is because it's still using electricity, just like your TV and DVD when they're on standby. Leaving things plugged in, or switched on while you're not using them, is 10) you money and wasting energy.

MAKE A DIFFERENCE

By using energy efficient electrical goods and turning them off and unplugging them, we can help to 11) carbon emissions which cause climate 12) So, go on – save yourself a lot of money and help save the planet as well.

① The world's top fashion designers don't just create glamorous clothes for the rich and famous. Bruce Oldfield has designed uniforms for workers at the fast food chain McDonald's, as well as the kit for Norwich City Football Club. Also, the Italian police wear uniforms designed by Armani and the staff of the French national airline are dressed by Christian Lacroix.

⑥ The home is a dangerous place. Accidents in the home result in 3 million people in the UK paying a visit to the hospital every year. The most common type of accident is a fall, and ordinary household items are often involved. Slippers, flowerpots and even tissue paper have been blamed for thousands of injuries. But using just a little common sense can prevent most mishaps from occurring.

⑦ Fast food comes in for a lot of bad press. It's unhealthy, we eat too much of it and too many people have forgotten how to cook properly because of it. But, even though all this may be true, there is still something to be said in its favour. As a treat, once in a while, a fast food meal in front of the TV after a hard day's work is just the ticket!

Caring for your house plants

Generally, indoor plants will flourish with the minimum of care. The most 1) mistakes that owners make is to water their plants too frequently. The roots of a plant will rot and the plant will eventually die if it is given too much water. A good way to 2) whether a plant needs watering is to push your finger about an inch into the soil to 3) if it is dry.

Most indoor plants require a degree of humidity. Unfortunately, modern central heating systems can sometimes 4) the atmosphere very dry, but there are ways to increase the humidity in your house. Placing plants on trays filled with damp gravel, or simply grouping them together can 5) You can also spray the plants once or twice a day with water, using a mist sprayer.

Some species of plants, such as cacti, thrive in direct sunlight, whereas others, like the aspidistra, prefer low levels of light. In fact, the aspidistra is sometimes 6) to as the cast-iron plant, as it is one of the toughest varieties of house plants.

Your plants will also need feeding regularly throughout the spring and summer months. There are a couple of simple rules that apply to feeding. The food for plants that are grown primarily for their foliage needs to be high in nitrogen, usually indicated on the container 7) the letter 'N'. For flowering plants, look for 'K20' which denotes high levels of potash.

Write 200 – 250 words.

 Module 1

Comparatives and Superlatives

We use the comparative to compare one person or thing with another. We use the superlative to compare one person or thing with more than one person or thing of the same group. We often use than after a comparative and the before a superlative. She is younger than me. She's the youngest person in the room.

Formation of comparatives and superlatives from adjectives and adverbs:

- with one-syllable adjectives, we add -(e)r to form the comparative and -(e)st to form the superlative. large – larger – largest
Note: for one-syllable adjectives ending in a vowel + a consonant, we double the consonant. thin – thinner – thinnest
- with two-syllable adjectives ending in -ly, -y, -w, we also add -er / -est. lively – livelier – liveliest
Note: for adjectives ending in a consonant + y, we replace the -y with an -i. tidy – tidier – tidiest
- with other two-syllable adjectives or adjectives with more than two syllables, comparatives and superlatives are formed with more/most. comfortable – more comfortable – most comfortable
- with adverbs that have the same form as their adjectives, we add -er/-est. hard – harder – hardest
- two-syllable or compound adverbs take more/most. carefully – more carefully – most carefully
Note: clever, common, cruel, friendly, gentle, pleasant, polite, shallow, simple, stupid, quiet can form their comparatives and superlatives either with -er/-est or with more/most.

- Irregular forms:

good – better – best / bad – worse – worst / much – more – most / little – less – least / far – farther/further – farthest/furthest / many/lots – more – most

- Types of comparisons:

- (half/twice/three times) as + adjective + as (to show that two people or things are similar/different in some way). In negative sentences we use not as/so ... as. This coat is as expensive as that one.
- less + adjective + than (expresses the difference between two people or things). The opposite is more ... than. Tom is less rich than his friend Tony.
- the least + adjective + off/in (compares one person or thing to two or more people or things in the same group). The opposite is the most ... off/in. She is the least hard-working person in our office.
- much/a lot/far/a little/a bit/slightly + comparative (expresses the degree of difference between two people or things). Jack is slightly taller than Jeremy.
- comparative and comparative (to show that something is increasing or decreasing). It gets warmer and warmer every day.
- the + comparative ... , the + comparative (shows that two things change together, or that one thing depends on another thing). The more you study now, the less you will have to study at the end of the school year.
- by far + the + superlative (emphasises the difference between one person or thing and two or more people or things in the same group). Last winter was by far the coldest we have ever had.

Relative Clauses

Relative clauses are introduced with either a relative pronoun or a relative adverb.

Relative pronouns

We use:

- i. who(m)/that to refer to people.
- ii. which/that to refer to things.
- iii. whose with people, animals and objects to show possession (instead of a possessive adjective).

- Who, which and that can be omitted when they are the object of the relative clause. He's the man (who) the police are looking for.
- Whom can be used instead of who when it is the object of the relative clause. Whom is always used instead of who or that after a preposition. That's the girl to whom the courier gave the parcel.
- Who, which and that are not omitted when they are the subject of a relative clause. The man who is singing now is my cousin. They can be omitted when they are the object of a relative clause; that is, when there is a noun or a subject pronoun between the relative pronoun and the verb. Laura met a friend (who/whom/that) she hadn't seen for years.

- Whose is never omitted. That's the man whose dog chased our cat.

Relative adverbs

We use:

- i. when/that to refer to a time (and can be omitted). That was the year (when/that) we got married.
- ii. where to refer to a place. The hotel where we stayed is closing down.
- iii. why to give a reason, usually after the word reason (why can be omitted). That's the reason (why) I want to do this.

Note: When using where or when, we do not need a preposition. The house where he grew up is being demolished. (NOT: ~~The house where he grew up in ...~~)

Identifying and Non-Identifying Relative Clauses

An identifying relative clause gives necessary information essential to the meaning of the main sentence. It is not put in commas and is introduced with who, which, that, whose, where, when or the reason (why). The woman who teaches us English at school lives next door.

A non-identifying relative clause gives extra information and is not essential to the meaning of the main sentence. It is put in commas and is introduced with who, whom, which, whose, where or when. The woman, who was reading a newspaper, seemed familiar to me.

Present Simple and Present Continuous

We use the present simple for:

- facts and permanent states. Jane works as a nurse.
- general truths and laws of nature. The sun sets in the west.
- habits and routines (with always, usually etc). She usually goes to the cinema twice a month.
- timetables and programmes (in the future). His plane leaves at ten o'clock next Friday.
- sporting commentaries, reviews and narrations. Terry wins the ball, crosses and Lampard scores for Chelsea.
- feelings and emotions. I love Mozart. His music is wonderful.

The time expressions we use with the present simple are: usually, often, always, every day/week/month/year etc, in the morning/afternoon/evening, at night/the weekend, on Fridays etc

We use the present continuous (to be + verb -ing):

- for actions taking place at or around the moment of speaking. Jean is doing her homework.
- for temporary situations. We are fixing the fence this week.
- for fixed arrangements in the near future. I'm going out with Tony tonight.
- for currently changing and developing situations. The temperature is becoming warmer and warmer.
- with adverbs such as always to express anger or irritation at a repeated action. She is always taking my things.

