Reading

- 1 a) RNE Read the text. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each statement correctly. Circle the answer you choose.

My parents always said I was born to be a sportsman. They said that even when I was in nappies, I wasn't happy unless I was kicking or throwing a ball. My first memory is of Dad and me playing football in our back garden. I recall my mum sitting on the grass under the summer sun, cheering me on as I clumsily kicked a football into the net my dad was 'defending'. The sense of achievement I felt when I scored my first goal stuck with me, and my life has revolved around football ever since.

- 5 As I grew up, I dreamed of becoming a football player. In class, I tried to stay focused on my studies, I knew that few people became professional sportsmen and it was crucial to get a good education. But I devoted every spare second to my passion. At break times, I could be found in the playground practising ball skills, and almost as soon as the bell rang at the end of the school day, I was playing five-a-side games at the local playing fields. I knew that if I wanted to become a success, I would have to put all my energy into the game.

- 10 My big break came when I was 18. Leicester City FC offered me a place in their squad. It was there that I learned the true value of teamwork. I played with a fantastic group of guys and we worked toward one common goal - to win! I learned that every person has their own individual talents, and a great team brings these talents together.

We enjoyed great success at Leicester, and I was lucky enough to become one of the UK's top scorers! I was transferred to Everton and, while I was sad to leave my teammates, I was excited about working with new people and making new friends. My time at Everton was an outstanding experience. While I was there, I scored 38 goals in 52 games. It wasn't long until I was on a new journey, this time across the sea to Spain to play for FC Barcelona. I was nervous at first, but it turned out that there was no reason to panic.

- 15 I felt great pride when I stepped out into the stadium and onto the pitch in Barcelona. Many footballers dream of playing for such a glorious team! It was a wonderful time for me. Not only did we beat our arch rivals, Real Madrid, but we also fought our way through to the UEFA finals where we defeated Sampdoria and became European Champions.

As you can imagine, the proudest I ever felt was when I played for my country, England, in the World Cup. The tournament raises the level of competitiveness of every player. Not only do you have to be mentally prepared, you have to be at the peak of physical fitness. So, as you can imagine, it didn't help matters that I had to play the tournament with my left arm heavily strapped up! But I was determined not to let one injury stop me and played anyway! Because we were a strong team, we got to the quarter finals. I scored six goals during the competition and won the 'Golden Boot' award!

Football has taken me around the world, from England to Spain to Japan. I have become fluent in two other languages and have experienced other cultures. Since retiring, I have worked as a sports commentator and as a writer. I've even done some TV advertisements, but I'm not quite an Oscar winner! I've become quite the all-round sportsman - I've even played for Leicester Cricket Club. My career has provided me with many happy memories that I wouldn't change for the world. Plus, I've played many fun games of footy!

The Way to Work...

1 David Mulcahy is a high-powered stock broker with a beautiful home in London's exclusive Notting Hill area. David has little to complain of in his life but one thing that does exasperate him is the problems caused by heavy traffic in the capital. He says he would prefer to drive to work but it just isn't possible. The traffic moves too slowly, he has to pay a congestion charge to enter the centre, and then also pay for parking. So, for David, it's much cheaper to buy a travel card to use on the tube, London's metro system. The only time he gets to show off in his brand new Mercedes convertible is at the weekends.

3 Benjamin Goldstein started his job as a naval architect just after leaving university. His work requires him to travel to many parts of the world to oversee projects he is responsible for. He says that in the beginning he found it very tiring and often suffered from jet lag. However, he has learned how to cope over the years. He suggests that anyone who does a lot of long haul flying should drink plenty of fluids and rest as much as possible before and during the flights to combat some of the problems caused by frequent air travel.

2 When Judy Childress was offered the post of director of a large multinational organisation whose headquarters are in Paris, she considered moving to the other side of the channel. But in the end she decided against it as she didn't want to disrupt the lives of her two young children who were happily settled in their school. Instead, she decided to commute to Paris on the Channel Tunnel train. According to Judy, she gets to work faster than her friends who commute into London from the suburbs, because the journey on the super-fast Eurostar train only takes 2 hours and 15 min.

4 Rachel Kettering had always wanted to experience life in a foreign country and last year she moved to Athens, Greece to work as an English teacher. She loves the climate and the way of life but admits that the pollution caused by traffic congestion in the centre is one downside to living there. She would like to see more people abandon their cars and use public transport. She claims that people would save time and money and the quality of life for everyone in the city would improve immensely.

5 Anne Kavanagh is a research scientist at St John's College, Cambridge. She lives with her family just outside the town in the village of Cherry Hinton. To get to the lab in the mornings, Anne uses pedal power and rides her bike to work. She points out that it's a really good way to keep fit and it's also very environmentally friendly as it causes no pollution at all. She says that the only thing you have to watch out for in Cambridge is bicycle thieves and she always keeps her bike securely locked when she's not using it.

6 Mike Hudson runs a DIY store in the centre of Manchester and is the proud owner of a 1950's Royal Enfield Bullet motorbike. Mike says that his favourite part of the day is riding to work in the mornings whatever the weather is like. He claims that it's such a beautiful old machine that just the sound of the engine running puts a smile on his face in the morning. He also says he feels like a free spirit whenever he rides his bike, and that it's a great way to beat the traffic jams and much more economical to run than a car.

7 As far as Norman Hadley is concerned, there's no better way to travel than on foot. He is the manager of the local post office in the small town of Garstang, Lancashire. Norman always walks the three miles to work in the morning, even if it's snowing. He says that in the five years since he stopped using his car (because the cost of running it was so high) he hasn't had even one day of illness. Norman says it's not just the fact that walking keeps him fit, but that it gives him time to himself just to think about life.

Reading

- 1 a) RNE You are going to read an article about a famous pop band. Read the text and choose the correct parts of sentences (A-G) to complete gaps 1-6. There is one extra part of a sentence you do not need to use.

GREAT ENTERTAINERS

The Beatles were an English pop band from Liverpool whose members were John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr. They are one of the most commercially successful and critically acclaimed bands in the history of popular music. In fact, they revolutionised the music industry and touched the lives of all who heard them.

The Beatles are the greatest musical act of all time in the United States of America. They charted 20 Number One singles in the US, a number even greater than Elvis Presley, 1. In the United Kingdom, The Beatles released more than 40 different singles and albums that reached Number One. This commercial success was repeated in many other countries, and it is estimated that by 1995, they had sold over 1 billion records worldwide. Their song "Yesterday" is the most covered song in history, appearing in the Guinness Book of World Records with over 3000 recorded versions. It is also the most played song in the history of international radio.

In the mid-1960s, The Beatles led what is known as the "British Invasion" into the United States, 2. Their extreme worldwide popularity led to the coining of the term "Beatlemania", describing the fan frenzy of young teenage girls towards the band. During live concerts, their music was often inaudible 3. Consequently, the band stopped touring in 1966 for reasons ranging from safety concerns to frustration that no one could hear or was listening to their music.

The Beatles' influence was not only limited to music though. Young people began to imitate the band's style of dress, donning Nehru jackets and psychedelic prints. But the first example of their influence was probably their haircuts. In 1964, men and boys in the US simply did not wear their hair long, and comparatively speaking, the Beatles' hair was scandalously long. Nevertheless, many teenagers began to emulate the Beatles' style by growing their hair long – 4.

The Beatles' clothes and style made them leading trendsetters in the world of fashion. Ironically, the Beatles did not start any of these fashion trends, but their unparalleled popularity allowed them to reach a vast audience.

Sadly, the group broke up on April 10, 1970, 5. Throughout the 1970s, the group members pursued solo careers.

Fans, during this period, were hoping that the band would eventually reunite, although these hopes were destroyed by the murder of John Lennon in New York City in December 1980.

The Beatles were inducted into the American Rock and Roll Hall of Fame as a band during their first year of eligibility in 1988. Then, they made it into the UK Music Hall of Fame in 2004. The three surviving members of the group sang together again in 1994 and were all involved in the creation of the Beatles' anthology in 1995. Queen Elizabeth knighted Paul McCartney in March 1997. He dedicated his knighthood to fellow Beatles George Harrison, Ringo Starr and John Lennon, and the people of Liverpool. For almost 50 years, The Beatles have influenced music, culture, politics, and society; 6. They were one of a kind and richly deserve their place in music history.