The time expressions we use with the present continuous are: now, at the moment, at present, these days, nowadays, still, today, tonight etc

Stative Verbs

Stative verbs are verbs which describe a state rather than an action, and so do not usually have a continuous tense. These verbs are:

- verbs of the senses (see, hear, smell, taste, feel, look, sound, seem, appear etc). Your perfume smells lovely.
- verbs of perception (know, believe, understand, realise, remember, forget etc). I know what the problem is.
- verbs which express feelings and emotions (like, love, hate, enjoy, prefer, detest, desire, want etc). Nick enjoys rock music.
- some other verbs (be, contain, include, belong, fit, need, matter, cost, own, want, owe, weigh, wish, have, keep etc). Those jeans cost me a fortune.

Some of these verbs can be used in continuous tenses, but with a difference in meaning.

Present Simple	Present Continuous
THINK I think he will become a good teacher. (= believe)	They are thinking about buying a new car. (= are considering)
HAVE She has a huge house. (= own, possess)	I am having a fantastic time. (= am experiencing) She is having a bath. (= is taking) They are having dinner. (= are eating)
SEE I can see the park from my office. (= it is visible) I see what you mean. (= understand)	I'm seeing Mr Stewart at ten o'clock. (= am meeting)
TASTE The fish tastes delicious. (= it is, has the flavour of)	Sue is tasting the stew to see if it needs more pepper. (= is testing)
SMELL This rose smells lovely. (= has the aroma)	She is smelling the flowers. (= is sniffing)
APPEAR He appears to be going in the wrong direction. (= seems to)	He is appearing in a play at The Arts theatre. (= is performing)
FIT The jeans fit him perfectly. (= are the right size)	The technician is fitting a new air conditioner on the wall. (= is attaching)

Note:

- The verb enjoy can be used in continuous tenses to express a specific preference. My brother really enjoys playing football. (general preference) BUT He's enjoying the match very much. (specific preference)
- The verbs look (when we refer to somebody's appearance), feel (experience a particular emotion), hurt and ache can be used in simple or continuous tenses with no difference in meaning. I feel very sad. = I am feeling very sad.

Present Perfect

We use the present perfect (have + past participle) for:

- an action that happened at an unstated time in the past. The emphasis is on the action, the time when it occurred is unimportant or unknown. I have washed the car. Ann has been to London once.
- an action which started in the past and continues up to the present, especially with stative verbs (see above) such as be, have, like, know etc. I have known the Browns for six years.
- a recently completed action. I have painted the house.
- personal experiences or changes. She has put on five kilos.

The time expressions we use with the present perfect are: for, since, already, always, just, ever, never, so far, today, this week/month etc, how long, lately, recently, still (in negations), yet, by now etc

Present Perfect Continuous

We use the present perfect continuous (have + been + verb -ing):

- to put emphasis on the duration of an action which started in the past and continues up to the present. We have been decorating the living room all morning.
- for an action which started in the past and lasted for some time. It may still be continuing or has finished already with the result visible in the present. He's soaking wet because it has been raining all morning.
- to express anger, irritation or annoyance. He has been taking my things without my permission.
- for repeated actions in the past continuing to the present. She has lost weight because she has been dieting.

The time expressions we use with the present perfect continuous are: for, since, how long, all day/morning/month etc, lately, recently

Note: with the verbs live, work, teach and feel we can use the present perfect simple or the present perfect continuous with no difference in meaning. She has worked/has been working as a teacher for the last eight years.

4 Put the verbs in brackets into the present simple or present continuous.

- A: This is the stadium where I (run) every weekend. It's usually full.
B: It might be busy then but nobody (run) here now.

- A: I (not/see) your sister lately.
B: I know. She (work) really hard these past few weeks.
- A: Why are you angry with your sister?
B: She (use) my things without asking for permission.

Past Simple

We use the past simple:

- for an action that occurred at a definite time (stated or implied) in the past. He went to the doctor yesterday.
- for actions that happened immediately after one another in the past. She got up, had breakfast and went to work.
- for habits or states which are now finished. Mr Ferguson worked as a teacher when he was younger.

Note: Used to can also be used instead of the past simple for habits/repeated actions in the past.

The time expressions we use with the past simple are: yesterday, then, when, How long ago ...?, last night/week/month/year/Friday/October etc, three days/weeks etc ago, in 1999 etc

Past Continuous

We use the past continuous:

- for an action which was in progress when another action interrupted it. We use the past continuous for the action in progress (the longer action), and the past simple for the action which interrupted it (shorter action). We were doing our homework when the lights went out.
- for two or more simultaneous actions in the past. Ben was watching TV in the living room while Alice was cooking dinner.
- for an action which was in progress at a stated time in the past. We don't mention when the action started or finished. At 8 o'clock yesterday, I was having a shower.
- to describe the atmosphere, setting etc and to give background information to a story. The birds were singing and the sun was shining as we were driving towards our country house.

Note: When there are two past continuous forms in a sentence with the same subject, we can avoid repetition by just using the present participle (-ing form) and leaving out the verb to be. He was fixing his bike; he was listening to the radio. = He was fixing his bike while listening to the radio.

The time expressions we use with the past continuous are: while, as, all morning/evening/day/week etc

Past Perfect

We use the past perfect (had + past participle):

- for an action which happened before another past action or before a stated time in the past. Ann had finished ironing by eight o'clock.
- for an action which finished in the past, and whose result was visible at a later point in the past. She had broken her wrist a month ago and she still couldn't write properly.

The time expressions we use with the past perfect are: before, after, already, just, for, since, till/until, when, by the time, never etc

Past Perfect Continuous

We use the past perfect continuous:

- to put emphasis on the duration of an action which started and finished in the past, before another action or stated time in the past, usually with for or since. He had been jogging for about an hour before he got home and had a shower.
- for an action which lasted for some time in the past and whose result was visible in the past. She had been making a cake and her clothes were covered in flour.

The time expressions we use with the past perfect continuous are: for, since, how long, before, until etc

Time expressions to talk about the past:

ago (= back in time from now) is used with the past simple. I did my homework about an hour ago.

since (= from a starting point in the past) is used with the present perfect (simple and continuous). I haven't seen her since she moved.

for (= over a period of time) is used with the present perfect (simple and continuous). They've been watching DVDs for hours.

already is used in statements and questions (to show surprise). I have already written to him. Have you finished writing already?

yet is used with the present perfect in questions and negations. Have you finished reading yet? I haven't done the washing up yet.

Module 2

Reported Speech

Reported speech is the exact meaning of what someone said, but not the exact words. We do not use quotation marks. The word that can either be used or omitted after the introductory verb (say, tell, suggest etc).

She said (that) she wouldn't tell anyone our secret.

Say – Tell

- say + no personal object. He said he was very happy.
- say + to + personal object. He said to us (that) he was very happy.
- tell + personal object. He told us he was very happy.

Expressions formed with say, tell and ask.

Say	hello, good morning/afternoon etc, something/nothing, so, a prayer, a few words, no more, for certain/sure etc
Tell	the truth, a lie, a story, a secret, a joke, the time, the difference, one from another, somebody one's name, somebody the way, somebody so, someone's fortune etc
Ask	a question, a favour, the price, after somebody, the time, around, for something/somebody etc

Reported Statements

- In reported speech, personal/possessive pronouns and possessive adjectives change according to the meaning of the sentence.
Philip said, "I'm having my hair cut." Philip said (that) he was having his hair cut.
- We can report someone's words either a long time after they were said (out-of-date reporting) or a short time after they were said (up-to-date reporting).

Up-to-date reporting

The tenses can either change or remain the same in reported speech.

Direct speech: David said, "I still haven't finished it."

Reported speech: David said (that) he still hasn't/hadn't finished it.