- A which is why they are said to be the best-selling rock band ever
- B which often got them into trouble
- C which proves their popularity is well-founded
- D which paved the way for other British bands to cross the Atlantic
- E which made little difference to the lives of those around them
- F when Paul McCartney announced his departure
- G due to the deafening screams of fans.

Finding a Healthy Balance

As a growing boy, I don't think anyone would have called me health conscious. I was typical of my peer group - the odd fizzy drink and trips to meet friends at the local fast food restaurant.

5 However, I was lucky to have a mother who made sure I ate well. She enjoyed cooking and all our meals were varied and delicious!

At the age of eighteen, I moved to a university far from home and suddenly had to look after myself. I really missed my 10 mum's home-cooked meals. She had sent me away armed with recipes, but I never wanted to cook when I got back to the flat after a hard day of lectures. For this reason, it wasn't long before my friends and I discovered our local hamburger

15 bar, just two roads from our home. It was so easy to get our dinner there and, compared to our few attempts in the kitchen, the food tasted great. Stopping by on the way back from classes became a regular habit.

After a couple of months, I started to notice some changes in myself; I was getting acne and my clothes were becoming tight

20 and uncomfortable. I was also very lethargic and friends complained that I would get irritable, often for no good reason. At first, I didn't pay too much attention to it all, I wasn't surprised that the stress of university was taking its toll. However, over the weeks that followed, I started getting colds and headaches

25 on a regular basis. My health seemed to be deteriorating, but everyone else appeared to be coping. I began to question if I was cut out for university.

I decided to listen to friends' suggestions to visit a doctor. I went along and, after a five-minute discussion of my unhealthy

30 eating habits, she referred me to a nutritionist. I have to admit I was a little sceptical; I could accept that my acne and weight gain might result from the foods I ate, but the moods, headaches, colds - surely diet couldn't cause these too? Nonetheless, I made the appointment and soon found I had underestimated the importance of diet. I was told that the 35 food I ate was high in fat but low in goodness. The lack of fruit, vegetables, and other food groups meant my diet wasn't balanced and my body was struggling to keep up with the demands I was putting on it. She explained that if I continued to eat so unhealthily, I would be at risk of obesity and 40 diabetes. Apparently, obesity was now an epidemic in America, and England was following suit. Fast food seemed to be a serious health hazard.

Some simple blood tests revealed that I had an iron deficiency. In order to combat this and to improve my generally rundown

45 system, the nutritionist made me a personalised plan of nutritious meals to prepare and listed the vitamins I needed to supplement my diet with. She was very stern when giving me the advice. She told me not to expect it to be easy, since it is 50 now believed that the body becomes addicted to a junk food diet. I'd never heard this claim before and was completely taken aback. There was a lot to do to get back on track.

After four weeks, I could really see a difference. The headaches and colds had completely disappeared and the acne and weight gain were well on the way to being rectified.

55 A few relieved friends were also pleased to have their happy flat mate back! It took time to learn about food and how to prepare decent meals. But it soon became a habit, just like my unhealthy lifestyle had. My energy levels were really high and maintaining my grades was no longer a massive struggle. I'm 60 not saying that everyone should abstain from fast food completely, but we should all be health conscious. Once you experience the benefits of a healthy lifestyle, you won't want to see another hamburger again!

- 1 When the writer says he was not 'health conscious' he means that
- A he wasn't interested in food.

Exotic cooking

I have loved cooking ever since I was a young girl, and so I was very excited when, last year, my husband treated me to a cooking holiday in Thailand.

We flew out to Bangkok in early July, ready to sample the delights Thailand had to offer. After a few hours spent recovering from the journey, we were invited to meet the chef 1. He tried to give us an introduction, but it was hard to concentrate on what he was saying as a team of waiters kept bringing us more Thai specialities to try. Every dish was full of fresh, exotic flavours, especially to an English palate used to a very different cuisine. As we savoured the food, the chef told us that the following day we would make an early start in order to visit the local food markets.

Promptly at 7am the following morning, we met and headed off. I was amazed at the markets. There were tiny, red and green chillies in profusion 2. We then went in search of more seasonings. As we followed the chef among the stalls, we were met with a heady mix of aromas. I was familiar with things like garlic and coriander as I had used them in England, but others were native to Thailand and I was eager to start cooking with these novel ingredients.

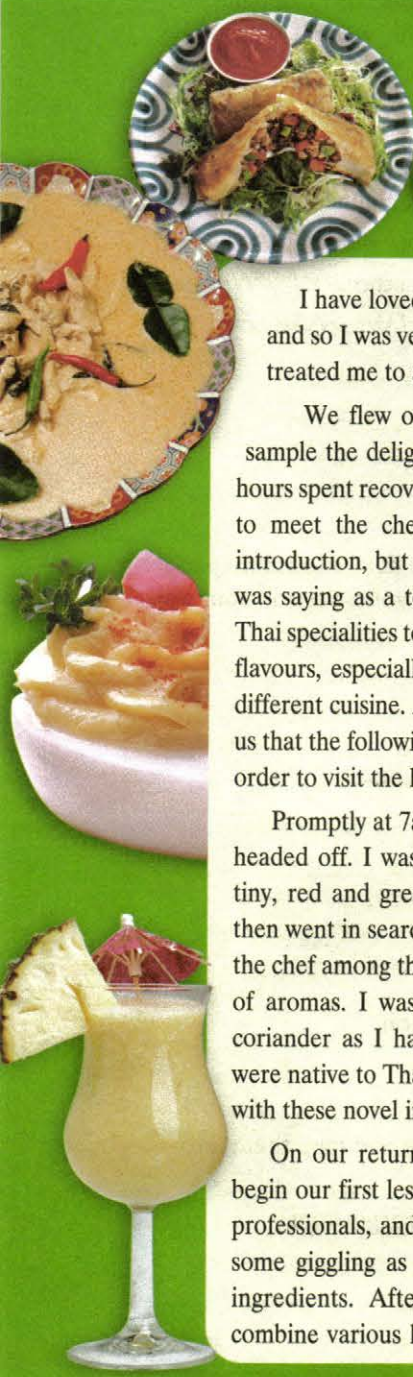

On our return, we went straight to the kitchen to begin our first lesson in Thai cooking. None of us were professionals, and every now and then you would hear some giggling as we tried to deal with the unfamiliar ingredients. After learning how to dice, chop and combine various herbs and spices, it was time to cook.

As the contents of the various pots and pans gently simmered, there was a delicious aroma 3.

At the end of the lesson, we put our completed dishes on a central table and the chef tasted each one, commenting on their flavour and texture. Apparently, mine had the right degree of spice in its flavour, 4. We took the constructive criticism in good spirits, sometimes laughing out loud at the politely-phrased comments. Finally, we all had the chance to try the dishes and, for a first attempt, our meals turned out pretty well.

Lessons continued in this manner until day four 5. The chef took us to a hotel in the mountains outside Bangkok. We visited the rice paddies which cover the slopes. It was fascinating to see rice growing, rather than in packets on supermarket shelves. That evening we made three different rice-based meals and learnt about the different types of rice used in Thai dishes.

After an exhausting day, we sat on the hotel terrace drinking delicious Thai tea with cinnamon and vanilla. It was then that our teacher decided to spring his surprise on us: on our last night back in Bangkok, we would be left to prepare our own Thai meal, to be served up to the guests of the hotel! He insisted that we were competent and, anyway, he would be on hand to help. Looking back now, it was a great idea, 6. The guests applauded our efforts, and we were proud to have rounded off a wonderful holiday in such fine style.

From takeaways to sophisticated cuisine, your local town centre has it all. We spoke to some of the people behind the scenes to find out more!

1 James Barton owns Recharge, a small coffee bar which serves takeaway beverages and a selection of convenient prepackaged snacks for people on the go. When asked about the typical clientele he caters for, James doesn't hesitate. "Office workers", he replies. "They seem to need a constant supply of caffeine! Lunchtimes are particularly hectic as the queue stretches right out the door!" So James and his team are developing an office delivery service to meet the needs of workers throughout the day.

3 Luke Tomlinson works as a waiter at Whitely Manor, a restaurant well-known for its fine cuisine. Luke says that the restaurant's reputation for great food and its picturesque riverside location mean that it is constantly filled with people, so he rarely has a quiet moment at work. But he believes the hard work is worth it as he hopes to progress to a supervisory position through the company's career-building scheme.