Out-of-date reporting

The introductory verb is in the past simple and the tenses change as follows:

Direct speech	Reported speech
Present Simple → Past Simple
"My bus leaves at 4 o'clock."	He said (that) his bus left at 4 o'clock.
Present Continuous → Past Continuous
"I am playing basketball this afternoon."	He said (that) he was playing basketball that afternoon.
Present Perfect → Past Perfect
"I have washed my hair."	She said (that) she had washed her hair.
Past Simple → Past Simple or Past Perfect
"I paid £20 for the book."	He said (that) he paid/had paid £20 for the book.
Past Continuous → Past Continuous or Past Perfect Continuous
"I was studying for the exam."	He said that he was studying/ had been studying for the exam.
Future (will) → Conditional (would)
"I will call you tomorrow."	He said that he would call me the next day.

- Certain words and time expressions change according to the meaning as follows:

now	→	then, immediately
today	→	that day
yesterday	→	the day before, the previous day
tomorrow	→	the next/following day
this week	→	that week
last week	→	the week before, the previous week
next week	→	the week after, the following week ago	→	before
here	→	there
come	→	go
bring	→	take
- The verb tenses remain the same in reported speech when the introductory verb is in the present, future or present perfect.
*Trevor has (often) said, "The system doesn't work."
Trevor has (often) said (that) the system doesn't work.*
- The verb tenses can either change or remain the same in reported speech when reporting a general truth or law of nature.
*The teacher said, "Corfu is an island."
The teacher said (that) Corfu is/was an island.*

Reported Questions

- Reported questions are usually introduced with the verbs ask, inquire, wonder or the phrase want to know.
- When the direct question begins with a question word (who, where, how, when, what etc), the reported question is introduced with the same question word.
*"What time do shops close, please?" (direct question)
He asked me what time shops closed. (reported question)*
- When the direct question begins with an auxiliary (be, do, have), or a modal verb (can, may etc), then the reported question is introduced with if or whether.
*"Are there any oranges left?" (direct question)
He asked me if/whether there were any oranges left. (reported question)*
- In reported questions, the verb is in the affirmative. The question mark and words/phrases such as please, well, oh etc are omitted. The verb tenses, pronouns and time expressions change as in statements.
*"Can you tell me when the next flight to Spain is, please?" (direct question)
He asked me when the next flight to Spain was. (reported question)*

Reported Orders

To report orders in reported speech, we use the introductory verbs order or tell + sb + (not) to-infinitive.

"Stop!" (direct order)

He ordered them to stop. (reported order)

"Don't run!" (direct order)

She told us not to run. (reported order)

Reported Commands/Requests/Suggestions etc

To report commands, requests, suggestions, instructions etc, we use a special introductory verb followed by a to-infinitive, -ing form or that-clause, depending on the introductory verb.

Introductory verb	Direct speech	Reported speech
+ to-infinitive agree *claim *demand offer *promise refuse *threaten	"Yes, I'll lend you my MP3 player." "I'm working this weekend." "I want to make a phone call now." "Would you like me to come with you?" "I promise I'll tell you." "No, I won't take that." "Stop arguing or I won't let you go out to play in the afternoon."	He agreed to lend me his MP3 player. He claimed to be working that weekend. He demanded to make a phone call then. He offered to go with me. He promised to tell me. He refused to take that. He threatened not to let us go out to play in the afternoon if we didn't stop arguing.
+ sb + to-infinitive advise allow ask beg command encourage forbid invite order *remind *warn	"You should try to lose weight." "You can go out." "Please stop making noise." "Please, please, tell me." "Halt!" "You should at least try it." "You cannot smoke in the office." "Will you come to the reunion?" "Come here!" "Don't forget to check everything before you leave." "Don't swim on a full stomach."	He advised me to try to lose weight. He allowed me to go out. He asked me to stop making noise. He begged me to tell him. He commanded them to halt. He encouraged me to try it. He forbade me to smoke in the office. He invited me to go to the reunion. He ordered me to go there. He reminded me to check everything before I left. He warned me not to swim on a full stomach.
+ -ing form accuse sb of *admit (to) apologise for *boast about/of *complain (to sb) of/about *deny *insist on *suggest	"She told everyone I am a liar." "Yes, I broke the window." "I'm sorry I didn't call you." "I'm an excellent guitar player." "I feel very exhausted." "I didn't hit that boy!" "I am going to take you to the zoo." "Why don't we go on holiday?"	He accused her of telling everyone he was a liar. He admitted to breaking/having broken the window. He apologised for not calling her. He boasted of/about being an excellent guitar player. He complained (to me) of feeling very exhausted. He denied hitting/ having hit that boy. He insisted on taking me to the zoo. He suggested going on holiday.
+ that-clause explain inform sb	"It is faster to go by plane." "You passed the test."	He explained that it was faster to go by plane. He informed me that I had passed the test.

* The verbs marked with an asterisk can also be followed by a that-clause in Reported Speech. He claimed that he didn't know about it.

- In conversation we use a mixture of statements, commands and questions. When we turn them into reported speech, we use and, as, adding that, and he/she added that, because, but, since etc. Words such as oh!, oh dear, well etc are omitted in reported speech.

Direct: "Oh! That's a nice pair of jeans," Ann said to me. "They suit you perfectly."

Reported: Ann said that they were a nice pair of jeans and added that they suited me perfectly.

Modals in Reported Speech

- Modals change as follows: will/shall → would, can → could (present reference)/would be able to (future reference), may → might/could, shall → should (asking for advice)/would (asking for information)/offer (expressing offers), must → must/had to (obligation) (*'must' remains the same when it expresses possibility or deduction), needn't → didn't need to/didn't have to (present reference)/wouldn't have to (future reference).

Future Simple

We use the future simple (will + bare infinitive) for:

- decisions made at the moment of speaking. The phone's ringing. I'll answer it.
- predictions about the future, based on what we think, believe or imagine, using the verbs think, believe, expect etc; the expressions be sure, be afraid etc; and the adverbs probably, certainly, perhaps etc. He will probably come later on.
- promises, threats, warnings, requests, hopes and offers. Will you help me with my homework?
- actions, events, situations which will definitely happen in the future and which we can't control. Rod will be fifty years old in June.

Be going to

We use be going to:

- for plans, intentions or ambitions for the future. He's going to be a doctor when he finishes university.
- actions we have already decided to do in the near future. Laura is going to spend her holidays in France.
- predictions based on what we can see or what we know, especially when there is evidence that something will happen. Look at that man with the guitar. He's going to start playing.

The time expressions we use with the future simple and be going to are: tomorrow, the day after tomorrow, tonight, soon, next week/month/year/summer etc, in a week/month etc

Future Continuous

We use the future continuous (will be + verb -ing):

- for actions which will be in progress at a stated future time. This time next month, I'll be sitting in a café in Paris.
- for actions which will definitely happen in the future as the result of a routine or arrangement. We will be going to the museum at the weekend.
- when we ask politely about someone's plans for the near future. Will you be wearing your new jacket tonight?

Future Perfect

- We use the future perfect (will have + past participle) for actions that will have finished before a stated time in the future. We will have finished the exams by the end of this week.

The time expressions we use with the future perfect are: before, by, by then, by the time, until/till (only in negative sentences)

Future Perfect Continuous

- We use the future perfect continuous (will have been + verb -ing) to emphasise the duration of an action up to a certain time in the future. The future perfect continuous is used with: by ... for. By the end of May, Jill will have been living here for fifteen years.

Time clauses when talking about the future:

When we use words and expressions such as while, before, after, until/till, as, when, whenever, once, as soon as, as long as, by the time etc to introduce time clauses, we use the present simple or present perfect, NOT future forms.

By the time we get there, the ship will have left.
(NOT: ~~By the time we will get there ...~~)

We also use the present simple and present perfect, NOT future forms, after words and expressions such as unless, if, suppose/supposing, in case etc. Take an umbrella in case it rains later. (NOT: ... ~~in case it will rain later.~~)

We use future forms with:

- when, when it is used as a question word. When will you be going sailing?
- if/whether, after expressions which show uncertainty/ignorance etc, such as I don't know, I doubt, I wonder, I'm not sure etc. I don't know whether he will come or not.

Note: We use the present simple to refer to timetables/programmes. The film starts at 7:30.

We use the present continuous for a fixed arrangement in the near future. I'm seeing Tom tonight.

10 Fill in will or be going to.

- A: Are you studying maths, chemistry and biology?
B: Yes, because I study medicine at university.
- A: I have decided what to buy Tom for his birthday.
B: Really? What buy him, then?
- A: Have you finished your report yet?
B: No, but I'm sure I finish it on time.

- A: I have three friends coming to dinner tonight.
B: Don't worry. I help you cook.
- A: Why do you need so much flour?
B: I make a pizza.
- A: I'm so tired. I'm about to fall asleep.
B: I get you some coffee.
- A: How old is your son?
B: He be twelve next month.

11 Put the verbs in brackets into the appropriate future forms.

- A A: What 1) (do) tonight?
 B: I 2) (tidy) my room.
 A: What time 3) (finish)?
 B: I 4) (finish) by nine o'clock. I hope.
 A: Shall we go to the cinema then? The film starts at 9:30.

- B This time next week I 1) (relax) on a beach in Thailand and I 2) (forget) all my problems at work. I 3) (sunbathe) and the kids 4) (swim) and we 5) (have) lots of fun. I just can't wait.

Infinitive

The to-infinitive is used:

- to express purpose. He took the train to arrive early.
- after certain verbs (agree, appear, decide, expect, hope, plan, promise, refuse etc). They expect to start printing next week.
- after would like, would prefer, would love etc to express a specific preference. I would prefer to go to the theatre tonight.
- after adjectives which describe feelings/emotions (happy, sad, glad etc); express willingness/unwillingness (willing, eager, reluctant etc); refer to a person's character (clever, kind etc) and the adjectives lucky and fortunate. I was very happy to hear that Jennifer and Darren got married.
Note: With adjectives that refer to character we can also use an impersonal structure. It was kind of you to inform me about it.
- after too/enough. It is too cold to go swimming.
- to talk about an unexpected event, usually with only. I finally arrived home only to find that my house had been broken into.
- with it + be + adjective/noun. It wasn't easy to find a new accountant.
- after be + first/second/next/last etc. He was the last person to talk at the conference.
- after verbs and expressions such as ask, learn, explain, decide, find out, want, want to know etc, when they are followed by a question word. She explained how to use the vending machine.
Note: why is followed by subject + verb, NOT an infinitive. I wonder why she didn't come to me with her problem.
- in the expressions to tell you the truth, to be honest, to sum up, to begin with etc. To tell you the truth, I didn't want anyone to find out.
Note: If two to-infinitives are linked by and or or, the to of the second infinitive can be omitted. I would like to go and see the performance tonight.

Tenses of the Infinitive

Present: (to) read

Present Continuous: (to) be reading

Perfect: (to) have read

Perfect Continuous: (to) have been reading

- The Present Infinitive refers to the present or future: e.g. You are expected to work from 9.00 to 4.00 every weekday.
- The Present Continuous Infinitive expresses an action happening now: e.g. She seems to be working on the project at present.
- The Perfect Infinitive is used to show that the action of the infinitive happened before the action of the verb: e.g. She claims to have been to Austria twice.
- The Perfect Continuous Infinitive is used to emphasise the duration of the action of the infinitive, which happened before the action of the main verb: e.g. He seems to have been reading all night. His eyes are red.

The infinitive without to is used:

- after modal verbs. Beth can play the saxophone well.
- after the verbs let, make, see, hear and feel. They made him leave the building. BUT we use the to-infinitive after be made, be heard, be seen etc (passive form). He was made to leave the building.
Note: When see, hear and watch are followed by an -ing form, there is no change in the passive. He saw me reading the email. I was seen reading the email.
- after had better and would rather. We had better take a taxi.
- help can be followed by either the to-infinitive or the infinitive without to. She helped me (to) solve the problem.

-ing form

The -ing form is used:

- as a noun. Smoking is not good for your health.
- after certain verbs: admit, appreciate, avoid, continue, deny, fancy, go (for activities), imagine, mind, miss, quit, save, suggest, practise, consider, prevent. *He suggested solving the problem on our own.
- after love, like, enjoy, prefer, dislike, hate to express general preference. Jeremy loves eating chocolate ice-cream. BUT for a specific preference (would like/would prefer/would love) we use a to-infinitive.
- after expressions such as be busy, it's no use, it's (no) good, it's (not) worth, what's the use of, can't help, there's no point in, can't stand, have difficulty (in), have trouble etc. There is no point in talking to her; she is so headstrong!
- after spend, waste or lose (time, money etc). He spent a lot of money buying a home cinema system.
- after the preposition to with verbs and expressions such as look forward to, be used to, in addition to, object to, prefer (doing sth to sth else). He prefers eating at home to eating out.
- after other prepositions. He was thinking of changing his look.
- after the verbs hear, listen to, notice, see, watch and feel to describe an incomplete action. I heard John talking to Elaine. (I only heard part of the conversation.)
BUT we use the infinitive without to with hear, listen to, notice, see, watch and feel to describe the complete action. I heard Larry tell the story. (I heard the whole story.)

Difference in meaning between the to-infinitive and -ing form

Some verbs can take either the to-infinitive or the -ing form with a change in meaning.

- forget + to-infinitive = (not) remember. He forgot to lock the door.
forget + -ing form = not recall. I'll never forget living in Hawaii.
- remember + to-infinitive = not forget. Did you remember to post the letter?
remember + -ing form = recall. I remember hearing him say that.
- mean + to-infinitive = intend to. I'm sorry, I never meant to make you feel so bad.
mean + -ing form = involve. If I lose my job, I'm afraid it will mean selling my car.
- regret + to-infinitive = be sorry to (normally used in the present simple with verbs such as say, tell, inform). We regret to inform you that you have not been accepted into university.
regret + -ing form = feel sorry about. I regret losing touch with my friends in America.
- try + to-infinitive = do one's best, attempt. She tried to tell him but he just didn't want to listen.
try + -ing form = do something as an experiment. Why don't you try adding more sugar?

12 Put the verbs in brackets into the infinitive or the -ing form.

- A: I'll never forget (meet) David Beckham.
B: Yes, but you forgot (get) his autograph, didn't you?
- A: Do you regret (lend) the money to Nick?
B: Yes. I regret (say) he's not a very trustworthy person.
- A: Did you remember (return) the DVDs we rented?
B: I remember (take) them but I think I left them in my briefcase.

Module 3

Quite – Rather – Fairly – Pretty – Very

- Quite (= fairly, to some degree) is used in favourable comments. He's quite good at geography. Quite is used before a/an. He's quite a good football player. Quite (= completely) is used with adverbs, some verbs and adjectives such as: amazing, brilliant, certain, dreadful, different, exhausted, horrible, impossible, perfect, right, sure, true, useless etc. I'm quite sure she will come with us.
- Rather is used in unfavourable comments. He's rather bad at tennis. It can also be used in favourable comments meaning "to an unusual degree". The lecture was rather interesting. (more interesting than we expected). Rather is also used with comparative degree. My MP3 player was rather more expensive than yours. Rather is also used before or after a/an. It's a rather warm summer. or It's rather a warm summer.
- Fairly/Pretty are synonymous with quite and rather. They are used after a. She's a fairly/pretty good actress.
- Very + adj/adv of positive degree. He is very careless with his things.

16 Choose the correct word.

★ Module 4

Inversion

A. modal/auxiliary verb + subject + main verb

It is used in the following cases:

- in questions.
Can you really sing well?
- after the following words or expressions, when they come at the beginning of a sentence.