2 When she's not studying hard, Sarah Fox is behind the counter at the local fast food restaurant Supersize. Although it isn't everyone's ideal job, it allows her to work antisocial hours which don't clash with her university timetable. "We tend to get a lot of teenagers in here who want a cheap bite to eat and shoppers who come in to take a breather from the high street," she told us. Her only complaint is that as she works the evening shift she doesn't have much of a social life.

4 Greg Phillips has been working for Fast Pizza for just over a year. When he first joined he used to deliver the pizzas all over town on a moped but he found it really stressful and now he stays in the shop to take the telephone orders. "We are open from four in the afternoon till midnight," he says, "and while there's a steady flow of orders all evening it's from ten onwards that we are really rushed off our feet." Greg adds that he doesn't really mind because he's not the one who has to make all the pizzas!

5 Lisa Brady works as a kitchen porter in the restaurant of the Marsdale Hotel. Her duties include keeping the kitchen clean and making sure all foodstuffs are stored away properly. She told us she was teased a lot by the other staff when she started because not many women work in kitchens. "It didn't take me long to earn their respect, though, when they saw what a hard worker I am." Although being a kitchen porter is the lowest rung of the ladder in a professional kitchen, Lisa says she loves working in the catering trade and is thinking of making a career out of it.

6 Hilda Bowman is semi-retired and works part-time as the manager of Aunt Maud's, an old fashioned teashop. "Most of our patrons are of the older generation, who appreciate proper tea with good cream cakes and fresh pastries," she told us, "but, lately, we've been getting more and more young people coming in. I think taking afternoon tea has become quite fashionable again." Hilda says she enjoys the job because the hours of work suit her and she gets to meet some very charming people.

7 Anup Khan has been the head chef at The Moghul, a renowned Indian restaurant, since it opened ten years ago. "Unlike most Indian restaurants, The Moghul doesn't do takeaways and customers are very lucky to get a table without booking first," he points out. "It can get very frantic in the kitchen at the weekends when we're very busy, but I thrive on the hustle and bustle of a professional kitchen," he adds proudly. Considering the popularity of Indian food in Britain, Anup is likely to be busy for many more years to come.

Reading

- 1 a) RNE Read the extract from a novel about a man remembering strange dreams from his childhood. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each statement correctly. Circle the answer you choose.

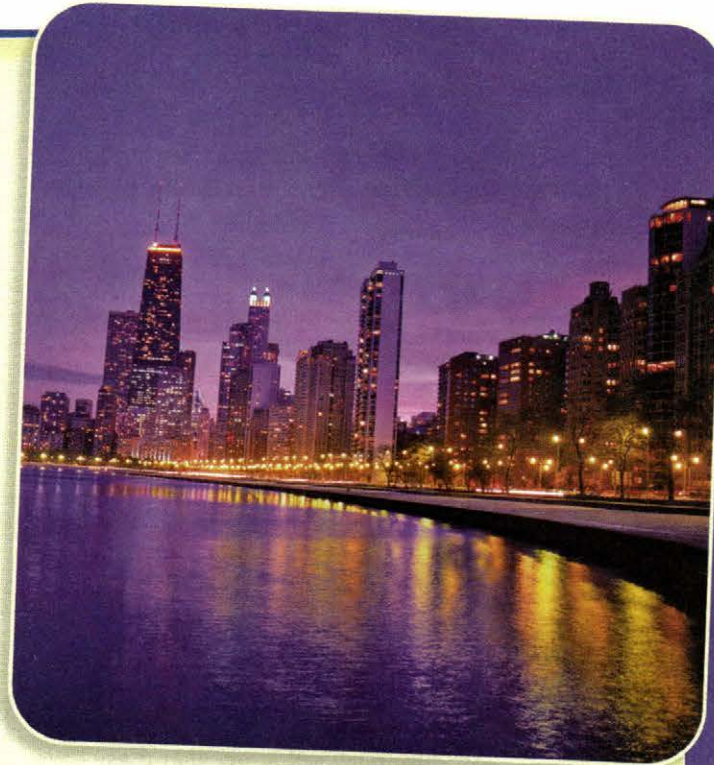

When I was quite small, I would sometimes dream of a city. This was strange because it began before I even knew what a city was, but this city, clustered on a curve of a big blue bay, would come into my mind. I could see the streets, and the buildings that lined them, the waterfront, even boats in the harbour; yet, on waking, I had never seen the sea, or a boat ... and the buildings were quite unlike any I knew. The traffic in the streets was strange, carts running with no horses to pull them; and sometimes there were things in the sky, shiny fish-shaped things that were certainly not birds.

Most often, I would see this wonderful place by daylight, but occasionally it was by night when the lights lay like strings of glow-worms along the shore, and a few of them seemed to be sparks drifting on the water, or in the air. It was a beautiful, fascinating place, and once, when I was still young enough to know no better, I asked my eldest sister, Mary, where this lovely city could be.

She shook her head, and told me that there was no such place – not now. But perhaps, she suggested, I could somehow be dreaming about times long ago. Dreams were funny things, and there was no accounting for them; so it might be that what I was seeing was a bit of the world as it had been once upon a time – the wonderful world that the Old People had lived in; as it had been before the trouble.

But after that she went on to warn me very seriously not to mention it to anyone else; other people, as far as she knew, did not have such pictures in their heads, either sleeping or waking, so it would be unwise to mention them. That was good advice, and luckily I had the sense to take it. People in our district had a very sharp eye for the odd, or the unusual, so that even my left-handedness caused slight disapproval. So, at that time, and for some years afterwards, I did not mention it to anyone – indeed, I almost forgot about it, for as I grew older the dream came less frequently, and then very rarely.

But the advice stuck. Without it I might have mentioned the curious understanding I had with my cousin Rosalind, and that would certainly have led us both into very grave trouble – if anyone had happened to believe me. Neither I nor she, I think, paid much attention to it at that time: we simply had the habit of caution. I certainly did not feel unusual. I was a normal little boy, growing up in a normal way, taking the ways of the world about me for granted. And I kept on like that until the day I met Sophie. Even then, the difference was not immediate. It is hindsight that enables me to fix that as the day when my first small doubts started to germinate.

That day I had gone off by myself, as I often did. I was, I suppose, nearly 10 years old. My next sister, Sarah, was five years older, and the gap meant that I played a great deal alone. I had made my way down the cart track to the south, along the borders of several fields until I came to the high bank, and then along the top of the bank for quite a way.

The bank was no puzzle to me then: it was far too big for me to think of as a thing that men could have built, nor had it ever occurred to me to connect it with the wondrous doings of the Old People whom I sometimes heard about. It was simply the bank, coming around in a wide curve, and then running straight as an arrow towards the distant hills; just a part of the world, and no more to be wondered at than the river, the sky, or the hills themselves.

- 8 Fortunately, they were able to make/struggle their way to safety.

Seeing an iceberg for the first time may arguably be the experience of a lifetime. As the white flecks begin to appear, you cannot stop yourself from reaching for your camera.

The journey south would be better by boat of course. In the aircraft cabin we cannot feel the chill wind [1]. However, as we approach we hear a shrill bell from the cockpit followed by the announcement: "Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to Antarctica."

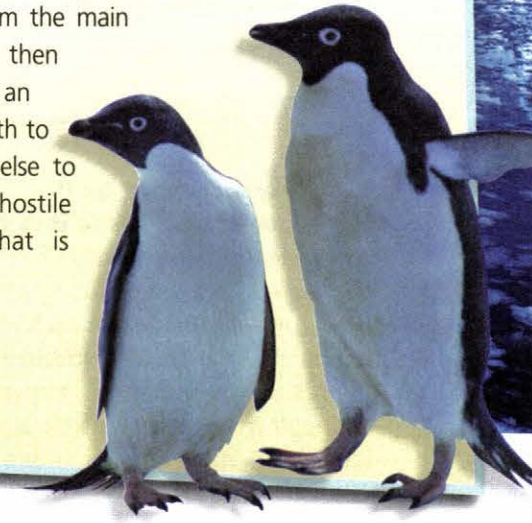

We are on the way to the scientific research station at Rothera. The base is on an island on the western side of the Antarctic peninsula [2]. It is almost on the edge of a massive floating ice sheet, and every year it slides closer to the open water. As the aircraft bursts through the clouds, it feels as if we are somehow intruding.