Seldom	Only in this way
Rarely	Only then
Little	Hardly (ever) ... when
Barely	No sooner ... than
Nowhere (else)	Not only ... but (also)
Never (before)	Not until
Not (even) once	In no way
On no account	In/Under no circumstances
Only by	So/Such
	Not since etc.

Never (before) have I seen such an exciting match.
Not only did they make a lot of money but they (also) made a good name for themselves.
Seldom do we go out since I took up Spanish classes.
BUT We seldom go out since I took up Spanish classes.
(There is no inversion because the word seldom does not come at the beginning of the sentence.)

Note: When the expressions only after, only by, only if, only when, not until/till come at the beginning of a sentence, the inversion is in the main clause.

- Only after saving money for months was she able to buy a new car.
Only if you do what the doctor tells you will you get well soon.
- with so, neither, nor, as to express agreement.
"I love chocolate yoghurt. So do I." (We use "so" to agree with an affirmative statement.)
*She was a talented artist, as was her brother/and so was her brother.

"Neither/Nor can I." (We use "neither/nor" to agree with a negative statement.)
*"I can't stand classical music." Neither/Nor can I.

- with should, were, had when they come at the beginning of an if-clause instead of "if":
e.g. Type 1: Should he call, tell him I'll meet him at six.
(= If he should call ...)
Type 2: Were I you, I would tell her how I feel.
(= If I were you ...)
Type 3: Had I been told, I would have been prepared for what would follow. (= If I had been told ...)

B. main verb + subject

It is used in the following cases:

- after verbs of movement or adverbial expressions of place when they come at the beginning of a sentence.
Outside the house was a big pine tree.
On the chair lay a cat.
Here comes the bus.
There goes the train.
 If the subject is a pronoun, there is no inversion.
Here they come. (NOT: ~~Here come they.~~)
Out you go. (NOT: ~~Out go you.~~)
- in direct speech when the subject of the introductory verb is a noun.
"I don't like this book," said Jimmy.
(OR: ... Jimmy said.)
"I'll call you tomorrow," said her mother.
(OR: ... her mother said.)
BUT "How can I help you?" she asked.
(NOT: ~~asked she,~~ because the subject of the introductory verb is a pronoun.)

20 Rewrite the sentences.

- 1 The authorities seldom pay any attention to environmental activists.
 Seldom
- 2 Our country has never seen such extreme weather conditions before.
 Never before
- 3 The police didn't know that the man was a thief.
 Little

- 4 If we had known how easy it is to recycle, we would have started a long time ago.
 Had
- 5 Deforestation not only reduces the number of trees, but it also affects biodiversity.
 Not only
- 6 You shouldn't put a metal utensil in the microwave on any account.
 On no account

7 Patricia won't cancel the trip under any circumstances.

Under no

8 She had just finished her speech when he walked in the door.

No sooner

The Passive

We form the passive with the verb to be in the appropriate tense and the past participle of the main verb. Only transitive verbs (verbs which take an object) can be used in the passive: (e.g. live does not have a passive form.)

We use the passive:

- when the person or people who do the action are unknown, unimportant or obvious from the context. Jane's handbag was stolen. (We don't know who stole it.) The house is being painted. (It's unimportant who is doing it.) The criminal has been arrested. (It's obvious that the police arrested him.)
- when the action itself is more important than the person/people who do it, as in news headlines, newspaper articles, formal notices, advertisements, instructions, processes etc. The wedding will be held on May 4th.
- when we want to avoid taking responsibility for an action, or when we refer to an unpleasant event and we do not want to say who or what is to blame. The man was beaten to death.

Changing from the active into the passive:

- the object of the active sentence becomes the subject in the passive sentence
- the active verb remains in the same tense but changes into a passive form
- the subject of the active sentence becomes the agent, and is either introduced with the preposition by or is omitted.

- Only transitive verbs (verbs which take an object) can be changed into the passive. Active: Monkeys live in trees. (intransitive verb) No passive form: ~~Trees are lived in by monkeys.~~
Note: Some transitive verbs (have, exist, seem, fit, suit, resemble, lack etc) cannot be changed into the passive. Roy has a new bike. (NOT: ~~A new bike is had by Roy.~~)
- we can use the verb to get instead of the verb to be in everyday speech when we talk about things that happen by accident or unexpectedly. He got injured when he was trying to climb the tree. (instead of He was injured ...)

- By + the agent is used to say who or what carries out an action. With + instrument/material/ingredient is used to say what the agent used. The design was made by Roselyn. It was made with fresh cream.
- The agent can be omitted when the subject is they, he, someone/somebody, people, one etc. Somebody has opened the window. → The window has been opened.
- The agent is not omitted when it is a specific or important person, or when it is essential to the meaning of the sentence. Jurassic Park was directed by Steven Spielberg.
- With verbs which can take two objects, such as bring, tell, send, show, teach, promise, buy, sell, read, offer, give, lend etc, we can form two different passive sentences.
Bob gave Jean flowers. (active)
Jean was given flowers by Bob. (passive, more usual)
Flowers were given to Jean by Bob. (passive, less usual)
- If in an active sentence a preposition follows a verb, then in the passive it is placed immediately after the verb. A snake bit Ann on the leg. Ann was bitten on the leg by a snake.
- The verbs hear, help, see and make are followed by the bare infinitive in the active, but by the to-infinitive in the passive. She made me do my homework. I was made to do my homework.
- Let becomes be allowed to in the passive. The mother let the children watch TV. → The children were allowed to watch TV.
- To ask questions in the passive, we follow the same rules as for statements, keeping in mind that the verb is in the interrogative form. Have they received the email yet? → Has the email been received yet?
- When we want to find out who or what performed an action, the passive question form is Who/What ... by? Who was the book written by?
- The verbs believe, expect, feel, hope, know, report, say, think etc are used in the following passive patterns in personal and impersonal constructions.
They expect he will pass his driving test.
- subject (person) + passive verb + to inf
He is expected to pass his driving test. (personal construction)
- It + passive verb + that-clause
It is expected that he will pass his driving test. (impersonal construction)

21 Complete the exchanges using the correct passive form.

- A: What happened at the WWF meeting yesterday?
B: We (advise) to adopt an animal.

- In what ways can informed about extreme weather conditions?
A we be kept C we are keeping
B we will keep D we have been keeping

Type 0/1 Conditionals

Type 0 conditionals are used to express a general truth or a scientific fact. In this type of conditionals we can use when instead of if.

If-clause	Main Clause
If/When + present simple	→ present simple
If/When you drop something, it falls to the ground.

Type 1 conditionals are used to express a real or very probable situation in the present or future.

If-clause	Main Clause
If + present simple	→ future simple, imperative, can/must/may etc + bare infinitive
If I go to the party, I will/may/etc have a good time.

When the hypothesis comes before the main clause, we separate them with a comma. When the main clause comes before the if-clause, then we do not use a comma to separate them.

Note: With type 1 conditionals we can use unless + affirmative verb (= if + negative verb). I will not be able to come unless it stops raining. (= if it does not stop raining, ...)

Type 2 and 3 Conditionals

- Type 2 conditionals (unreal in the present) are used to express imaginary situations which are contrary to facts in the present, and therefore are unlikely to happen in the present or the future. We can use either was or were for I, he, she, it, in the if-clause. We can also use the structure If I were you ... to give advice.

If-clause	Main Clause
If + past simple/past continuous	→ would/could/might + present bare infinitive
If I knew how to do it, I would do it myself.
If Sue was working today, we would see her.
If I were you, I would tell them not to interfere.

- Type 3 conditionals (unreal in the past) are used to express imaginary situations which are contrary to facts in the past. They are also used to express regrets or criticism.

If-clause	Main Clause
If + past perfect/past perfect continuous	→ would/could/might + perfect bare infinitive
If they had asked me, I would have told them not to do it.
If I hadn't been working today, we would have done the shopping.

Mixed Conditionals

We can form mixed conditionals, if the context permits it, by combining an if-clause from one type with a main clause from another.

If-clause	Main Clause
Type 2 If he went to bed late last night,	Type 1 he won't be able to get up on time today.
Type 2 If you were more careful,	Type 3 you wouldn't have broken your leg.
Type 3 If he hadn't missed the bus,	Type 2 he would be at work now.

Wishes

- We can use wish/if only to express a wish.

Verb Tense	Use
+ past simple/ past continuous I wish I was rich now. (but I'm not) If only I were going to the beach. (but I'm not)	to say that we would like something to be different about a present situation
+ past perfect I wish I had finished the housework. (but I didn't) If only she hadn't told me to leave her alone. (but she did)	to express regret about something which happened or didn't happen in the past
+ subject + would + bare inf. I wish you would stop smoking. If only it would stop raining.	to express: • a polite imperative. • a desire for a situation or person's behaviour to change

- Note:
- If only is used in exactly the same way as wish but it is more emphatic or more dramatic.
 - We can use were instead of was after wish and if only. I wish I were/was at the beach.

Note: I wish to speak to you now (I want to ...)

Unreal Past – had better/would rather

The Past Simple can be used to talk about imaginary, unreal or improbable situations in the present, and the Past Perfect can be used to talk about imaginary, unreal or improbable situations in the past. This is called unreal past. Unreal Past is used as follows:

Past Simple to refer to the present:

- Type 2 conditionals: e.g. If I were you, I'd ask for help.
- wish/if only: e.g. I wish he were more patient with children.
- I'd rather/sooner sb ...: e.g. I'd rather he studied more.
- Suppose/Supposing: e.g. Suppose you were asked to stay back, what would you do?*
- as if/as though: e.g. He behaves as if he were the boss.
- It's (about/high) time ...: e.g. It's time we left.*

Past Perfect to refer to the past:

- Type 3 conditionals: e.g. If I had been more careful, I wouldn't have had the accident.
- wish/if only: e.g. If only I hadn't told lies to my mum.
- I'd rather/sooner sb ...: e.g. I'd rather he hadn't spent so much money yesterday.
- Suppose/Supposing: e.g. Suppose he had seen you, what would you have done?*
- as if/as though: e.g. They looked at each other as if they had met before.

had better = should

- I had better + present bare infinitive (for present/future reference): e.g. You'd better take an aspirin.
- It would have been better if + Past Perfect (for past reference): e.g. It would have been better if you had told them the truth.

would rather = I'd prefer

- When the subject of would rather is also the subject of the following verb, we use I'd rather + present bare infinitive (for present/future reference) or I'd rather + perfect bare infinitive (for past reference): e.g. I'd rather leave now. I'd rather have admitted taking the money.
- When the subject of would rather is different from the subject of the following verb, we use: I'd rather sb + Past Simple (for present/future reference) or I'd rather sb + Past Perfect (for past reference): e.g. I'd rather you put on the green dress tonight. I'd rather you had called me earlier.

Note:

- prefer + gerund/noun + to + gerund/noun (general preference): e.g. I prefer swimming to skiing.
- prefer + full infinitive + rather than + bare infinitive (general preference): e.g. I prefer to dress casually rather than dress formally.
- would prefer + full infinitive + rather than + bare infinitive (specific preference): e.g. I'd prefer to go hiking rather than go horse riding.
- would rather + bare infinitive + than + bare infinitive: e.g. I'd rather read than watch TV.

23 Put the verbs in brackets into the correct tense.

- 1 A: Look at all that packaging you're throwing away!
B: I know, but what can I do? I wish there
..... (be) more recycling bins near here.
- 2 A: Sorry I didn't come to the Greenpeace meeting last night. I couldn't make it.
B: If I (know) that, I (change) the date.
- 3 A: Stockport Zoo has closed down.
B: That's a shame. I wish I
(visit) it more often when it was open.
- 4 A: If you (go) to the environmental conference,
..... (you/pick up) some brochures, please?
B: Of course!
- 5 A: Shall I put this rubbish in the bin?
B: No, if I (be) you, I
..... (take) it to the recycling centre.
- 6 A: If I (know) about the park clean up, (sign/up) to help.
B: Don't worry. There's going to be another one next week.
- 7 A: I wish I (know) you were free last weekend. We could have gone out somewhere together.

B: I wish I (bring) my umbrella with me.
- 9 A: Sorry. What did you say?
B: Oh, I wish you (pay) more attention when I'm speaking to you.

24 Rewrite the following as mixed conditionals.

- 1 We didn't recycle and now we are running out of natural resources.
If we had recycled, we wouldn't be running out of natural resources now.
- 2 The authorities didn't prevent the flooding in time, and now we are facing an environmental disaster.

Causative Form

- We use have + object/(thing) + past participle to say that we arrange for someone to do something for us. He asked the gardener to mow the lawn. He had the lawn mown. (He didn't do it himself. The gardener did it.)

Present Simple He has his car serviced twice a year.

Present Continuous He is having his car serviced at the moment.

Past Simple He had his car serviced last month.

Past Continuous He was having his car serviced when his brother called.

Future Simple He will have his car serviced next Monday.

Future Continuous At 11 o'clock tomorrow, he will be having his car serviced.

Present Perfect He has just had his car serviced.

Present Perfect Continuous He has been having his car serviced since this morning.

Past Perfect He had had his car serviced before he left for holiday.

Past Perfect Continuous He had been having his car serviced.

Infinitive He may have his car serviced tomorrow.

-ing form His car is so old that there's no point in having it serviced.

- The verb "to have", used in the causative, forms its negations and questions with do/does (Present Simple) or did (Past Simple). She didn't have the dress shortened. Did he have the parcels delivered?
- The causative form can be used instead of the passive to refer to accidents and misfortunes. He had his leg broken in the accident. (= His leg was broken in the accident.)
- Make/Have + object/(person) + bare infinitive are used to express that someone causes someone else to do something, but their meaning is slightly different. He made Ann sign the contract. (He insisted that Ann should sign the contract). He had Ann sign the contract. (He asked Ann to sign the contract.)
- Get + object/(person) + to-inf shows that someone persuades someone else to do something: e.g. He got Steve to move the furniture. (He persuaded Steve to move the furniture)

28 a) Rewrite the sentences using the causative form, as in the example.

- The decorator is painting Julie's house.
Julie is having her house painted.
- The hairdresser is cutting Jimmy's hair.
.....
- Someone fixed his computer for him.
.....
- The mechanic is going to repair David's car tomorrow.
.....
- Someone has delivered pizza to Norman.
.....

b) Rewrite the sentences in the causative form, as in the example.

- Does someone mow your lawn?
Do you have your lawn mown?
- Will the secretary type your letters?
.....
- Is someone going to install an alarm system for you?
.....
- Is the optician going to test his eyes today?
.....
- Did someone replace your broken window?
.....

29 Rephrase the following using have, make or get, as in the example.

- Her husband persuaded her to wear the red dress.
Her husband got her to wear the red dress.
- She asked the shop assistant to deliver her purchases to her house.
.....
- Douglas insisted that his brother help him do the washing up.
.....