Our arrival at the research base comes as a shock. The metal prefabricated buildings on the slopes are a triumph of substance over style. The summer research season is in full swing when we arrive. Scientists with impressive qualifications live alongside the carpenters, electricians and mechanics [3]. The base's medical facilities are a fair size and the resident doctor has an office which can be converted into an operating theatre.

It was difficult to know exactly what to expect at Rothera, but it still came as a surprise to find the former, very influential, BBC weatherman, David Lee here. He receives images from the weather satellites that pass overhead and combines these with air pressure system diagrams to come up with weather forecasts [4].

Rothera is a fully active research base, and it is also a staging post for field parties carrying out research in the heart of the continent. Of the very few people who have visited the continent, most have never made it as far south as our present position [5].

The scientists and support workers here live in a very hostile environment [6]. Soon this base will have to be rebuilt before the ice it rests on breaks away from the main continent. Perhaps then the ice will form an iceberg, drifting north to welcome someone else to the spectacular, hostile white continent that is Antarctica.

Festivals

of the World

1 Every summer, on the last Wednesday of August, thousands flock to Buñol in Spain to take part in the tomato festival. The thrilling climax of the festival is a huge food fight where people throw tons of tomatoes at each other. Legend has it that this strange tradition began in the 1940's when a squabble in the town got out of hand. Although it was outlawed for a number of years, the festival now attracts about thirty thousand visitors.

2 The Oniro Fire Festival is one of the largest fire festivals in Japan. It takes place every year on January 7th. Also known as 'Demon's Night', the purpose of the festival is to cleanse the local Shinto temple of evil spirits. During the festival, which is over 1,500 years old, six giant torches weighing over a ton each are set alight one by one as spectators pray for health and happiness in the coming year.

3 The Hermanus Whale Festival is a four-day festival held in South Africa every September in honour of the annual return of the Southern Right whales to the waters of Walker Bay. Apart from whale watching, the festival also has many concerts, art performances and other attractions for festival-goers to attend. While visitors are enjoying the attractions they don't need to worry about missing out on whale spotting, as Hermanus boasts the world's only 'whale crier' who alerts visitors to the arrival of whales on his kelp horn.

4 The largest medieval festival in England is held over the August bank holiday at Herstmonceux castle in Sussex. It includes a wide range of activities which really bring history to life for the visitors. There are battle reenactments, archery displays and spectacular parades as well as medieval taverns where visitors can sample medieval dishes. Youngsters are also well catered for at the festival and they are sure to enjoy the opportunity to learn more about life in the middle ages.

5 The Venice Carnival is a pre-Lenten festival where for one week the city is transformed into a huge costume party with music, dancing and acrobatic shows. The festival is an old tradition that went into decline in the 19th century but was brought back to life again in the 1970's. The modern carnival is not as rowdy as the original affair but it is still very colourful, with participants wearing fabulously elaborate masks and costumes. The carnival is so popular that the number of people staying in Venice doubles during the week of festivities.

6 The Teuila Festival, named after the national flower of Samoa, is an annual event celebrating the art and culture of the South Pacific islands of Samoa. Visitors to this unspoilt tropical paradise can enjoy a wide range of activities at the festival. There are many displays of traditional carving, weaving and dancing, as well as Samoan cricket tournaments, long boat races and a floral parade. There are flights from many places in the South Pacific to the Samoan capital of Apia, but the most accessible route is to take one of the direct flights that operate from New Zealand.

7 For a truly unique festival experience, come to The Festival of a Thousand Stars held every December in the centre of the Rift Valley in Ethiopia. The event attracts over 50,000 visitors a year, many from remote areas, who come to watch and take part in this festival of indigenous art and music. The main objective of the festival is to bring together the many different tribes of the Rift Valley region and to promote the wealth and diversity of its artistic traditions.

1 Read the rubrics. Which asks you to:

- describe something?
- narrate an experience?
- respond to an invitation?

1 You have received a letter from your English-speaking pen friend, Beatrice, who writes:

... I'm going on a cycling weekend in the Peak District National Park in June with two friends. I know you've done something similar before. Did you enjoy it? Did you hire your bikes or did you take your own? How about coming to visit me that weekend and coming on the cycling trip with us?

I'm busy preparing for a presentation that I have to do at school about a foreign country...

Write a letter to Beatrice. In your letter:

- answer her questions
- ask 3 questions about the school presentation

Write 100-140 words. Remember the rules of letter writing.

- 2 You have just been on a day-trip with friends but unfortunately you had a terrible day. Write your English-speaking pen friend an email telling him/her exactly what happened and why the day was so awful (120-180 words).
- 3 You have just come back from a family holiday in England and unfortunately your mum left an important personal item in the hotel room. Write a letter to the manager of the hotel describing the item and asking him/her if it has been found (120-180 words).

2 a) Read the extracts and match them to the rubrics in Ex. 1. What style is each written in? Which uses: narrative techniques? descriptive techniques?

A ... As soon as we had got into the theme park, it started to rain heavily. Everyone began to put up their umbrellas and it became more and more difficult to keep up with my group in the crowd. Suddenly, I realised that my friends were nowhere to be seen. Then, just as I was about to call my best friend on my mobile, a man bumped into me, pushed me to the ground and snatched the phone out of my hand! ...

B ... You asked me about the cycling holiday I went on. Well, it was so much fun and the countryside was absolutely beautiful! We cycled through lovely little towns bordering a lake, with majestic snow-capped mountains in the background. We hired our bikes as it's much easier to do that than to transport your own. As for coming with you on your cycling weekend in June, I'd really love to, but unfortunately I can't. In June, I'll be...

C ... My mother thinks that she may have left the diary in the bottom drawer of the bedside table on the left of the bed. The diary is medium-sized, dark blue and leather-bound and it has her initials, TBY, engraved on the front in gold lettering. If you find the diary, would it be possible...

b) Write appropriate beginnings/endings for each extract.

7) Your attendance would be greatly welcomed. If you could 8) confirm whether or not you 9) will be able to attend that would be 10) most helpful.

11) Kind regards,

12) Ms Adams

4 a) Read the letter and put the paragraphs in the correct order.

Dear James,

A Well, I hope you enjoy the DVD. Write and tell me what you thought!

B Where did you go to see the Shakespeare performance you told me about? Which play did you see? Was the acting good?

C In the film, Harry (played by Daniel Radcliffe) and Professor Dumbledore believe that Lord Voldemort has returned. So, Harry secretly begins training a small group of students which he calls 'Dumbledore's Army' – with the help of his best friends Hermione Granger and Ron Weasley, of course! It's an action-packed film with fantastic special effects and brilliant, effortless acting. I think it would be a great choice of film for you to watch with your friends!

D Thanks for your letter. How about watching Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix with your friends? It's the fifth in the series and my favourite so far!

Best Wishes,
David

I was struggling to get by. I had just moved to Gloucester from London and had taken the first job that I was offered as a cashier in a local supermarket. I was barely earning enough to do my weekly shopping and I yearned for the money I used to make back in London. As I couldn't afford my own place, I had settled for my best friend's sofa, but the hard cushions and backaches had made me realise that, above all else, I craved my old flat – my little sanctuary! I soon began to wonder if moving had been the right decision. That's when I heard a radio advert that changed my life...

"Looking for your own place but dreading the cost? Worry no more! You could live free for a year in the 'Enviro-House', one of Britain's first environmentally friendly homes. We're looking for a resident to live rent-free! For more details, visit www..." My friend had heard about this 'carbon-neutral' house and he thought that it would be very difficult to stick to an energy-conserving routine. I should have considered this, or at least have been concerned about how many 'guests' would actually pass through. But, as I sat on the painfully uncomfortable sofa, the only thing in my head were the words... 'Live free, live free.'

I visited the website and entered the competition to become an 'eco-housemate'. I was one of three lucky finalists who had to battle it out for a place in the house live on local television. We had to cook a meal for five judges using a solar cooker and only organic vegetables and then face questions from the studio audience. The judges weren't impressed with my cooking and I thought I had lost. But, as I looked at my friends in the studio audience they all gave me smiles and the 'thumbs up' and it was just the confidence boost I needed. Thankfully, I made the audience laugh, they liked me and I was voted into the house.

The other finalists were keen environmentalists with a passion for the issue, unlike me. I had never really given it much attention to be honest, as it was insignificant to me. I joked with the audience that the only way I was going to learn was if they sent me to the house! They agreed. As I moved into the house and tried to prepare for a drastic change in lifestyle, I suddenly became nervous and asked myself if I had considered everything thoroughly.