Concession

Clauses of concession are used to express a contrast. They are introduced with the following words/phrases:

but, although/even though/though, in spite of/despite, however, while/whereas, yet, still, nevertheless, on the other hand

- but
He had a good voice but he never sang in public.
- although/even though/though + clause
Even though is more emphatic than although. Though is informal and is often used in everyday speech. It can also be put at the end of a sentence.
Although/Even though/Though it was hot, he wore boots.*
He wore boots although/even though/though it was hot. It was hot. He wore boots, though.
- in spite of/despite + noun/-ing form
In spite of/Despite his talent, he couldn't find a job.*
He couldn't find a job in spite of/despite his talent.
- in spite of/despite + the fact that + clause
In spite of/Despite the fact that he had talent, he couldn't get a job.*
- however/nevertheless
A comma is always used after however/nevertheless.
He left early. However/Nevertheless, he missed the bus.
- while/whereas
She is blonde, while/whereas her brother has dark brown hair.
- yet (formal)/still
It was June, yet it was quite cold.
My house is old. Still, it is in very good condition.
- on the other hand
My new house is in a safer area. On the other hand, it is much smaller than my old one.
- however/no matter how + adj/adv + subject + verb
We couldn't convince him however/no matter how hard we tried.

Clauses of Result

Clauses of result are used to express result. They are introduced with the following words/phrases:

as a result, therefore, consequently/as a consequence, so, so/such ... that etc

- as a result/therefore/consequently/as a consequence The hole in the ozone layer is becoming bigger and bigger. As a result/Therefore/Consequently/As a consequence the Earth's temperature is rising at an alarming rate.
- so I was feeling lonely, so I went to visit my friend.
- such a/an + adjective + singular countable noun
Jack is such a good singer that everybody loves him.
- such + adjective + plural/uncountable noun
They were such nice people that I will never forget their kindness.
It was such heavy luggage that we had to pay excess baggage charge at the airport.
- such a lot of + plural/uncountable noun
He has got such a lot of books that he has to buy a new bookcase.
There was such a lot of work to do that I couldn't finish on time.
- so + adjective/adverb
She felt so embarrassed that she blushed.
The thief ran so fast that nobody was able to catch him.
- so much/little + uncountable noun
so many/few + plural noun
There was so much smog that I couldn't see the view.

There were so many mistakes in the book that it had to be reprinted.
He had so few plastic cups that he had to go and buy more.

Clauses of Purpose

Clauses of purpose are used to explain why somebody does something. They are introduced with the following words/expressions:

- to-infinitive Mary phoned the doctor to make an appointment.
- in order to/so as to + infinitive (formal) The editor requested that everyone work overtime in order to meet the newspaper deadline.
- so that + can/will (present/future reference) Take my number so that you can call me when you get there.
- so that + could/would (past reference) He finished his homework early so that he could go out with us.
- in case + present tense (present or future reference) Take a coat in case it is cold.
- in case + past tense (past reference) She had taken her cell phone in case she needed it.
Note: in case is never used with will or would.
- for + noun (expresses the purpose of an action)
They went to their friend's house for dinner.
- for + -ing form (expresses the purpose of something or its function) Knives are also used for cutting meat.
- with a view to + -ing form The Richardsons saved money with a view to buying a house.

We can express negative purpose using:

- in order not to/so as not to + infinitive He made a list of the things he had to buy so as not to forget anything.
- prevent + noun/pronoun (+ from) + -ing form
Violent winds prevented the plane (from) departing.

Further Writing Practice : Stories

- Stories can be written either in the first or the third person and present a series of events, real or imaginary.
- We normally use past tenses in stories: e.g. He stood on the deck looking out to sea as the ship was leaving the harbour.
- When writing a story, we need to keep a time sequence in mind. Stories describe a sequence of events which need to be linked with appropriate sequence words such as: First, Then/Next, After/Before (that), During/Meanwhile, Finally, As soon as, The moment that, As, No sooner ... than, Hardly ... when, Immediately, Since, While, Until, By the time, As long as: e.g. He stood up and walked towards the door. Meanwhile, Stella was poking the fire.
- Using a variety of adjectives (disgusted, amusing, astonished etc) and adverbs (fearlessly, cautiously, amazingly etc) will make our stories more interesting to the reader: e.g. He carefully approached the empty house and knocked on the wooden door.
- We can use descriptions of people, places or objects to create atmosphere and emphasise specific parts of the narration: e.g. Behind the desk there was a cheerful little girl looking at me smiling shyly.
- We can use direct speech to make our stories more dramatic: e.g. "What's this?" she asked.

- Interpreting rubrics

1 Read the rubric and look at the underlined key words. Then answer the questions below.

Your teacher has asked you to write a story about a frightening experience for the school magazine. The story must begin with the following words: It was raining heavily yesterday ...

Write your story (120-180 words).

- 1 What are you going to write?
- 2 Who is going to read your piece of writing?
- 3 Who will the main character(s) be?
- 4 What can the story be about?
- 5 What words must you use in your writing? Where?
- 6 How many words must you write?
- 7 How can you begin your story?

Trapped

It was raining heavily yesterday evening as I was walking to work. I reached the building and, as usual, I went up to the security office and changed into my uniform. I was in a good mood and I figured that I could easily finish my first patrol before 9 pm.

I had only just begun my security patrol when there was a terrible rumble, like thunder, and the building literally started to collapse around me. I remember falling and then I was lying on cold concrete in total darkness.

I was trapped. I started to shout frantically but I realised it was useless. That turned into the longest night of my life. It seemed like an eternity before I heard faint voices above me. I shouted for help. A man shouted back, "Where are you?" "Here, here!" I yelled at the top of my voice. "Don't panic – we'll get you out of there," he called.

When a chunk of debris was moved and I saw the dim lights, I knew I would be safe. As the rescuer climbed down carefully and pulled me out, I felt relieved. Although my leg was hurting terribly, I was happy to be safe and sound.

Para 2

Para 3

Para 4

- Model analysis

2 a) Read the model.

- 1 Which paragraph sets the scene?
- 2 What is the main event?
- 3 What happened before it?
- 4 What happened in the end?
- 5 How did the character feel?
- 6 Underline the direct speech in the model.

b) Read the model again and complete the paragraph plan.

c) List the events in the order they happened. Use them to tell the class a short summary of the story.

- The building started to collapse.
- He went to the security office.
- A man found him.
- He fell and got trapped.
- He went to work.
- He heard a rumble.
- He heard voices.
- The rescuer pulled him out.
- He shouted for help.

3 What adjectives has the writer used to describe the following?

mood concrete rumble darkness night voices lights

4 Fill in the adverbs the writer uses with the following verbs. Make sentences using these phrases.

- | | |
|-----------------------------|----------------------|
| 1 finish | 4 climbed down |
| 2 started to collapse | 5 hurting |
| 3 shout | |

5 Listen to the story and put the pictures into the correct order. Then write a story based on them entitled: A Flight to Remember. Write your story (120-180 words).

• Descriptive Techniques

To make your story more interesting to the reader you can:

- use a variety of adjectives and adverbs that bring the text to life: e.g. The lovely old lady smiled warmly at me.
- use direct speech and a variety of verbs such as: exclaimed, uttered, screamed, announced, mentioned, stated, expressed, shouted, etc to avoid using said all the time: e.g. Instead of saying “Let’s go!” he said, you can say “Let’s go!” he exclaimed.
- use your senses (sight, sound, smell, taste, touch): e.g. I heard the sound of shattering glass and saw people running hurriedly towards the exit. I could smell something burning and a blast of hot air blew past me. I felt the heat increasing as I struggled to stand up.

- Adjectives/Adverbs

6 Replace the words in bold with one of the adjectives or adverbs from the lists.

countless fierce terrible

The 1) old lady lived in a(n) 2) big house on a(n) 3) quiet street near the edge of town. She had lived there all her life and her house was filled with 4) nice 5) old furniture and collectibles. She spent most of her time in a(n) 6) small parlour at the back of the house reading books in front of a(n) 7) hot fire.