As I walked through the front door, I had worrying visions of living in a futuristic house, full of high-tech gadgets. I certainly wouldn't have been surprised to see a number of complex-looking machines. However, I was shocked to see the house was completely normal. In fact, it looked just like any other house. This eased my mind a bit, as I rarely find modern technology easy to understand, I prefer the simple life.

The heating system, water supply and electricity all worked in exactly the same way as they would in any other house in the UK. The only difference was that the house used renewable sources of energy. At first I thought the house would definitely need some fossil fuels, like coal and gas, but instead, solar panels and small wind turbines (which could be a little noisy at times!) were used to provide the hot water and electricity. The house didn't burn wood or oil either because smoke pollutes the atmosphere.

My experiences in the house made me look at the way I had lived my life in the past and how I should live it in the future. For example, it's neither difficult nor time-consuming to recycle, as long as you make it part of your daily routine. I also changed my perspective on which energy sources to use. I used to think solar panels were too expensive, but now I realise that although the initial cost is high, they actually save a lot of money over time. I've recognised that spending a few extra pounds is preferable to losing our beautiful planet. It's very simple to make those all-important changes; we just need the motivation to make them.

Task 1 (3 – 3.5 minutes)

Give a talk on the environmental problem you are most concerned about.

Remember to say:

- what the problem is and what caused it
- why you are so concerned about it
- what the effects of the problem are
- what you think should be done to improve the situation

You will have to talk for 1.5 – 2 minutes. The examiner will listen until you have finished. Then he/she will ask you some questions.

Extra questions:

- Who is responsible for the problem?
- Are other people as concerned about this problem as you are?
- What has been done to clean up the environment in your area?
- Who do you think should be responsible for dealing with environmental problems?
- Do you think the world will be a better or a worse place in the future?
- How important is it to cooperate with other countries in dealing with these problems?

Task 2 (3 – 4 minutes)

You and a classmate have been asked to help organise an activity for Environment Week at your school. You can choose from:

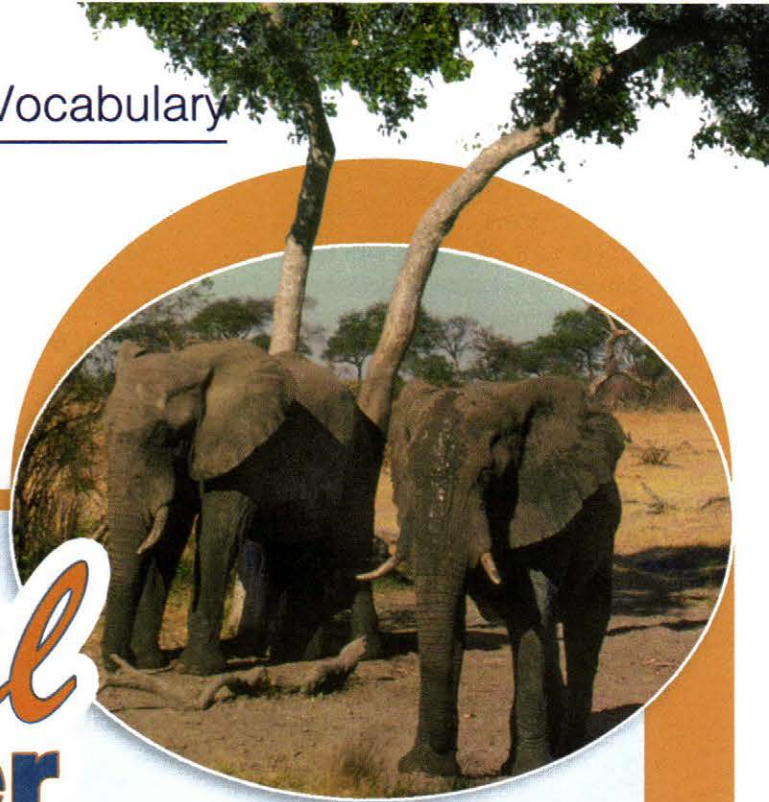

- a day of talks by experts on different environmental problems
- a photographic exhibition showing environmental problems in your area
- a visit to a recycling centre to see how waste materials can be reused
- one-hour workshop sessions on how to save energy in the home

Remember to:

- discuss all the options
- be polite
- take an active part in the conversation
- come up with ideas
- give good reasons
- find out about your friend's opinions and take them into account
- invite your friend to come up with suggestions
- come to an agreement

Animal Helper

As far back as I can remember, I have cared for animals. From the age of six, I had a pet dog, a cat, and even a goldfish. On my eighth birthday, my father took me to a huge pet shop and told me I could choose whatever I wanted. As I gazed into the glass tanks, I spotted a magnificent iguana, 1. My father knew from the excited expression on my face that I had made my decision.

My pet iguana, or 'Jimmy' as he quickly came to be known, was a real inspiration to me. As I watched him wander around his cage, I began to wonder about what weird and wonderful creatures there might be out there 2. I began to read everything I could lay my hands on about animals.

During my teens, my interest in animals grew and I started to become concerned about animal welfare and protection. The more I read about the many endangered species in the world, the more I felt that I had a duty to protect them. When I was 18, I went to university to study zoology. Obtaining my degree wasn't at all like work for me 3. While at university, I also gained valuable experience volunteering at a zoo. By the time graduation day came, I had learnt enough, and gained enough first-hand experience, to know that I wanted to be a park ranger.

Fresh out of university, I was lucky enough to gain employment at the famous West Midlands Safari Park. It was my dream job and I was incredibly excited, 4. I'd worked with small, exotic animals, but I had never been in actual contact with any of the larger ones before.

On my first day, I came face to face with two fully-grown African elephants and three adult tigers. My task was a small but important one – I was to help the keeper who was in charge of feeding them. Feeding such magnificent beasts is something you are unlikely to ever forget. It is a truly humbling experience, 5.

Safari Parks are a wonderful environment for captive animals because the animals are not penned in but are instead allowed to roam free. People make the mistake of thinking that the animals are in cages, but the aim is for their lives to be as close as possible to the lives they would have lived naturally 6.

Sadly, there are people who like to hunt some of these creatures. As a ranger, part of my job is to educate the public about animals. I believe that education is the best weapon in the fight to save these animals and other threatened wildlife.

- A in the wild
- B as the power and beauty of these animals takes your breath away
- C because the subject matter was so fascinating
- D in the world
- E because of animal conservation
- F and I didn't need to say anything
- G although I was also somewhat nervous

ECOLOGICAL Organisations

1 Located in Scotland, the Findhorn Foundation aims to foster an awareness that our survival on Earth depends on a balanced relationship with the natural world. It promotes ways of living that protect the environment and improve the lives of everyone in the community. The Findhorn eco-village produces its own organic food, erects eco-houses and has renewable energy systems. Many people from around the world come to the village each year to learn about the Findhorn Foundation's way of life.

2 ONE, an organisation with 2 million members, wants governments to keep their promises to improve life for the people of Africa. It does this by raising public awareness of the issues. ONE campaigns to get rid of hunger, provide education, wipe out disease and bring about sustainable development. With the invaluable support of celebrities like Sir Bob Geldof, ONE is working towards a better future for the African continent.

3 The Global Coral Reef Alliance (GCRA) was set up to reduce the damage done to one of the world's most fragile marine ecosystems: coral reefs. The organisation works with governments and other organisations to preserve, restore and rebuild coral reefs around the world. The GCRA uses a special technique to grow coral and help reefs recover from the effects of disease and man-made destruction.

4 Eco-Schools is an international programme which is designed to encourage schools to get involved in environmental projects. Environmental education is not just part of the lesson, but an important part of the students' lives. Schools also benefit financially from the advice the programme gives on reducing waste and implementing recycling schemes. A highly-valued award – the Green Flag – is given to schools that show they are committed to the highest environmental standards.

5 Reef Conservation International is a non-profit company that focuses on marine conservation in places such as Belize in the Caribbean and the Red Sea in Egypt. Projects include checking water quality and measuring pollution levels as well as carrying out surveys and helping protect turtles. People who would like to combine environmental work with a holiday should consider a trip with RCI. Their marine conservation holidays are open to anyone aged 18 or over.

6 The Environmental Investigation Agency is a highly-respected organisation dedicated to exposing crimes against endangered wildlife and the environment. The EIA work secretly to gather evidence and then present it to the media, governments and policy-makers. They are involved in a wide range of projects which include preventing illegal logging in rainforests and highlighting threats to the big cats of Asia.