7 Fill in: victoriously, politely, cautiously, quickly, happily, wearily, fortunately, gently, always, seriously.

- 1 She excused herself from the dinner table.
- 2 None of the hotel guests were injured in the fire.
- 3 You should wash your hands before you eat.
- 4 The man instructed everyone to walk towards the exit.
- 5 The trainer approached the lion.
- 6 the plane landed safely and on time.
- 7 Becky accepted the invitation to the birthday party.
- 8 The boy stroked the puppy and wrapped it in a blanket.
- 9 The family returned home after their weekend of camping in the mountains.
- 10 The team celebrated winning the championship.

- Using a variety of verbs

8 Complete the sentences with: exclaimed, shouted, assured, whispered, explained, screamed.

- 1 “Everything will be fine,” he her.
- 2 “You look gorgeous,” Tom in admiration.
- 3 “Hide in here! Quick!” she just before the door burst open.
- 4 “Oh, no! It’s going to fall!” she in terror.
- 5 “It was all my fault,” he to the police officer.
- 6 “Psst. Over here,” a strange voice.

Further Writing Practice: Stories

• Feelings

Stories should illustrate how the characters feel. e.g. anger, happiness, sadness, frustration, loneliness, etc. This makes them more interesting to the reader and brings the characters to life.

9 Read the following story endings which describe how the characters feel. Fill in the gaps with the adjectives: frustrated, angry, lonely, happy, sad.

- | | |

• Beginning and ending a story

The beginning and ending of a story is very important. A good beginning will stimulate interest and make the reader want to continue reading the story. A good ending will give the reader a sense of satisfaction.

Ways of starting a story:

- a creating atmosphere by describing the weather, people, setting the scene, etc
- b using direct speech, either a statement or a question
- c expressing someone's mood or feelings

- d directly addressing the reader
- e asking a rhetorical question

Ways of ending a story:

- a using direct speech
- b asking a rhetorical question
- c describing your reactions, feelings or mood
- d describing other people's reactions or feelings
- e creating a feeling of suspense or mystery

Remember that more than one technique may be used to begin or end a story.

10 Match the beginnings (1-4) to the endings (A-D), then decide which techniques have been used in each.

Beginnings

1 "Bob, what's that over there?" Jack sounded nervous as he pointed towards the trees. I looked. What was that pile of clothes?

2 Why is it that the most important things happen when we don't expect them? The sun was shining as they walked through the jungle. Everybody was nervous, especially James Johnson. The scientist had been working all his life to find the lost tomb of Itawa, the ancient Brazilian god.

3 Have you ever been to a haunted house? Brian stood in the dark, deserted street looking up at the haunted house. He wondered why he had agreed to go inside since it made him nervous. He had no choice, though, but to go in.

4 The train had not moved for some time. We were worried. It was becoming hard to breathe as it was extremely hot in the carriage and the air conditioning had stopped working ages ago.

Endings

A When we got out into the fresh air, we felt relieved. We were safe at last.

B He ran away as fast as he could. He wasn't sure what he had seen but he knew he would never go near that house again.

C When the doctor told us we had saved the man's life we were glad. He was lucky that we had gone to work a little earlier that winter's morning.

D James was tired. "OK, so it wasn't in this valley," he thought, "but I know it exists. I'll just have to keep looking." He walked back to the camp, anxious to start his search again.

11 Write a beginning and an ending for a story entitled "A Day to Remember". Use any of the techniques above.

• Descriptions in stories

Stories may include descriptions of the people, objects or places involved in the event(s).

Describing People

- When you describe physical appearance, remember to include details of: height, build, age, facial features, hair, clothes, moving from general adjectives to more specific ones: e.g. John was a tall, well-built man. He had an oval face with bright blue eyes and a big nose. His short, fair hair made him look sophisticated. He always dressed smartly in a well-cut suit and tie.
- When you describe a person's character, you should always justify the qualities you mention each time: e.g. He was so reliable, he would never let you down.
- The negative qualities should be written using mild language: e.g. Instead of saying: He was aggressive, you can say: He had/showed/displayed a tendency to be aggressive or He could be aggressive at times.

12 a) The following adjectives describe people's physical characteristics. List them as in the example. Compare with your partner.

- blue • short • oval • tiny • straight • freckled
- dark • of medium height • slim • upturned
- muscular • brown • wavy • overweight
- blond(e) • almond-shaped • long • plump
- wrinkled • ugly • shabby • crooked • elegant
- attractive • fashionable • slanting • tall
- casual • curly • green • well-built

Height	short
Build	tiny
Face	oval
Eyes	blue
Nose	straight
Hair	brown
Clothes	shabby

b) Find pictures of people from magazines. Describe them to your partner.

13 a) Fill in: lazy, intelligent, practical, reliable, patient, lively, unstable, generous, boring, optimistic.

- 1 Mary was a very person. You could always count on her to do what you asked her to.
- 2 He tended to be His mood was likely to change at any time.
- 3 He was a very person. He did nothing but watch TV most of the day.
- 4 Mike could often be He had a tendency to repeat the same old stories.
- 5 She had a very outlook on life. She always looked on the bright side. She never expected anything to go wrong.
- 6 The teacher was very with her students. She always explained things several times.
- 7 The little boy was so he could learn things quickly and easily.
- 8 Her uncle was very He always gave money to charity.
- 9 Josh was very He was full of energy and high spirits.
- 10 Her husband was very He repaired everything around the house.

b) Use appropriate adjectives to describe a friend of yours to your partner.

14 Make sentences with the following personality traits. Justify the adjectives when describing a person.

- pleasant • reserved • sensible • selfish
- helpful • naïve • unreliable • silly • honest
- unpredictable • serious • curious • dishonest
- pessimistic • sociable • witty • amusing • dull

e.g. Her children were very pleasant. They always behaved in a polite and friendly manner.

Describing Objects

- When you describe objects you can use a variety of adjectives. You should bear in mind the following order:

Opinion, Size/Weight, Age, Shape, Colour, Country of Origin, Material NOUN

Instead of saying “He was holding a box” we can say “He was holding a beautiful, heart-shaped, velvet box.” We do not normally use more than three adjectives to describe a noun.

- We can add more information in a prepositional phrase after the noun: e.g. It was a beautiful, heart-shaped, velvet box with a red ribbon on it.

- 15 The following adjectives describe objects. Use them to complete the table, as in the example.

enormous	ancient	light	rubber	round
modern	little	purple	Spanish	British steel	Chinese	metal	red	heavy disgusting	new	black	attractive	flat

Opinion	beautiful
Size/Weight	large
Age	old
Shape	oval

Colour	blue
Origin	Egyptian
Material	woollen
Noun	carpet

- 16 Read the following extract from a story and put the adjectives into the correct order, then cover the text and try to describe the suitcase in the picture.

As I entered the house I heard people laughing in the living room. A(n) (leather, old, square) suitcase was in the corridor. Each corner of the suitcase was covered by a (dark, small, leather) patch, which was fastened by (metal, tiny, round) studs. The suitcase was covered with many (colourful, interesting, paper) labels, and had a sturdy handle. There were also two (metal, silver, small) locks on either side of the handle. “Who can this suitcase belong to? What is in it?” I wondered as I headed towards the living room.

- 17 Show and tell. Bring objects from home or choose objects in the classroom and describe them to your partner.

- Discuss & Write

- 18 Read the rubrics and answer the questions. Choose one and write your story.

A

Your teacher has asked you to write a story for an international magazine. The story must start with the following words: I had never been so surprised in my whole life.

Write your story (120-180 words).

B

You have decided to enter a short story competition. The competition rules say that the story must be entitled: A Special Birthday Present.

Write your story (120-180 words).

- What should you write?
- Who is your target reader?
- Who can the main character(s) be?
- What can the story be about?

Swap papers and evaluate your partner's story. Think about: spelling mistakes, paragraph structure, sequence of events, tenses.