7 Do you know where your food comes from? Do you know where the money you pay for the food goes? The Fairtrade Foundation was set up to ensure that the people who grew the food in the first place get their fair share of the profits. The money the workers receive goes towards improving communities and developing farming methods. When you buy a product from the Fairtrade range, you can be sure that the money you pay will go into the pockets of those who need it most.

1 Match the introductions and conclusions below and say which technique has been used in each one.

Introductions

1 Twenty years after the world's worst nuclear disaster, in which up to 200,000 people died, nuclear power plants are still being built. How can some scientists insist that nuclear power is safe in the face of overwhelming evidence that suggests the opposite?

2 Have you ever passed a homeless person on your way to work and wondered how he or she got there? The next victim may be you! As more and more people get into debt, and lose their jobs or their social support, they also lose their ability to provide shelter for themselves. This problem, however, has many solutions.

3 Beauty is in the eye of the beholder. Can we use this saying to justify the display of any type of art, no matter how unconventional or controversial it may be?

Techniques for introductions

- start with objective statement
- make reference to an interesting scene/situation
- address reader directly
- a quotation/a rhetorical question
- state problem that needs solution

Conclusions

A When considering how advanced our technology is, it is shameful to think that we cannot solve a problem such as homelessness. It seems to me that a little more compassion and a little less greed would make a big difference for those less fortunate than us.

B No one can deny that the natural resources we use to produce power will not last forever. But does the solution lie in putting our health and our lives at risk? More research needs to be done to determine whether we can use nuclear power safely.

C Freedom of expression is what art thrives on and should be protected. Whether an artist has the right to display a piece of art is a complex issue which every society must decide on for itself. After all, as G.K. Chesterton said, "Art, like morality, consists of drawing a line somewhere."

Techniques for conclusions

- your opinion on the topic
- a statement giving the reader something to consider
- a quotation or rhetorical question

2 Read the model, then complete the table with the points the writer makes for/against the topic.

The Advantages and Disadvantages of SPACE TRAVEL

According to Gene Roddenberry, the creator of Star Trek, "space is the final frontier". Whether you believe this or not, we have already made small steps into space. Some people say it is only a matter of time before we will send men to Mars and even explore beyond our solar system. Others think we should look after our own planet before we try to visit others.

On the one hand, there may be a number of benefits to space exploration. Firstly, space travel will require a lot of specialised equipment and developing it will provide jobs for many people. Secondly, the new inventions that are created may also be useful for people on Earth. Also, space exploration requires advances in technology and knowledge especially in the areas of energy and mechanics. This new knowledge may provide solutions to problems on this planet. Finally, it may help us find a second home as one day Earth may not be big enough.

On the other hand, however, there are also many drawbacks to exploring space. To start with, the billions of dollars that will be spent on it could be put to better use solving the problems we have now, such as world hunger. Furthermore, some of the new technology developed for space exploration could be used for harmful purposes in the wrong hands.

All things considered, it seems that the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. We need to use careful planning and good judgement to help us to invest in and use space technology wisely. Only time will tell if this is what will happen.

3 a) Read the paragraphs of an essay below and choose the correct topic sentences to fill in the gaps (A & B).

- 1 However, installing solar power in all homes would not be without its disadvantages.
- 2 I am totally against installing solar power in all homes.
- 3 On the one hand, there are some clear advantages to installing solar power in all homes.
- 4 In my opinion, all homes should definitely have solar panels installed.

b) Choose the correct linking words. What issue is being discussed? What points are made for and against the issue? What justifications/examples support the points?

A _____
Firstly/Therefore, using the sun's energy more is good for our planet. Moreover/For example, solar energy is a very clean form of energy that does not pollute. Secondly/As a result, unlike non-renewable energy sources like oil and gas, solar energy will never run out. Therefore/However, the people who use it depend less on oil, which can be very expensive and sometimes even in short supply.

B _____
On the other hand/To start with, the amount of energy that solar panels create varies. For instance/Nonetheless, the sun is weaker in the winter, on cloudy days and in colder countries. In addition/However, solar panels can be expensive to install. Finally/For this reason, some households may not be able to afford to install them.

4 Write a possible introduction and conclusion to the essay.

5 Write supporting sentences to match the topic sentences below. Use appropriate linking words. Compare with your partner.

- 1 On the one hand, there are many points in favour of owning a pet.
- 2 On the other hand, there are several disadvantages to having your own car.

6 Match the quotations to the paragraphs. Which paragraphs are: introductions? conclusions?

A "We do not inherit the Earth from our ancestors, we borrow it from our children."

B "Tell me what you eat, I'll tell you who you are."

C "When I see an adult on a bicycle, I do not despair for the future of the human race."

1 To sum up, although there are some disadvantages to totally banning the use of plastic bags, I believe that on the whole taking drastic actions like this is necessary for the future of our planet. As the native American proverb says,

2 All in all, while there are certainly some disadvantages associated with organic food, in my opinion there are more advantages and we should all consume more of it. As Anthelme Brillat-Savarin once said,

3 H.G. Wells once said, Without a doubt, congestion and pollution from car exhausts would almost disappear if everyone cycled around towns and cities instead of driving. However, there would be both advantages and disadvantages of this.

7 Read the rubric. Then write your essay.

The playwright Jacques Deval once said, "God loved the birds and invented trees. Man loved the birds and invented cages."

What is your opinion about keeping wildlife in zoos? (200-250 words)

Reading

- 1 a) RNE Read the text about robots. For statements 1-7, choose A, B, C or D to complete each statement correctly. Circle the answer you choose.

Most of us associate robots with films such as Star Wars, I, Robot or AI, but in reality they have more to do with social issues and politics rather than science fiction. The term robot first made its appearance in a play entitled Rossum's Universal Robots written almost a century ago by a Czechoslovakian playwright by the name of Karel Čapek. Čapek got the name robot from the Slavic word 'robota' which means forced labour. In his play, he portrays a society where robots, which look human, are mass produced to work in the place of people.

Čapek's story was well received by the critics but never really got credit for being the source of the notion of robots. The play has significant relevance to our society today, as humanoid-type robots are being created to fulfil a wide range of tasks. Robot engineers are not only developing mindless worker drones, but are attempting to create human-like companion robots for people. Consequently, the question of what actually makes us human is the subject of lively debate.

In the USA, sociable robotics is developing at a relatively rapid rate and a human companion type of robot could soon be a reality. Japanese researchers see a very bright future for these robots who will serve as friends or family to the lonely. Nevertheless, one needs to ask if a human being can have a relationship with a machine in the same way as they do with other people or animals, and if so, what effect this could have on our society. The success of robot toys or virtual pets suggests that this type of relationship is possible. Research shows that children tend to have similar relationships with humans as with non-humans whereas the same is true for adults only with pets or when the robot is designed to look like a child. This is probably because robots display superficial emotions and cannot as yet replace human touch. But will these machines one day succeed in replacing humans?

Some paint a very dark picture of a robot society and predict that artificially intelligent machines will take control of the entire planet and dominate the human race. However, robot technology is still in its infancy and the idea of them taking over the world is pure fantasy to most of us, including scientists. In fact, most robots can only perform very basic tasks and even the most advanced robot that is capable of expressing over forty different emotions seems to do so in a totally random manner, regardless of what is going on around it.

In spite of the simplicity of today's robots, robotic technology is impacting our everyday lives in a dramatic way. Nowadays, our robots are becoming more and more like those portrayed in Čapek's work. In a society where human relationships are so often strained, it is no surprise that the possibility for human-robot relationships is increasing.

The Personal Touch

I had been working in fashion stores for several years before I heard of personal shopping. At first the notion of paying someone to pick out your clothes and other items struck me as a little extravagant. However, the more I learned about it, the more it began to make sense. I started to become more and more interested and eventually got involved.

In today's hectic world, more and more people are working long hours in demanding roles 1. When it comes to buying clothes, it takes time to search for the right items, to try everything on, and so on. In addition, some people simply aren't good at picking out items that suit them. That's where the personal shopper comes in.

It is my job to keep up-to-date with the latest trends in the fashion world. I pay close attention to designer clothing lines and the trends reflected within them. I'm always on the lookout for different styles and combinations of clothes in the world around me. With my background I am adept at this 2.

I work for a major department store in the capital. My clients are mainly wealthy businessmen and women 3. They either book a single consultation or a series of them, depending on their times constraints and needs.

The personal shopping experience starts with an initial consultation, held in a special suite located away from the main shop floor. The quiet location and luxurious surroundings helps the client relax 4. I ascertain whether the clothes they require are for a professional environment or for a more formal occasion, and I take into account the person's physical characteristics, such as build and colouring. I then make a series of suggestions to the client and gauge their response before selecting items for them to consider.

I have the entire range of clothing lines stocked by the department store at my disposal, ranging from designer labels through to high street brands. I always make a wide selection 5. I prefer this to imposing my views. The consultations are often so successful that clients tend to come back on a regular basis.

Due to the somewhat exclusive nature of the personal shopping experience, we are now getting bookings from people 6. People often tell us that they feel like a celebrity for the day. And the industry is growing all the time. It's not just about clothes now. You can be assisted online; you can even be assisted buying gifts for family and friends. Whatever your need, there's probably a personal shopper out there who can help you.

- A for whom image is an important part of making the right impression
- B while I ask questions in order to familiarise myself with their needs
- C because I like the customer to still have some choice to make
- D which means finding time to go shopping can often prove impossible
- E while some are shopping in the stressful atmosphere of the shop floor
- F who want to treat a loved one to the experience for a birthday gift
- G and clients can be confident that I will achieve the right look for them

- 3 It's very important to people's talents and encourage them.
- 4 We finally managed to to a large modern house in the suburbs.
- 5 The landlord was forced to that the rent was very high for such an area.
- 6 Most of my friends in the countryside and don't like city life.
- 7 My sister lives in London and she the excitement and the nightlife there.
- 8 Mrs O'Rourke's house in last week's issue of 'Your Home'.

1 We moved into a semi-detached property in the suburbs three years ago following the birth of our second child. We wanted our children to grow up having a garden to play in and being able to ride their bicycles in the street – things you just can't do in a city centre. The move to the suburbs also meant we were able to afford a house with much more living space. I do miss the liveliness of the city, but the calmer pace of life in suburbia is far more suitable for young children.

2 My wife and I live in a bungalow. I have a chronic back problem, so a house with stairs just isn't an option. Bungalows are few and far between in the area where we live, so we were incredibly lucky to get this house. We snapped it up the moment it came on the market. It's in a prime position – close to all the major amenities and with excellent transport links. My wife and I are both retired and we are very happy to have found such a suitable home.

3 I didn't spend a great deal of time choosing my present accommodation as my choice was pretty limited – I'm a student, so I am on a very restricted budget. I live in a flat in a small, terraced house in the city centre with another student. The house isn't exactly in prime condition... to put it nicely! I couldn't see anyone else but a student living here. But the location is fantastic. It's just ten minute's walk from my university, so I am able to run back and forth as necessary.

4 My husband and I own a beautiful cottage in a quaint English village. It has a thatched roof and a pretty English country garden. We're proud to live in a home that is so representative of English heritage. We both grew up close by and our families still live here so we feel very tied to the area. Our village is small and everybody knows each other. It's a lovely feeling. I can't imagine ever being happy in the impersonal atmosphere of the city.

5 My apartment was recently featured in a magazine article on modern city living. I live on the penthouse floor of a converted factory building in an area that is rapidly becoming one of the most sought-after in the city. There are five apartments in the building, all highly modern and minimalist. I fell in love with the open-plan design, floor-to-ceiling windows, and exposed brickwork the moment I stepped inside.

6 I own several Georgian properties. These houses date from the 1700's to about 1820 and they're easy to identify as they have very high ceilings and sash windows – that is windows in which panes of glass are divided by thin, delicate wooden bars. Georgian style houses are very popular with buy-to-let landlords like myself as they can be easily split into flats. They're beautiful buildings that were built to last. Most of them are Listed Buildings, too.

7 I live with my parents in a new housing development complex on the outskirts of the city. There's a real community feel to this complex and it has attracted a lot of families. We moved in only a couple of months ago. I really like our house because having just been built, everything is brand new and modern. Before we lived in a small, cramped flat in the centre. There's even a lot of green space in the middle of the complex, so us kids can kick around a football.

1 a) Read the model and put the paragraphs in the correct order.

STUDYING ABROAD

A All in all, I believe studying abroad is a richer and more fulfilling experience than studying at home. It will help you to develop skills and attitudes that will stay with you for a lifetime.

B Secondly, you will have lots of new experiences. Most of them will be exciting and interesting, but even the ones which are not will benefit you by making you stronger.

C With more countries entering the European Union and international relations improving, more young people are choosing to study abroad. To my mind, continuing or completing your education in a foreign country has a number of distinct advantages.

D However, some people believe it is better to study in your own country. They think that students who study abroad spend most of their time travelling and having fun while those who stay in their own country study harder and learn more.

E To start with, it can help you develop new skills and a cross-cultural understanding. For one thing, learning about and living another way of life opens your mind to different points of view. Also, you can improve your language skills by studying abroad – even more so if you study in the local language.

b) List the writer's viewpoints. What reasons do they use to support them? Complete the table.

WHAT can we do about CHILDREN and the MISUSE of MOBILE PHONES?

Many children these days have mobile phones. However, some children misuse them. They access inappropriate websites, chat and text for hours, or take improper photos or videos. Misuse of mobile phones is a problem which we need to address.

One possible solution concerning overuse would be to impose limits. Parents could use a pre-paid account of a fixed amount per week. This way, children would have to keep track of the time and money spent on the phone. As a result, they would not get into debt or miss out on other activities.

Another effective way to reduce the misuse is to educate children to use mobile technology positively. Advice could be given at home, in school and through advertising. If they are aware of the dangers and consequences involved, they would use their phones more responsibly.

All things considered, there are many solutions to the problem of misuse of mobiles by children. The sooner these solutions are put into action, the sooner levels of misuse can be reduced.

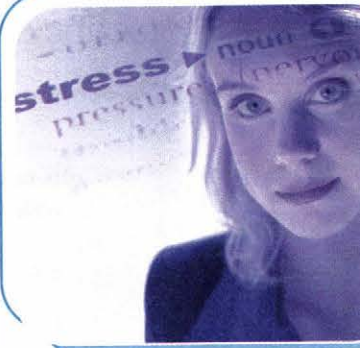

- 7 What techniques has the writer used to start/end the essay? Suggest another beginning/ending applying other techniques.

- 8 Choose the correct words/phrases.

- Crime has increased in many cities due to the fact/as a result that unemployment levels have been rising.
- All schoolchildren should be given their own laptops in order to/so that they will be well prepared for the world of work.
- People should not carry confidential papers around with them unnecessarily. This would/In this way reduce criminals' chances of being able to get hold of their personal details.
- Even more CCTV cameras should be installed in the streets in order to/so that deter criminals.

- 9 a) Read the title below, then match the suggestions to their results.

"How can teens avoid getting too stressed out with their busy, modern lives?"

Suggestions

- Make time to relax at home or go out with friends.
- Talk any problems through with a good friend.
- Eat healthily and get plenty of exercise and sleep.
- Write 'to do' lists and make a study plan.

Results

- be generally healthier and body more able to deal with stress
- find solutions more easily and feel less stress when problems are shared
- be refreshed and more able to cope with the stress of a busy life afterwards
- feel more in control and organised, which reduces stress

- b) Write sentences using appropriate linking words/phrases, as in the example.

e.g. 1 – C

A useful suggestion would be to make time to relax at home or go out with friends. As a result, you would be refreshed and more able to cope with the stress of a busy life afterwards.

- 10 Write supporting results/consequences for the following suggestions.

- One solution would be to use recycled paper in the office for memos, photocopies and so on.
- One way to help homeless people in the area would be for the local authority to open a free hostel.

V. Express this text in English.

Из всех видов передвижений больше всего я люблю ходить пешком. Конечно, хороший автомобиль может доставить много радости, а езда на велосипеде ещё и полезна для здоровья. Но пешком можно и везде успеть, и многое увидеть. Я никогда не упускаю возможности походить пешком по окрестностям и посетить самые красивые места своего края. Ходьба пешком – прекрасное спортивное упражнение, и оно помогает мне не набирать лишний вес. Кроме того, я не боюсь попасть в автомобильную пробку и не беспокоюсь, что что-нибудь сломается по дороге. Всё, что мне нужно – это спортивная обувь, лёгкая одежда и зонтик на случай дождя. Иногда я сажусь на поезд или автобус, чтобы добраться до далёкого озера или до других живописных мест. А там я хожу со своим фотоаппаратом и делаю снимки на память о путешествии.

Я стараюсь внимательно относиться к своему здоровью. Во-первых, я никогда не переедаю. Лишняя еда означает лишний вес, а это вредит здоровью. Кроме того, я стараюсь употреблять больше свежих овощей и фруктов, в которых содержится много витаминов и полезных минералов. Иногда вместо свежих овощей и фруктов я пью свежавыжатый сок. Вообще я предпочитаю есть почаще, но понемногу. Врачи говорят, что это хорошо для здоровья. Конечно я всегда нахожу время ходить пешком и больше бывать на свежем воздухе. Это помогает мне меньше болеть и не простужаться. Я также стараюсь избегать контакта с заболевшими людьми, чтобы не заразиться от них. Конечно, иногда я всё-таки болею, но быстро поправляюсь.

 — Да нет! Вход абсолютно бесплатный. Любой желающий может войти и посмотреть экспозицию или выставку свободно.

V. Express this text in English.

Я поехал из Лондона в Ньюкасл и сразу купил билет туда-обратно. Этот поезд межгородского сообщения, в отличие от пригородных поездов, шёл очень быстро и сделал всего одну остановку. В отличие от этого поезда, пригородные поезда останавливаются на всех станциях. Кстати, там обычно можно пересест на другие поезда типа экспресс. В поезде можно было купить газеты, еду, напитки и сладости. Ехать было очень удобно, и, хотя поезд шел всего три часа, я успел вздремнуть немного. По дороге разговорился с соседом, и мы обсудили английскую погоду. Был прекрасный солнечный день, но когда мы подъезжали к Ньюкаслу, то увидели, что там не менее недели шли дожди.

- B. заставлять, альтернативный, источник, обращаться, изменения, вклад (в общее дело), основать, найти, защищать, оборонять, проблема, действовать

II. Express these in English:

- A. порывы ветра, сильный ветер, очень холодно (freeze), сорвать крышу, неустойчивая погода, плохо себя чувствовать, пыльная буря, глобальное потепление, парниковый эффект, загрязнение воздуха и воды, уменьшение количества (drop), сталкиваться с (face), страдать от последствий, сохранять (консервировать) окружающую среду, создавать заповедники
- B. быть на грани уничтожения, играть жизненно важную роль, вызывать серьёзные проблемы, прямо влиять на (относиться к), делать что-то невозможным, ситуация требует действий, быть под давлением, принимать идею, наперекор общему мнению, быть под угрозой, быть осведомлёнными о чём-либо, напоминать кому-либо о чём-либо

III. Translate these sentences into English.

1. Трубы заводов и фабрик ежедневно выбрасывают в атмосферу вредные газы и химические вещества.
2. Озоновый слой в атмосфере стал заметно тоньше к концу XX века, и с тех пор эта проблема постоянно находится под контролем учёных.
3. В некоторых регионах разрешена охота на волков, чтобы их количество не увеличивалось (keep numbers down), хотя в других местах они охраняются законом.
4. За последние десятилетия экологическая система претерпела большие изменения и стала предметом горячих дискуссий.
5. Незаконная рубка деревьев (logging) наносит огромный ущерб природе и её последствия опаснее, чем просто уничтожение лесов.
6. Генетически изменённые продукты могут оказаться вредными и оказать нежелательное влияние на генетическую систему человека.
7. Глобальное потепление вызывает таяние ледников и это ведёт к подъёму уровня воды в мировом океане, что вызывает частые наводнения.
8. Если бы люди ещё в XIX веке задумались об экологии, наша среда обитания была бы сегодня прекрасным и безопасным местом для жизни.
9. Многие животные уже занесены в Красную книгу, поскольку они либо уничтожены, либо находятся на грани уничтожения и нуждаются в защите.
10. Уменьшение озонового слоя в атмосфере Земли вызвано вредными газами, которые создают в озоновом слое огромные дыры, и мы лишаемся естественной защиты от радиации из космоса.

11. Во многих больших городах проводятся кампании в поддержку использования общественного транспорта для поездок, а не личных автомобилей.
12. Ни одному браконьеру не должно быть позволено уйти безнаказанным после бессмысленного убийства животных ради меха или украшений.

IV. Express the same in English.

1. – Вы знаете, что ваши дети подожгли лес в окрестностях города?
– Да, но дети есть дети, и они не понимают, что можно и что нельзя делать.
– Вы должны были сказать им об опасности разведения костров в лесу.
– Наверное, вы правы, но сейчас уже поздно говорить об этом.
2. – Ты когда-нибудь видел припаркованные машины с включённым двигателем?
– Случалось. Двигатель в таких машинах продолжает работать, и это особенно часто бывает в холодное время года.
– Ты представляешь, сколько выхлопных газов попадает в атмосферу, пока автомобиль стоит, а владелец занят своими делами?
– Конечно, можно представить, каким воздухом мы дышим в результате такой бесполезной работы двигателя!
3. – Почему браконьеры охотятся на осетра из-за икры, а рыбу выбрасывают обратно в реку?
– Да потому, что икра намного дороже, чем сама рыба, и они вылавливают тысячи рыб только из-за икры и продают её очень дорого.
– А можно что-нибудь сделать, чтобы остановить такое браконьерство и спасти осетра?
– Наверное, мы можем не покупать икру, которая продается не в магазинах, и значит добыта незаконно.
4. – Я решил ездить на работу общественным транспортом. Мне кажется, что это удобнее и экономичнее.
– Может быть. А в чём удобство? Не нужно думать о пробках на дороге и искать место для парковки машины?
– Да! И конечно ты сэкономишь деньги на бензине. Это важно, хотя конечно ехать в собственном автомобиле приятнее, чем в автобусе.
– Я согласен. Нужно думать об экологии в городе!

V. Express this text in English.

Люди иногда ведут себя по отношению к природе, как будто это не наш общий дом. Если бы только они знали раньше, какие опасные последствия наступят в результате таких действий. Когда-нибудь все поймут, что не нужно было загрязнять атмосферу и воду, вырубать леса и выбрасывать столько вредных веществ в океан. Раньше нужно было поднимать тревогу и принимать меры по защите окружающей среды. Давно пора не только подписывать, но и реализовывать международные договоры о мерах против изменения климата и глобального потепления. Жаль, что столько времени упущено в решении экологических проблем на Земле.

– Но ты считаешь, что покупка товаров через Интернет удобна?
– Думаю, что да. По крайней мере, такая торговля экономит наше время.
2. – Что ты думаешь о магазинах быстрого питания?
– По-моему, эта сеть очень хороша для занятых людей.
– А что ты скажешь о пользе всех этих бутербродов и гамбургеров?
– Да, здесь есть проблема. Говорят, люди прибавляют вес от такой еды.
3. – Я очень хочу купить что-нибудь модное, но недорогое.
– Но ты уже купила себе модные туфли и они достаточно дорогие.
– Купила на прошлой неделе, а ты к тому времени уже купила себе сумку.
– Когда я купила себе сумку, ты уже купила себе новую шляпку!
4. – Ты отлично выглядишь в этой рубашке с короткими рукавами.
– Спасибо. Рубашка действительно красивая, но к ней нужен галстук.
– Я думаю, ты найдёшь красивый и модный галстук в магазине одежды.

5. – Что бы ты делал на моём месте, если бы лучший друг предал тебя?
– Может быть, я бы обиделся, а может быть понял причины. Не знаю.
– Ну хорошо. Не говори об этом никому (hat). Я подумаю, как поступить.
– Конечно подумай. Время покажет, и возможно вы останетесь друзьями.

V. Express this text in English.

Я никак не могу успеть за модой. Юбки становятся то короче, то длиннее. Шляпы – каждый год то больше, то меньше. Каблуки – то выше, то ниже. Цвета одежды меняются каждый год. Цена тоже меняется и за модные аксессуары нужно платить всё больше. А кроме того, ещё нужно платить за популярную фирму. Если бренд одежды широко известен, она стоит намного дороже. А так хочется быть модно одетой! Конечно, можно одеваться и в недорогих магазинах. Там тоже продают красивые вещи, но всё-таки, хочется похвастаться чем-нибудь от известного производителя или модельера. А где ты покупаешь свою одежду? Ты всегда одета со вкусом, и на тебя многие обращают внимание.
